Three Battles In Shanghai Menace 3,800 U. S. Citizens

Tokyo Speeding Reinforcements

Repetition of 1932 War Feared; Americans May Be Moved.

By the United Press.

Shanghai (Friday), Aug. 13.—Savage fighting between Japanese and Chinese troops of the Nanking censeparate sections of Shanghai today.

It was feared the second "Shanghai war" had begun.

Mayor O. K. Yui's office said the Japanese charged across the railroad tracks bordering Chapei and that Chinese soldiers fired from behind sandbags.

Fighting also began at the Tientungnan railroad station near the Japanese landing party headquarters and east of the Paoshing road off the North Szechuen road.

Americans Worried.

Japanese headquarters said the first clash occurred at 9:15 a. m. at the corner of the Paoshan and Wangping roads in Chapei territory.

Chinese and foreigners, including many Americans, were terror stricken as a repetition of the bloody 1932 fighting appeared to be starting.

The Eighty-seventh and Eighty-eighth divisions of the Chinese central government army poured into the native city from nearby Soochow and constructed barricades in the Chapei district.

The third Japanese battle fleet, including 33 warships, lay at anchor in the harbor, prepared to send tons of high explosive shells into the city.

Aim at Railroad Station.

It was expected their first move would be to dominate Chapei and take the north railroad station in the native Chinese city.

[In Tokyo the Japanese government, following a special meeting of the cabinet, was understood to be rushing further naval, military and air reinforcements to Shanghai, the Associated Press reported.—Editor's note.]

China blocked the Yangtse and Whangpoo rivers, Shanghai's avenues to the interior and the sea, and menaced the safety of more than 3,800 Americans and some 45,000 other foreigners.

The city faced the gravest crisis that it has known in its modern history, and reports circulated that a general exodus of Americans and other foreigners may be decided upon.

It was reported that United States Ambassador Nelson T. Johnson and Consul General Clarence Gause had perfected final plans for the removal of all Americans.

Japan Retaliates.

The foreign committee faced an almost impossible situation as nationalist China had informed them she was ready to fight Japan here "to the death," and that if foreign powers would not intervene their citizens in the rich Shanghai area would have to look out for themselves.

Assassin Kills Iraq War Chief And Air Leader

By the Associated Press.

Baghdad, Iraq, Aug. 12—Maj. Gen. Bekr Sidki Pasha, minister of defense and "strong man." of Iraq, and Col. Mohamed Ali Jawad, chief of the Iraq air force, were assassinated yesterday at Mosul, the government announced today.

Gen. Sidki had been considered the power behind the throne of King Ghazi since last October when he led a military coup d'etat which placed a new government in office.

An official announcement said the two officers were shot by a soldier as they were resting at sunset on the lawn of the airdrome at Mosul, 220 miles northwest of here.

They were traveling to Turkey to attend war games of the Turkish army.

The assassin pumped many bullets into the defense minister, and Col. Jawad was said to have lost his life when he tried to save his superior. The killer was seized immediately and faced early trial by court-martial.

Authorities tried to discover his motive, but what they learned was not disclosed.

Gen. Sidki was known for his efficiency in suppressing tribal uprisings and other threats to the regime. Four revolts had been put down in recent months.

The bodies of the victims were brought by airplane to Baghdad, where the entire cabinet attended a state funeral. The city was draped in black.

Iraq, or Mesopotamia, formerly part of the Turkish Empire, became an independent state after the World War. King Ghazi succeeded to the throne in 1933 on the death of his father, King Faisal, Iraq's first King.

Hull Declares Ship Loan Vital To Latin Policy

Fears Co-Operation Will End if War Vessels Are Refused.

By William V. Nessly.

Abandonment of practically all of this country's co-operative moves with South American republics might logically follow refusal to lease Brazil six decommissioned destroyers, use of which she has requested, Secretary of State Hull said yesterday.

At the same time reports came from Buenos Aires that Argentina plans presentation here of a note of protest against the proposed lease, and Senator Arthur Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, attacked the Administration plan, declaring "this Government must not become a 'merchant of death'" even while acting as a "benevolent lessor."

The Buenos Aires dispatch, by the Associated Press, quoted "reliable sources" as saying the note of protest might be delivered yesterday or today, but it had not arrived last night. A the Argentine embassy it was said no word of the rumored protest had been received.

Absence of a quorum yesterday blocked action by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on the Walsh resolution to authorize the President to lease over-age destroyers, of which this country has 158,

Cardinal Hayes, 69, In Hospital After Indigestion Attack

New York, Aug. 12 (AP).—Mgr. Casey, secretary to Patrick Cardinal Hayes, announced tonight that the 69-year-old prelate is in St. Vincent's Hospital, where he was treated for a slight attack of indigestion suffered Wednesday.

The cardinal is much improved and will leave the hospital soon, the secretary said.

The prelate became ill at his summer camp near Monticello, N. Y., Mgr. Casey said, and his personal physician suggested bringing him to the hospital here where he would be closer to expert medical care.

5 Drowned At Church's Bay Outing

Waders Step Into Hole; Boy's Heroic Rescue Attempt Futile.

By the Associated Press.

Ocean City, Md., Aug. 12.—Five boys and girls, between 13 and 22 years old, frolicking in the water of the Sinepuxent Bay while on a Sunday school picnic, stepped into deep water today and were drowned.

Only the outcry of the eldest, Daniel West, was heard as the five disappeared into the water. The bodies of two were recovered before nightfall, as parents of the missing paced the nearby shore.

The five victims were attending the annual picnic of the St. Martin's Episcopal Church, near Berlin. Of the 35 children and parents at the picnic, 10 decided to go swimming, although only one could swim at all.

Dead Are Listed.

The dead were Daniel West, 22; his sister, Neldia West, 16; Howard Ayelotte, 16; Katherine Davis, 14, and Margaret West, 13. All were children of farmers residing near St. Martin's, 3 miles north of Berlin, Worcester County.

Clifford Holloway, who could swim a little, said 10 of the picnickers put on their swimming suits and went into the water. He said all of them were playing about in the water and looking for clams.

"We were walking along in the water about waist deep," he related. "The five who were drowned were further out than the rest of us.

"Suddenly I heard Daniel call for help. I looked and only could see their hands frantically waving above the water. Then they disappeared.

"I saw Daniel come to the surface once. He had a hold of two of the girls, but I couldn't see who they were. I swam out and got hold of Margaret and tried to carry her to shore. But I was nearly exhausted and had to let go of her."

Holloway said the five had stepped into a deep hole along the channel of the bay. With him closer to shore were Francis Robertson, Edward Holland, Lawrence Powell and Harold Davis.

The bodies of Neldia West and Katherine Davis were found by Al Peters, who put out in a small fishing boat. They were floating on the water. Coast Guardsmen from the Ocean City station tried unsuccessfully to revive them.

Coast Guard Searches.

Two oCast Guard boats with five men in each and four fishing boats started dragging the section for the three missing bodies. More boats were expected when the deep sea fishing craft returned to Ocean City.

The Sunday school picnic was being held in Henry's Grove, a clump of pine trees in an isolated section about 7 miles south of Ocean City. It is on a narrow spit of sand separating the Sinepuxent Bay and the Atlantic Ocean.

Mr. and Mrs. John West were the only parents of the victims on the picnic. Neldia and Daniel West were their children. The father had to be held by his friends for fear he would leap into the water. He could not swim.

Mrs. West said Neldia had pleaded all week to go on the picnic and she had been refused permission until Daniel said he would go along and watch his sister.

When the news of the tragedy reached St. Martin's, the other parents rushed to the scene and walked along the shore as the Coast Guardsmen and fishermen dragged up and down the bay for the missing bodies.

Lynch Bill Dropped in Recess Rush

Sugar 'Compromise' Is Pushed Ahead; Crop Control Deferred.

By Robert C. Albright.

Bucking Administration leadership on half a dozen sectors, a Congress overloaded with delayed legislation yesterday defied White House views on pivotal measures and headed post haste down its own legislative road to adjournment.

Breaking through a threatened antilynching filibuster, that controversial measure was laid on ice by the Senate for prior consideration next session. Once again legislative machinery commenced to grind, but the grist was not all to the President's liking.

Status of measures strewing the adjournment lap was as follows:

The wages-and-hours bill, passed by the Senate and modified by a House Labor Committee, challenged efforts of leaders to resurrect it from a Rules Committee interment.

Sugar "Compromise" Gains.

A White House warning against a sugar-control bill "compromise" failed to sway the Senate Finance Committee from approval, and the bill was rapidly being gaveled through the Senate by Vice President John Nance Garner.

The Senate Committee on Agriculture, in executive session last night, defiantly chose a sub-committee to call on President Roosevelt today to request reissuance of a 1935 order for commodity loans on cotton, with loans of 12 cents a pound as a price base, and then adopted a resolution which would make it the sense of Congress that a farm stabilization bill be the first order of business at the January session.

The House Banking Committee spent another day attempting to rewrite the Wagner housing bill approved by the Senate. It postponed controversial features, but appeared likely to raise local contributions toward housing projects and scale down terms of 60-year Federal housing loans.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee failed to shake loose the Administration's Walsh resolution, authorizing lease of overage destroyers to Brazil and other South American republics. Opposition was developing in committee.

Lynch Bill Withdrawn.

Senate agreement to consider antilynching legislation immediately after farm action next session brought withdrawal by Senator Wagner (Democrat), New York, of his antilynching motion. Southern Senators chafed at prior status next session for the measure, likely to raise political resentment in the South.

The Administration's crop-Insurance-for-wheat bill, passed by the Senate and narrowly approved by the House Agriculture Committee, remained snugly wedged in a House Rules Committee pigeonhole.

At its night session the Senate Agriculture Committee adopted a resolution calling on President Roosevelt to initiate a 1937 cotton-loan program by executive order similar to the 1935 program. The committee recommended 10-cent loans and a Government guarantee of a higher price if the market did not respond, but the top figure was left to Presidential discretion.

Fifth Death Linked to Blonde; Police Seize Deadly Poison

By the Associated Press.

Cincinnati, Aug. 12.—A fifth death tonight entered the investigation of a strange trail of death and illness among elderly acquaintances of Mrs. Anna Filser Hahn, 31-year-old blonde former German school teacher.

Mrs. Hahn is held on fugitive warrants charging murder and grand larceny. A second larceny charge was filed by George Heis, 62, one of two men claiming a paralyzing illness after drinking beer with the comely woman.

As police of Cincinnati and Colorado Springs, Colo., conducted tests on vital organs of two of the men, Lieut. George W. Schattle announced finding of a half-emptied 1-ounce bottle of a violent dysenteric poison in the office of Philip Hahn, telegrapher husband of Mrs. Hahn.

Schattle said "symptoms in the deaths of at least four of the men could be those of the poisoning."

The fifth death under scrutiny was that of George Gesellman, 67, found dead in bed July 6.

August Schultz, living in the same building, identified Mrs. Hahn as a woman he said led Gesellman to another part of the structure the night of July 5. Schultz said the woman appeared the next morning, but left hurriedly when told of the death. Immediate exhumation of the body was ordered.

Schattle announced that pictures and fingerprints of Mrs. Hahn had been sent to the Fingerprint Bureau at Washington for forwarding to Munich, Germany, her former home, and to Vienna, where her first husband, a physician, practiced before his death eight years ago.

Police in Colorado Springs, Colo., announced new tests would be made of organs taken from the body of George Obendoerfer, 67-year-old well-to-do Cincinnati cobbler friend of Mrs. Hahn, who died August 1.

Tests are under way here on the viscera of Jacob Wagner, who died June 3. Schattle said Mrs. Hahn had admitted signing Wagner's name to a $1,000 check on the day he died.

Albert Palmer, 72, died in March and Ernst Kohler, elderly teamster, died several years ago. Schattle said his ashes were found in a cannister in the home of Mrs. Hahn. The $12,000 house was bequeathed to her by Kohler, though Schattle quoted her as saying: "I don't know why."

Green, Lewis Praise Black; Rep. Cox Sees 'Insult to U. S.'

By the Associated Press.

President Roosevelt's nomination of Senator Black (Democrat), Alabama, to the Supreme Court was received with enthusiasm by many of his colleagues, with hostility by some, and with significant silence by others. Half a dozen Senators announced open opposition to his confirmation, but the great majority were either favorable to the appointment or silent.

Outside the Senate, Black drew his greatest support from organized labor chieftains. John L. Lewis and William Green, leaders of the C. I. O. and American Federation of Labor, both approved the President's selection.

Lewis, characterizing the nomination as "an admirable appointment, one that will be applauded by the Nation," said "The C. I. O. is for him."

Green said the appointment was "both pleasing and satisfactory to labor."

House Comment Hostile.

From the House came much hostile comment. Representative Cox (Democrat), Georgia, said, "It is the worst insult that has yet been given the Nation," while Representative Patton (Democrat), Texas, who once was investigated by Black's lobby committee, said he would never appeal a case to the Supreme Court with the Alabaman on it.

Senate opposition came from those Senators who opposed President Roosevelt's court bill, but their ranks were divided. Some of those who led the opposition to the court bill said they would support Black's nomination.

It was quickly apparent that the sub-committee named to consider the nomination would favor the appointment, and that the Judiciary Committee as a whole would do likewise unless there were some changes in position later.

First comment on the nomination came from Chairman Ashurst (Democrat), Arizona, of the Judiciary Committee, when he sought immediate confirmation of the nomination.

He characterized Black as a lawyer of "transcendent ability and great industriousness, courteous in

Cloudburst Kills Woman and Child

Miami, Ariz., Aug. 12 (U.P.).—A 10-foot wall of water, roaring down a mountainside after a cloudburst in this mining area late today, drowned a 30-year-old woman and a 3-year-old Indian girl.

An automobile driven by John Garey, road construction worker, stalled when the water hit it and his wife drowned. He threw their two children, 3 and 5 years old, several feet from the wash.

House Shelves Investigation of Democrat Book

Committee Votes, 9 to 3, Against Hearing Snell Coercion Charges.

By Sidney Olson.

The House Rules Committee blandly disregarded a biting denunciation by Minority Leader Bertrand H. Snell, of New York, yesterday of the sale of Democratic campaign books with a swift vote to table his resolution for an investigation.

Snell slashed at the sale to corporations of books autographed by the President as an "incalculably great shock to public morals." He attacked the White House statement that the President, signing his name 2,500 times, "did not realize his autograph was to be used for this unlawful purpose," as "a specious alibi."

Snell said last night he would present his 21 instances of alleged "pressure" and "reprisals" by

Airman Discovers Sun's Atmosphere Million Miles Deep

New York, Aug. 12 (AP).—An airplane discovery that the sun is surrounded by air 1,000,000 miles deep on all sides, found by a new photographic technique during the eclipse in Peru last June, was made public by the American Museum of Natural History here today.

The pictures were taken by Maj. A. W. Stevens, stratosphere flier. In a plane at 25,000 feet above the Peruvian coast he photographed the sun's corona. This is the white halo always visible in eclipse.

Surrounding the corona in the pictures, extending far outside, and almost as round as the sun itself, was a light haze. The haze is apparently atmosphere. Astronomers have suspected its existence for years, but never before have had such definite proof.

'Dark-Horse' Nomination Of Alabaman Facing Study

Goes to Sub-Committee; Approval Due Despite Challenge Plan.

Burke Helps Block Immediate Action

Rulings to Be Asked on Eligibility Under Act of This Congress.

By Franklyn Waltman.

Consideration of President Roosevelt's nomination of Senator Hugo L. Black (Democrat), Alabama, to be a member of the Supreme Court will be commenced today by a Senate Judiciary sub-committee headed by Senator M. M. Neeley, West Virginia Democrat.

In another unexpected and startling move, the President sent Senator Black's name to the Senate yesterday as the successor to Justice Willis Van Devanter, who retired from the high tribunal on June 2. Not even the President's secretaries had advance knowledge the Alabaman had been chosen for the Supreme Court. They apparently did not even know a decision had been made an hour before it was announced.

Names Staunch Supporter.

In naming the 51-year-old Alabaman, President Roosevelt selected for the Supreme Court one of his staunchest supporters, a man who in recent days has led the battle for the Administration's wages and hours bill and for Mr. Roosevelt's demand for another crop-control law. No man in Congress has a better record for supporting New Deal measures than Senator Black.

His appointment to the Supreme Court—if confirmed—would give the President a 6-to-3 control of that tribunal, if the lines established during the last session of the court hold in the next term. Without doubt Senator Black would be the most liberal, or left-wing, member of that tribunal. Incidentally, it will be the first time since 1864 that a majority of the Supreme Court has been listed as Democratic.

Efforts to have the Senate confirm the nomination immediately—a courtesy almost invariably granted when a member of the Senate is nominated for another post—were blocked by Senators Hiram Johnson (Republican), of California, and Edward R. Burke, Democrat, of Nebraska.

Eulogized by Ashurst.

The nomination thus was referred to the Senate Judiciary Committee. Senator Henry F. Ashurst, chairman of that committee, after a fulsome eulogy of the Alabaman, immediately named a sub-committee of six members to consider the nomination. In addition to Neely, this committee consisted of Senators M. M. Logan, of Kentucky; George McGill, of Kansas, and William H. Dietrich—all Democrats and Administration stalwarts—and Senators William E. Borah and Warren R. Austin, Republicans.

Although little enthusiasm was displayed among Senators for the Black nomination, his confirmation within a few days was taken as a foregone conclusion. A number of Senators declined to make any comment. But only four announced they would vote against him. On the other hand, leaders of labor organizations, including both John L. Lewis and William Green, hailed the appointment as a splendid one.

Several members of the Senate indicated they would challenge the appointment. One was Senator Burke, who said he would demand a ruling from the Attorney General on questions touching the Alabaman's eligibility for a place on the high tribunal, in view of the fact his appointment resulted from the operation of the McCarran-Sumners Supreme Court retirement act, passed by this Congress.

Cited Klan Report.

There also was some reference in Senate corridors to the widespread reports which have persisted for 11 years that the liberal Alabaman was elected to the Senate as a can-

Van Sweringen Railway Inquiry Ordered by ICC

Jurisdiction Over Holding Companies Will Be Determined.

By the Associated Press.

The Interstate Commerce Commission ordered yesterday a far-reaching investigation to determine its jurisdiction over the former Van Sweringen railroad empire.

It directed an inquiry into the holdings of common carrier securities, financial and other operations of the Alleghany Corporation and the Chesapeake Corporation, holding companies that figure largely in the transportation system built up by the Van Sweringen brothers.

It named also as respondents Robert R. Young, Frank F. Kolbe and Alan P. Kirby, who recently acquired control of the Van Sweringen rail interests by purchase of stocks from a charitable foundation set up by George A. Ball, of Muncie, Ind.

Merger Also Debated.

The commission said its order was designed to determine its jurisdiction over the two railroad holding companies and whether a proposed consolidation would be compatible with the interstate commerce act.

The consolidation proposal, which is part of the reorganization plans of the new owners, also was the subject of a lengthy Senate committee investigation which ended Wednesday.

Western Roads Under Inquiry.

Max Lowenthal, counsel for the investigating committee, said he was beginning a survey of the Southern Pacific and the Minneapolis & St. Louis roads.

He concluded hearings on the Van Sweringen empire by reading into the record a criticism of its financial methods and holding company set-up.

Two investment companies sought an injunction in Baltimore Wednesday to prevent the merger of the Alleghany Corporation and Chesapeake Corporation, the two principal holding companies.

William Linn Funeral Held at Soldiers' Home

Funeral services were held yesterday at the Soldiers Home Chapel for William Linn, 70, who died Thursday at the Soldier's Home after a brief illness. Burial was in the Soldier's Home National Cemetery.

Mr. Linn was an elevator operator of a Washington newspaper for many years. Survivors include Mrs. Elsie Dennis Linn and a son and daughter who live at 654 Fourth street southeast.

Rep. Towey Parries Queries, Calls Self 'Liberal, No Radical'

REPRESENTATIVE FRANK W. TOWEY.

New Jersey Democrat Favors 'Objectives' of New Deal; Won Seat From G. O. P. in Close Race; Fears 'Trend Toward Centralization.'

By Liam K. Leniham.

It just can't be done.

The 6-foot heavy-set Congressman from New Jersey's Twelfth District, who considers himself "a liberal but no radical," is more adept at parrying questions than the present occupant of the White House.

He is not equivocal, though. He will tell you he is an "independent Democrat, unlike LaGuardia or LaFollette."

Then ask him if he is a New Dealer.

Thoughtfully weighing the political pros and cons, he will judicially reply:

"I am for the objectives of the New Deal, but I do not wholeheartedly indorse the means used for that end."

What Individualist Towey fears most is bureauecracy and the "present trend toward centralization."

"With the tides of democracy at such a low ebb throughout the world, I fear we are losing sight of the first principles enunciated by the founders of this country," he said.

Biographical note: He was born in Jersey City in November, 1895; was graduated in 1916 from Holy Cross College at Worcester, Mass., then entered Fordham Law School. At the outbreak of hostilities with Germany, he enlisted and served as a lieutenant in the United States Infantry. Demobilized, he completed his law course in 1919 and in 1920 opened up general practice in Newark. He ran for public office the first time last November to defeat the incumbent, the late Fredrick R. Lehlbach, Republican, by a touch and go vote.

Curran Urges Uniform Fines In Petty Crimes

A uniform system of fines and penalties for crimes in the jurisdiction of Police Court was advocated yesterday by Judge Edward M. Curran, youngest member of the District's lower court bench, in a talk before members of the Cosmopolitan Club in the Carlton Hotel.

Judge Curran said each of the four judges in Police Court now may penalize offenders as they see fit. Fines are not consistent, he said, and one defendant may pay double the price for his offense as another man accused of the same crime.

And at the same time, Judge Curran urged support of his recommendation to change the name of Police Court to "City Court of the District of Columbia." The name "Police Court," he said, is misleading and does not command the public respect it should.

Judge Curran also suggested establishment of a "behavior clinic" where offenders may receive examinations before appearing in court. Accused criminals, he said, should be examined physically and mentally and their entire backgrounds should be studied before they are arraigned in court.

Force and punishment, said the judge, will never solve the Nation's crime problem. The answer lies in correction methods in youth, he added.

A total of 4,300,000 persons in the United States, declared Judge Curran, now are engaged in the "paying business of crime."

A felony, he said, is committed every 24 seconds—murder every 10 minutes, robbery every 2 minutes and larceny every 44 seconds.

Widespread lawlessness, he said, is due primarily to widespread paganism.

German Sea Fliers Due In New York Monday

Lisbon, Portugal, Aug. 12 (AP).—The German flying boat Nordmeer will leave Lisbon early tomorrow for the Azores on the second leg of her transatlantic survey flight.

Officials of Deutsche Lufthansa said the big plane, making a test flight preliminary to opening transatlantic passenger and mail service between Germany and the United States, probably would reach New York either late Monday or early Tuesday.

Paris Cab Strike Ends In Victory for All Sides

Paris, Aug. 12 (AP).—The Paris taxi strike died today at the age of 36 hours. Oddly enough, everybody, even the public, won. The taxi drivers won increased salaries. The taxi owners won an agreement with government officials which is expected to result in a suppression of the gasoline tax and company turnover taxes. Everybody agreed to lower the fares. While the strike lasted, only 234 cabs out of the city's 4,270 were on the streets.

Land for Flood Dams In Pennsylvania Sought

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 12 (AP).—State agents, equipped with more than $2,000,000 granted by the Federal Government, went out today to buy the land for two flood control dams along the Tionesta and Crooked creeks in western Pennsylvania.

The work is the start of the $150,000,000 Federal-State plan to harness high waters in the Ohio, Delaware and Susquehanna valleys to prevent such floods as the 1936 disaster.

White House Defied in Adjournment Rush

tee would call on the President today and probably would suggest a guarantee of 12 cents a pound, or 2 cents more than the loan base.

"We are going to give him a chance," Smith added, "and if he does not act the committee will report out a second resolution calling for a mandatory 10-cent loan."

The committee action, the chairman said, was independent of all other legislative proposals before it.

In addition, it adopted a resolution by Senator Bilbo (Democrat), of Mississippi, pledging the Senate to make farm legislation the first order of business at the next session, whether special or regular, and outlining principles on which it should be drafted.

Sugar control legislation started through the Senate, under the Vice President's guidance from the chair, after the Senate Finance Committee had refused to reconsider the "compromise" bill, freezing at peak production limits both domestic and island sugar refiners.

President Roosevelt had threatened to veto the House sugar bill because of "discrimination" against island refiners. In a letter to Chairman Pat Harrison, of the Senate Finance Committee, the President said the Senate compromise "not only does not eliminate the discrimination, but introduces a new and highly objectionable feature."

"Dangerous Precedent."

He said the Senate amendment "introduces a principle of geographical limitations on manufacturing in our country which has no economic justification or social justification in this instance, and would constitute a dangerous precedent."

Mr. Roosevelt said the bill was "otherwise acceptable," and urged manufacturing restrictions be considered separately. But the Finance Committee, which approved its own compromise 15 to 2 before receipt of the letter, again voted approval, 16 to 1, after hearing the President's objections.

Without debating this controversy, the Senate late yesterday approved the committee amendment challenged by the President. With Garner's gavel beating a tattoo, two other amendments were approved, and the bill may be finally passed today, unless an unexpected hitch develops.

Opposed by Wallace.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace had opposed one of the approved amendments, which would direct him to be guided by an index of domestic food prices instead of the average prices of five principal crops, in attempting to adjust production.

A resolution to give Administration crop control legislation right of way next session received favor in the Senate Agriculture Committee, after hearing Secretary Wallace voice objections to mandatory crop loans without accompanying farm control legislation.

The President has refused to approve price-pegging crop loans to farmers without assurance his crop-control measure will be enacted. Chairman Smith said he thought the prior consideration resolution should furnish such "assurance."

Only One More Measure.

Acceptance of the pledge by the President would remove another obstacle to adjournment. With the sugar measure approved this week, the Senate has to enact only one other measure on the President's "desirable" list—tax loophole plugging. That measure may go before the House Monday. Should an agreement be reached to permit wages and hours legislation to go over until next session, along with farm and anti-lynching measures, adjournment by August 21 apparently would be assured.

Roosevelt Signs Medical Board Licensing Bill

Permits Healing Arts Body to Pass on Applicants for Practice Here.

President Roosevelt yesterday signed a bill which will save Congress a lot of work and a number of physicians and surgeons a lot of irritation in the future.

In 1929, Congress passed a law dealing with the healing arts here. Among other things, it required that physicians and surgeons practicing prior to that obtain a new license with five years. Many physicians, including a number in the Army, Navy and Marine Corps, were out of the city at the time the legislation passed, or did not know about it.

Since the five-year period expired, Congress has been passing individual bills for such physicians and surgeons who want to practice here. The bill signed yesterday by President Roosevelt will allow the Healing Arts Commission to pass on such cases.

The President yesterday also signed a bill authorizing the Board of Optometry to examine Welton B. Hutton, who seeks a license. Two other bills signed by the President would license Dr. Frederick W. Didier and William J. Olds to practice the healing arts, and another would license Russell Pemberton to practice chiropractic.

Boston Seamen End Strike.

Boston, Aug. 12 (AP).—A one-day strike that disrupted steamer traffic between Boston and Hull's Nantasket Beach ended late today. Chairman Thomas Curley of the State Board of Arbitration said the Nantasket Steamboat Co. and the seaman's union had agreed to a wage increase of 10 per cent.

2 Trucks, Taxicab And Trolley Crash

Two trucks, a taxicab and a street car figured in a collision yesterday at New Jersey avenue and P streets northwest. Three persons reported sprained necks after the accident, but all refused hospital treatment.

According to police, the traffic scramble started with a collision between the trucks, one driven by William H. Johnson, 23, 501 H street northwest, the other by Charles J. Thompson, 22, 1229 Fifteenth street northwest. Both trucks crushed into a taxicab driven by Ernest C. O'Meara, 46, 528 Taylor street northwest. Two women passengers, Frances, 40, and Catherine, 42, both of 449 New Jersey avenue northwest, complained of neck injuries.

O'Meara's car and Thompson's truck both were thrown into the rear of a streetcar. O'Meara said his neck also was wrenched.

Russell Farr, 15, 913 M street northwest, suffered possible brain concussion when he was knocked off his bicycle in front of his home. He was treated at Emergency Hospital.

E. Lee Jones, 63, a resident of Washington, died yesterday in Bar Harbor, Me., it was reported here. Mr. Jones was one of the founders of the Burning Tree Club here.

A native of Chicago, where he was born in 1874, he moved to Washington many years ago, making his home with his sister, Helen Snow Jones, in McLean, Va., and Bar Harbor. Miss Jones and another sister, Mrs. William Ormonde, of Greenwich, Conn., survive.

Burial services will be held at Bar Harbor. The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Episcopal Bishop of Washington, will officiate.

NLRB Injunction Denied.

By the Associated Press.

Justice Pierce Butler, of the Supreme Court, yesterday denied a request by the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co. for an injunction to restrain temporarily the National Labor Relations Board from holding a hearing to determine whether the ship building company had engaged in unfair labor practices.

Residents Win Ban on Parking Along 28th St.

By Howard F. Wentworth.

Beginning today, parking on the east side of the street, from Cathedral avenue to Cortland place, will be prohibited at all times.

But, citizens protested last night, it took repeated efforts and finally the death of 4-year-old Richard Levy, 2929 Twenty-eighth street, to spur traffic authorities to action. The parking prohibition was urged by residents nearly a year ago.

A recent petition, signed by 30 community leaders, threatened to hold Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer responsible for the Levy boy's death—as well as all subsequent mishaps—unless "immediate" steps were taken to remedy the problem. The child was killed when he darted from between two parked cars.

Parents Are Warned.

In granting the parking ban request, Acting Traffic Director M. O. Eldridge warned:

"The parents of small children in Washington should realize that it is more dangerous to play in or to cross many of our streets than it would be to play on or cross railroad tracks. Streets are intended for vehicles, except at the crosswalks, where pedestrians have the legal right to cross and are entitled to legal protection.

"The unfortunate death of the little Levy boy should bring this situation home to every person in Washington—young and old—and especially to the parents of small children."

Eldridge pointed out that police records show the Levy accident to be the first on Twenty-eighth street since 1932.

"And I very much doubt," he added, "whether the restriction which has been agreed upon will entirely cure the situation, insofar as small children are concerned, unless the parents teach their children to exercise greater care when crossing the streets."

Last year, Eldridge pointed out, there were 109 persons killed in traffic accidents in Washington—97 by automobile. Of these, he said, 82 were pedestrians and 46 of these pedestrians were crossing streets in the middle of the block. Two of the 46, he continued, were children playing in the street.

Additional Complaints.

Additional complaints concerning the large number of illegible signs and markers throughout the city have been made.

Traffic authorities contend they have insufficient funds to purchase and erect new signs. It was suggested, however, that the present markers and warning signs could be repainted at small expense—and as a part of the current drive to reduce accidents and promote highway safety.

A survey of major thoroughfares conducted recently by The Post revealed at least 100 "stop" signs which could be renovated with new lettering and a coat of paint. Others, however, are beyond repair.

In the vicinity of numerous schools, warning signs have either been removed or have been toppled over. In nearly a year, the survey showed, no efforts have been made to restore these "school zone" signs.

Remedy Sought To Halt Death Of Park Trees

Underground Water Reported Rotting Roots of Big Beeches.

Unless the underground water condition that has brought death to a beech and a magnolia tree in Lafayette Park and is rotting the roots of other beeches is remedied soon, all trees of the region may become its victims, it was indicated yesterday.

That the beeches are dying first is considered natural. The beech is a temperamental tree and more easily upset than the elm. It is the first to die in almost any emergency, C. Marshall Finnan, superintendent of National Capital Parks, said.

Cause of excessive water at the tree roots still is a mystery, although the west side of the park is drier than it was a few days ago, according to Finnan.

Test pits sunk over the area show that most of the water now is standing under the half of the square nearest Madison place. The water's rise was slackened somewhat yesterday and did not reach the depth of 1 foot, which is the depth at which the parks workmen pump it from the roots of the trees.

Finnan said that while the water might be coming from defective underground waterways, he did not believe so.

He also expressed doubt that changes wrought as result of the $1,950,000 "rehabilitation" project could be responsible.

Fireman Is Fined

H. B. STRUDER, of the Alexandria Fire Department, who yesterday was fined $100 and costs in Charlottesville and given a 60-day suspended sentence for turning in three false alarms at fire boxes there. He was attending the Virginia State Firemen's convention, and, police said, was celebrating the occasion. Half his fine was remitted.

15 Hurt, 89 Arrested In C. I. O. Auto Strike

Philadelphia, Aug. 12 (AP).—Ball bats, milk bottles, and pipes injured 15 workers at the Heintz Automobile Body Manufacturing Co. plant today in a clash between striking and non-striking workers.

The strike was called July 14 by the United Automobile Workers of America, a member of the Committee for Industrial Organization. Police later arrested 89 men at the union headquarters.

Drowning Man Saved By Clever Fisherman

Black Cat to Make Jinx Day Leap With Parachute Jumper

It's Friday the thirteenth today, and a good many Washingtonians will avoid such things as walking under a ladder, stepping over a broom or crossing in front of black cats, but not Louis A. Barr, daredevil member of the Washington Parachute Club.

At exactly 8:13 this afternoon (Barr would have made it 3:13, but he doesn't get off from work until 4) Barr will jump from a plane some 2,600 feet in the air over Beacon Field, below Alexandria, and will carry a black cat as his companion.

Before making his jump, Barr will take time out to pooh-pooh such trivialties as breaking a mirror, spilling salt, walking under a ladder, getting the third light from a match, stepping over a broom and having his picture taken.

To make his jump a complete challenge to the superstitions of Friday the thirteenth, Barr will not open his chute until he is exactly 1,300 feet from the ground.

Annual Grave Opening Carried Out 144th Time

Sutton, England, Aug. 12 (AP).—A strange, annual rite of opening and inspecting a tomb erected in 1777 to see if the bodies were still there was carried out today for the 144th time.

Seven of the now extinct Gibson family are buried in the Sutton Parish churchyard tomb. Members of the family who died in the eighteenth century when fear of ghouls was intense left a trust fund to finance the yearly inspection.

Pilot's Body Found.

Salt Lake City, Aug. 12 (AP).—An 8-month search for the victims of the December 15 air tragedy was ended today, and the body of Copilot William Bogen, of Burbank, Calif., last of the seven to be found, awaited the arrival of relatives.

Rockville Girl Hurt in Car Crash

Miss Ella Wilson, daughter of Dr. Barratt Wilson, Rockville (Md.) dentist, was in a serious condition at Emergency Hospital last night from injuries suffered in an automobile accident late Wednesday night. Miss Wilson was first believed uninjured, but was hurried to the hospital by the Rockville Rescue Squad, where she was found to be suffering from a spinal injury and a slight concussion.

Montgomery County police said she was injured in an accident near Rockville involving cars operated by Hugh L. Davidson, of Bethesda, Md., and Llewellyn Fernald, 1514 Columbia road northwest. Police said Davidson was passing a third car when he sideswiped Fernald's car, headed in the opposite direction. Miss Wilson was riding in Davidson's car. Both operators were charged with reckless driving and released on bond to appear in police court August 31.

Safes to Be Forced By Bank Receiver

Unless owners of 91 safe deposit boxes in the defunct Park Savings Bank appear to claim their property before Monday, the boxes will be opened on that date, according to an order issued yesterday by Receiver John F. Moran.

After the boxes have been opened, Moran explained, their contents will be sealed and turned over to the Comptroller of the Currency to be held for owners.

The Gulf Oil Co. has contracted to buy the Park Savings Bank building at $92,500 if a permit can be obtained from the zoning commission.

Half-Hour-Old Boy Is Newest Recruit Of Sons of Legion

George Andrew Flynn yesterday became the youngest recruit of the Sons of the American Legion, and Squadron No. 24, which he joined, reached a total of 100 strong.

The youngster was unable to enroll himself, as he was only half-an-hour old when his father, Sergt. Harold Flynn, U. S. M. C., attached to the Air Service at Quantico, made him a member of the organization.

Sergt. Flynn and his wife, who, with the little son, is doing well, live in Mount Vernon Hills. The sergeant phoned Adjutant John Minnigh, who immediately made out a membership card and mailed it to little George.

"Now he can grow up with the organization," said Sergt. Flynn, who is the father of six other youngsters.

Farmers Are Warned Against City Houses

By the Associated Press.

Wallace Ashby, housing expert at the Agriculture Department, warned farmers yesterday against building houses on plans designed for city dwellers.

The farmer, he said, must arrange his home so that additions can be made with little expense. When the city dweller needs a larger house, he added, he usually sells his present one and builds or buys another.

Fascist Revolt Plotted in Fall, Nation Warned

By the Associated Press.

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, Aug. 12.—A government opponent charged in the Chamber of Deputies today that a Fascist revolution threatened Brazil and that the administration of President Getulio Vargas was tolerating it.

Joao Cafe Filho, an independent, criticizing what he called the inconsistency of the government in seeking to lease six over-age destroyers from the United States "to ward off Fascist menace from abroad," declared:

"I don't believe foreign Fascist regimes offer immediate peril to Brazil. But as Fascism within our borders is developing rapidly, there may come a time when sympathetic foreign regimes will seek to exert influence here similar to that which they exerted and continue to exert in Spain."

The speaker alleged Plinio Salgado, national chieftain of the Brazilian Integralist Action, which he described as a Fascist movement, planned to seize power by force before the end of the year. The green-shirted Integralist movement, claiming 1,000,000 members, recently nominated Salgado for president.

Leopold Diniz, junior administration member of the foreign affairs committee, interrupted Cafe Filho to observe, with reference to Argentine press objection to leasing of the destroyers, that he did not believe the Argentine government would make any reservations to the leasing.

"Brazil has always regarded sympathetically Argentine military and naval organization, as it always has regarded efforts of all South American nations to equip themselves for defense," Diniz said.

Elusive Dummy Of Alexandria Vanishes Again

Alexandria's famous "pent-house dummy" is missing again.

The plaster of Paris creation, dressed in a traffic policeman's uniform, was last seen Wednesday afternoon in its pent-house apartment atop the Belle Haven apartment atop the Belle Haven apartment nephew of the owner, John Loughran, Washington tobacco merchant, inspected it at that time.

Yesterday afternoon the dummy was missing. The same creature that has gazed at Washington crowds from drug store windows and alarmed police by hanging from Washington bridges, dragged its 5-foot 6-inch frame, weighing 160 pounds, down a steep ladder, through a janitor's room, down several flights of stairs and vanished during the night.

But Mrs. G. H. McEwen, manager of the apartment house, was surprised to learn of the disappearance. She didn't know of the "kidnaping" until a Washington paper inquired after its health yesterday afternoon.

U.S. Girl Believed Kidnaped in Paris Seen With 2 Men

Paris (Friday), Aug. 13 (U.P.).—The theory that pretty Jean De Koven, 22-year-old American dancer, was kidnaped collapsed last night when a ticket taker at the Paris Exposition testified that the Brooklyn girl, who disappeared three weeks ago, cashed a $10 travelers' check at his ticket window August 5.

He said he recognized Miss De Koven from pictures. She was accompanied by two men. All were laughing and in the highest spirits, he said.

It was learned that Miss De Koven quarreled with her aunt, Miss Ida Sackheim, before she disappeared. The aunt wished to go to Palestine, but the girl wanted to stay in Paris, it was said.

Miss Sackheim, who said she received kidnap notes demanding $500 ransom and published daily advertisements in efforts to contact her niece, denied that they had quarreled.

Low Flying Charged In Fatal Plane Crash

Daytona Beach, Fla., Aug. 12 (AP).—A Federal board investigating a plane crash that brought death to four persons and injuries to five Tuesday was told today the plane took off "too low" from the airport shortly before it struck a newly placed power-line pole.

Russell M. Grove, of Miami, head of the claims and safety division of the Florida Power & Light Co., told the board an investigation by his company showed the plane "could not have cleared the highway more than 17 feet."

Hull Declares Ship Loan Vital To Latin Policy

Fears Co-Operation Will End if War Vessels Are Refused.

to South American republics. The committee is to meet again next week.

Vandenberg, member of the committee, in a statement announcing that he was "unalterably opposed" to the plan, said:

"I consider it a potential violation of the spirit of Article 22 of our London Naval Treaty of 1936.

"We solemnly agreed 'not to dispose of any surface vessels of war by gift, sale, or any other mode of transfer, in such a manner that such vessels may become a surface vessel of war in any foreign navy.'

"With great respect for a State Department, which is actuated by high motives, I must oppose this amazing and unprecedented innovation as unwise, unsound, untenable and impossible."

Secretary Hull has declared that terms of the proposed leases would include a recapture clause and prohibit use of the craft for combat or use in any manner that would violate this country's international obligations. He has contended the ships, being leased only for training purposes, would not actually become a part of the Brazilian navy.

At his press conference yesterday he pointed out that the United States has Army, Navy, health, scientific, agricultural and other experts on education matters in the South American countries practically all the time. This country has constructed ships for the Argentine and Peruvian navies, and he was under the impression that up to a few years ago groups of students from Latin-American lands were being trained aboard United States warships here.

It is a question, he told reporters, whether this country wants to get out, practically entirely, from any co-operative relations with the other American nations. But he warned that if the United States does not assist the republics in the South other powers will do so.

Berlin (Friday), Aug. 13 (U.P.).—The Nazi-controlled press today again attacked the projected leasing of six United States destroyers to Brazil.

The Hamburger Fremdenblatt denounced the leasing as "a completely new and unprecedented brand of intervention."

Japan retaliated immediately.

Backed by the guns of Japan's third battle fleet, which lay off Shanghai, the Japanese charge d'affaires, Shinrokuro Hidaka, presented the Chinese vice minister for foreign affairs in Nanking with what was believed to be an ultimatum.

He demanded withdrawal of all Chinese armed forces from the Shanghai area and the removal of Chinese barricades and other defense works. The Chinese refused.

"There is no other way out except to act in self-defense and resist aggression," the central government's foreign office announced in Nanking. "The responsibility for future developments rests entirely upon Japan."

The tenor of the Chinese announcement of the Nanking war office led some diplomats to believe a break in Chinese-Japanese diplomatic relations, preliminary to a formal declaration of war, might be impending.

Britain mobilized one of her home regiments, the Welsh Fusiliers, at her South China colony of Hongkong, and prepared to dispatch them to this city to aid in protecting huge British investments.

She reportedly appealed to the United States to send an infantry regiment from the Philippines, but Washington said no such action was contemplated. More than 1,000 U. S. Marines of the permanent garrison already are in defense positions in Shanghai's international settlement.

The volunteer corps of the international settlement, including its American companies, was mobilized and sent into position fronting those held by Japanese bluejackets.

French Planes, Troops Scatter Syrian Rebels

Kurds Were Agitating for Freedom for Northeast Region.

By the Associated Press.

Beirut, Syria, Aug. 12.—French army planes and motorized infantry dispersed rebellious Kurds at several points in northeastern Syria today in an effort to end more than a month of disorders.

The French forces went into action in the upper Jerizeh district, center of Kurdish agitation for autonomy of that region from the rest of the Syrian mandate held by France, but due to gain independence in 1939.

The Kurds were driven from villages where they were blamed for numerous killings and other disorders. Reports from the trouble zone said many of the rebels also had been killed in clashes with native supporters of the government.

Infantry took over control of Amouda, a village populated mainly by Christians, after bombing planes attacked it and drove out the inhabitants. They found 15 bodies under ruins of looted and burned houses. Amouda was attacked August 10 by Moslem Kurds who pillaged about 100 Christian-owned shops and many homes.

Troops also patrolled Antioch, where authorities placed responsibility for the uprising on a pro-Turkish faction and Arab nationalists.

Printers Give 4 Days To Settle Seattle Strike

Seattle, Aug. 12 (AP).—Union printers were at work today in the Seattle Star plant under a four-day truce with the American Newspaper Guild.

The printers announced that if the guild strike against the Star, which started July 3, was not settled by Sunday midnight, they would not try to go through the picket lines. For two hours this morning the printers stood outside the picket lines. Pickets were withdrawn after a conference of composing room representatives and strike leaders.

Reports Tanker Torpedoed By Saetta, Flying War Flag; Franco Renews Drive to Obliterate Santander.

By the Associated Press.

Tunis Tunisia, Aug. 12.—Capt. Felix Gary, of the Spanish government tanker Campeador, reported to French officials tonight his vessel was torpedoed and sunk by the Italian destroyer Saetta.

Twelve members of the tanker's crew were lost, five of them dying when the first torpedo hit the engine room. Two other torpedoes struck the vessel.

The captain declared the attack took place at 8 p. m. last night off Kelibia, 50 miles northeast of here, with the vessel he identified as the Saetta flying "a war flag."

He said a second Italian destroyer, which was not identified, was present during the attack.

The vessel, loaded with 9,500 tons of benzine, sank soon after the captain ordered her abandoned.

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Border, Aug. 12 (AP).—The insurgents renewed their "drive of obliteration" against Santander today, while government air forces repeatedly raided insurgent-held cities west and southwest of Madrid.

Details of the Santander drive were withheld, but insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco claimed it had scored important advances.

This campaign is designed to wipe out all remaining government resistance along Spain's northern coast, now confined to the city of Santander and its surrounding provinces and Asturias farther west.

Insurgents said government planes flew over Avila six times, Talavera de la Reina three times and Toledo twice, each time being driven off by defensive aircraft before they could do any damage. All three cities are important insurgent centers.

Mrs. Metcalf, 87, Dies in Maryland

Mrs. Mahala Metcalf, 87, died yesterday at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. A. C. Christianson, of Silver Spring, Md. Mrs. Metcalf moved to Silver Spring from West Virginia about ten months ago.

She belonged to the Seventh Day Adventist Church 52 years. Funeral services will be held Tuesday in Parkersburg, W. Va., with interment at Walker, W. Va.

Survivors include four sons and two daughters, Walter Metcalf, of Parkersburg; Oakey Metcalf, of Plant City, Fla.; Prof. L. C. Metcalf, of Glendale, Calif., and Guy W. Metcalf, of Akron, Ohio, and Mrs. C. V. Leach, of Parkersburg, W. Va., and Mrs. Blanche Snider, of Silver Spring. Forty grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren also survive.

Harlan Firm Refused Dismissal of Charges

Harlan, Ky., Aug. 12 (AP).—Motions by the Clover Fork Coal Co. to dismiss charges against it of Wagner act violations were denied by Examiner McCann as he closed the lengthy National Labor Relations Board hearing today.

Defense Counsel Cleon Calvert declared an adverse decision would mean the company is "going to give the United States Supreme Court another crack at the Wagner act."

Ability to Strike Twice Proved By Lightning

Brazil, Ind., Aug. 12 (AP).—Mr. and Mrs. Ben Rollings learned from experience today lightning can strike twice in the same place.

Within a few seconds, they said, two bolts hit their house. The first passed down a radio ground wire. The second leaped to their iron bed and set fire to the mattress. They jumped from the bed and put out the fire. They were not hurt.

886,950 HAIRS TO GROW
Between the Ages of 20 and 50

ALL of the hair which is on your scalp today will fall out and will be replaced by new hair within the next four years. This normal "hair cycle" continues as long as your scalp is healthy. Baldness comes when some local scalp disorder (such as dandruff) keeps the hair-growing structure from replacing the hair which reaches maturity and falls out. To avoid baldness you must help your scalp to re-grow 81 hairs each day—886,950 during the "danger age"—20 to 50.
The Thomas' can help you by overcoming any and all of the 14 local scalp disorders which may be leading you to baldness. When you start Thomas treatment, your dandruff disappears, abnormal hair-loss stops, and new hair starts to grow on the thin and bald spots. You need a good head of hair—and you can have it! Call today for a complete scalp examination—no charge or obligation.

It's Our Family's Whiskey, neighbor—and it's sure Tasty and Mild!
Tim Stiles speechifying like a Washington senator!
Tim—he can kid us if he wants—but I love that old beech in Dogwood Gully. It was setting around on the rocks under the old beech that me and William and Tom got a lot of our schooling from Pa Wilken. and he was a fine distiller as ever there was!
Harry E. Wilken

There's some history behind this Family's Recipe you Washington folks are buying!
I personally know some of the folks that went and cut their names and everything into our old beech there—and some were real good friends of Pa Wilken. And I wouldn't wonder if others was acquainted with Grandpa Wilken hisself. A lot of those good folks have come and gone by now, but I sort of like to look on our big beech as an old friend of the family that has seen how The Wilken Family has always stuck together—each generation of us trying to do things the way that would make our fathers and grandfathers real proud and happy.
For at least 3 generations that I know of, us Wilkens have been whiskey making people. Each generation has spent its whole life studying out how to make the very mildest and tastiest whiskey—and then seeing to it that the next generation got the hang of it. So when you note the extra mildness and tastiness our Family's Recipe has got, I just wish you'd remember all the years it took to make it that way!

Black Started on Road to Fame by Blaze That Left Him With $10

Future Leader Moved to Birmingham and Became Judge and Prosecutor.

Senator Hugo L. Black, nominated yesterday for a place on the Supreme Court, can thank a fire for his present national prominence. If it had not been for the fire, in all probability he would still be a backwoods lawyer in Ashland, Ala.

The fire, back in 1907, destroyed his law office of one year in Ashland—and most of his possessions. He decided not to try to re-establish himself in Ashland, but to go to Birmingham. He did so, with $10 in his pocket, attracted attention as a clever trial lawyer; became a police judge, then the county prosecutor, went off to war and finally came to the Senate. Now he is within one step of sitting among the anointed on the Supreme Court.

Senator Black was born in Clay County, Ala., on February 26, 1886, the son of a storekeeper in not too prosperous circumstances. All his life he has had to fight for whatever he achieved—and he commenced fighting for an education.

After finishing primary school, he had to work. He skipped secondary school and college. For a short period he had ambitions to be a physician, since a brother had turned to that profession. But medicine did not appeal to young Black. He worked his way through the University of Alabama law school and received his degree in 1906—not quite 21 years old.

Returned to Ashland.

D He returned to Ashland and hung out his shingle. Then in 1907 came the fire—an event which Senator Black often has termed the truning point in his life. Except for that apparent misfortune, he has said, he might still be arguing the la win the cotton country near his birthplace.

In Birmingham, the young lawyer found the going hard—but he worked away and soon clients commenced to appear. He began to participate in local politics, as most lawyers do, and three years later found himself on the city's police court bench. Five years later he became the county prosecutor and showed that skill in the interrogation of witnesses and the assembling of evidence which years later was to give him the reputation of being the Senate's number one investigator.

uring the World War Black served in the field artillery, coming out of the conflict with the rank of captain. Returning to Birmingham, he settled down to the practice of law and, a little later, to married life. In 1921 he married Miss Josephine Foster, of Birmingham. Then in 1926 Senator Oscar O. Underwood, becoming disgusted with politics, decided to retire.

Black Joins Scramble.

Immediately, a mad scramble for his toga commenced. Black jumped into the melee. So did the present Senator John H. Bankhead. It ended up in a five-cornered primary fight, one of the sharpest Alabama had ever seen. Adding to the excitement was the fact that the Ku Klux Klan was at the height of its power in Alabama.

Contemporary accounts of that campaign are to the effect that the klan first gave its support to one of Black's opponents and then shifted to him. He was easily elected, although he polled less than a majority of the votes cast. He arrived in Washington with the reputation of having been elected by Ku Klux Klan support.

Within several years of his election, however, he attracted attention because of his industrious application to the problems pending before the Senate and because of his liberality on questions affecting labor. He also became a battler in behalf of the development of Muscle Shoals as a Government-operated power plant.

Drawn to Insurgents.

Through a community of interest in the public development of Muscle Shoals, Senator Black was drawn closer to the little group of insurgent Republicans than to the Democratic wheelhorses in the Senate. With the coming of the depression and widespread unemployment, he became a supporter of Federal relief back in the days when the Republican Administration regarded that as the high-water mark of radicalism.

Senator Black, however, did not really stand out among his fellow Senators until 1932, when he sponsored an investigation of the ocean and air mail subsidies. Then he displayed his skill for developing facts. He demonstrated that the Government was being mulcted by the airline and merchant marine holders of mail contracts.

The New Deal had come before he finishe his inquiry and it was chiefly as a result of the findings of the Black committee that the Roosevelt Administration canceled the air-mail contracts and subsequently revised the basis on which ocean-mail subsidies were granted.

30-Hour Week Bill.

As that was going on, Senator Black sponsored his 30-hour week bill, which was not at first taken seriously. But when it was passed by the Senate in the spring of 1933, the Administration awakened to the situation and successfully countered the Black movement with the NRA.

In 1935 Senator Black sponsored an investigation of lobbyists seeking defeat of the Administration's public utility legislation. Again he made front-page headlines with the skill of his interrogations. As a part of his inquiry he became involved in a heated controversy over the seizure of thousands of telegrams through subpenas served on telegraph companies and by utilizing the agents of the Federal Communications Commission.

In 1936 Black became chairman of the Senate Committee on Labor and Education, and this year sponsored the pending hours and wages bill. He also ardently supported President Roosevelt's Supreme Court reorganization plan. These were but the high lights of his Senate career. Indeed, during the last four years he has been found in the thick of virtually every battle involving New Deal measures—and he has supported them all.

Colleagues Congratulate Senator Black on Appointment to Supreme Court

Senate Delays Confirmation Of Black for Supreme Court

didate of the Ku Klux Klan. Whether such reports will be raised against him before the Judiciary Comittee was not known. Nor was it known whether hearings on the nomination would be held.

Senator Burke, however, contended the Senate had a duty to determine for itself whether the Black nomination was within the terms of the Constitution. He pointed out that the Constitution prescribed that "no Senator or Representative shall, during the time for which he was elected, be appointed to any civil office under the authority of the United States, which shall have been created, or the emoluments whereof shall have been increased, during such time."

Seeks Several Rulings.

Thus, the Nebraskan asserted the Attorney General should give the Judiciary Committee a ruling on these questions:

Whether the retirement act passed this session, under which Justice Van Devanter retired, had increased the emoluments of the office of Supreme Court justice.

Whether there is actually a Supreme Court vacancy—a question raised by Senator Borah, who contended Van Devanter remains a member of the Court, although retired, and that appointment of another justice would make a court of ten members.

Whether Congress in passing the retirement act did, by inference and implication, create additional places on the Supreme Court.

Senator Burke asserted that if the Attorney General declined to accommodate the Judiciary Committee by giving his opinion on these questions, he might seek, through a resolution introduced in the Senate, to have that body request the President to instruct the Attorney General to make such rulings.

There seems to be a divided opinion among lawyers in the Senate as to whether the passage of the Supreme Court retirement act had the effect of increasing the emoluments of the office or created new positions on the court.

Under the retirement act a Supreme Court justice was permitted to retire from active service on the tribunal after reaching 70 years of age and after 10 years' service and continue to receive his full salary of $20,000 annually. Prior to the passage of that act justices who wished to retire could do so only by resigning, and throw themselves on the mercy of Congress for a continuation of their salaries. In addition, once they resigned, they were required to pay Federal income taxes on their salaries, which has been held by the Supreme Court to be a diminution of the salary.

Senator Black's appointment was a complete surprise in every part of the city. Even the Alabaman had only a few hours' advance notice, he said, of the honor that was to come to him. Apparently none in the Senate had been consulted in advance, although one Senator said he had "doped out" the Black appointment a few days ago.

Confident of Roosevelt.

This Senator explained he was confident the President would name a Southerner to the Supreme Court place. He said he concluded, secondly, that due to the feeling aroused by the Supreme Court reorganization fight, the President would name a Senator in order to make certain his nomination was confirmed.

Looking over the Southern Senators, he said, he arrived at Senator Black by a process of elimination. No other Southern Senator has given the faithful and militant support to the President Senator Black has. Moreover, he pointed out that in recent months he had noticed the Alabaman had become a confidant of the President, visiting the White House three or four times a week—sometimes daily.

At all events, the President's intention was kept a secret until the minute it reached the Senate chamber. Even the White House withheld the name from the press until it was first revealed in the Senate. Contrary to the usual custom, White House reporters were told only that a nomination to the Supreme Court had gone forward.

The Senate attache who received the White House message, however, informed Senator Ashurst his Alabama colleague had been named to the court. As soon as the presidential message was laid on the Vice President's desk, Senator Ashurst arose and asked unanimous consent to consider the message.

Senator Johnson demanded to know what was in the message. Garner replied the message contained a nomination of an associate justice of the Supreme Court. Immediately the entire chamber became alert. Senator Black, in a white suit, sat quietly, not indicating by the change of a facial muscle that he was the nominee.

For a moment Senator Johnson and the Vice President quarreled over the propriety of reading the message. The Californian argued the nomination could be laid before the Senate only in executive session, and that he objected to do so out of order. The Vice President held a Presidential message could be laid before the Senate at any time.

"The clerk will report the President's message," thundered Garner.

"Wait a moment, please," Garner interrupted, and then added: "The chair is not familiar with this rule, and the parliamentarian advises the chair that where ther is objection tion he cannot lay down a message that should come in executive session in regular order of the Senate."

But the Vice President's ruling was academic, since by that ime everyone knew Senaor Black had been nominated for the Supreme Court vacancy. Senator Ashurst thereupon proceeded to attempt to have the nomination immediately confirmed.

"Immemorial" Custom.

"There is," Ashurst declared, "an immemorial rule in the Senate that whenever the Executive honors this body by nominating a member thereof, that nomination by immemorial usage is confirmed without reference to a committee for the obvious reason that no amount of investigation or consideration by a committee could disclose any new light on the character or attainments or ability of the nominee. If we do not know him after long service with the nominee, no one will ever know him."

Ashurst contended that for years Black "has stood in the white fierce light that beats about a public man, and no taint of suspicion or breath of prejudice has ever dimmed the brightness of his character and reputation.

"I cannot conceive," he added, "how the President could have made a wiser selection than the one he has made. I do not agree with many of the philcsophies of the Senator from Alabama. He knows that. I do not agree with them at all. I do not, forsooth, agree with some of the philosophies of the Senator from Nebraska, Mr. Burke.

"But only fools would question the patriotism, the integrity, the ability and the sound learning of either of these two gentlemen."

Unique Occasion.

Senator Burke said that despite the immemorial custom of the Senate "in the entire history of this country there has never been an occasion at all resembling the present one in reference to sending a nomination to the Supreme Court."

He urged that the nomination be sent to the Judiciary Committee. Senator Johnson arose to assert he did not wish to consent to immediate consideration, adding he had no desire to reflect on the Alabama Senator.

"But," he continued, "at this particular juncture, with a situation which has been one fraught with very potential dangers to the country, as some of us think, I believe a nomination to the Supreme Court is of paramount importance at present and that no custom heretofore pursued by the Senate should stand in the way of the rule requiring reference of the nomination."

The discussion ended when the Vice President pointed out that under the rules the nomination could not be considered until one day had elapsed, even in executive session, if a single Senator objected.

A number of Senators went over to congratulate Black, as the Senate turned to its regular order of business for the day. But small groups of other Senators—comprising several conservative Democrats—congregated around the Capitol and discussed the possibilities of blocking the nomination. Even those who most desired to do so felt rather hopeless about it. Even the Democrats who battled the President's court plan to its death were divided in their support of the Alabaman.

Democratic book salesmen to the Justice Department today, although he added wearily, "There's probably no more chance they'll be interested than the Rules Committee was today."

Snell, in his statement to the committee, said:

"Evidence from many quarters indicate that threats, intimidation and coercion are the regular routine sales methods employed by Democratic National Committee agents in soliciting individuals and corporations having business before the several departments of the Federal Government.

"Often these threats amount to demands closely approaching if not actually constituting political tribute for the privilege of continuing in cordial business relations with the Government."

Snell's numerous charges, backed up with a fat pile of exhibits, showed, he said, that:

The business in Washington of J. Edward Jones, of New York, oil royalties dealer, and under indictment in an oil case, might be facilitated if he bought books.

That twelve types of coercion and intimidation were used against Hildreth Frost, of Colorado Springs, Colo., an attorney, because he refused to buy $500 worth of books.

That a colored real estate man of San Antonio, Tex., subscribed for $1,000 worth of books while friends were trying to get a pardon for him, while he allegedly served a Leavenworth Penitentiary sentence. Snell was not certain whether this man was pardoned.

He said that another exhibit purported to show Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel-Biddle, of Philadelphia, bought $20,000 worth of campaign books six months before her husband was named by the President as Ambassador to Poland.

'Yes Men' Unfit For U.S. Bench, Wheeler Says

Montana Senator Upholds Independent Judges in College Address.

By the Associated Press.

Providence, R. I., Aug. 12.—Describing the Supreme Court as the bulwark of liberties guaranteed by the Constitution, Senator Burton K. Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, today declared "yes men" could never solve the problems of society.

Speaking at the seventy-fourth commencement of Bryant College, the Montanan asserted the "court-packing plan is dead—killed by those thinking people who feel that an independent judiciary is an indispensable and integral part of the American form of Government."

Fears for Bill of Rights.

"Yes men in Congress, yes men on the bench, yes men in our universities, yes men in our churches can never solve the problems of modern society."

Referring to the Supreme Court, Wheeler added: "We were called on to decide whether it should reflect the administrative whims of the party and the people in power or whether it should stand an independent co-ordinate branch of a democratic government."

Pointing to the plan's rejection in the Senate, he continued:

"The Senate and the people were not willing to forsake the principles and risk the future of democracy for any doubtful and temporary benefits which might result from a stream-lined government."

"If anyone can pack the Supreme Court," the Senator declared, "in order to have it override one portion of the Constitution, it can be packed in times of hysteria to override the bill of rights and take away our liberties.

Finds Liberalism Varies.

"It has been said that we must pack the Supreme Court to liberalize the Constitution. What is liberalism? Today in Europe liberalism and dictatorship are synonymous. To be a liberal in Italy you must believe in Fascism, and to be a liberal in Germany you must believe in Hitler.

"The slightest inroad on our political and personal liberties can not be permitted," the Senator concluded. "We will not surrender political liberty on the specious plea that it is the only way to accomplish economic liberty now."

Black Is a New Color On High Court's Roll

By the Associated Press.

There never has been a Black on the Supreme Court, but:

Henry B. Brown, of Michigan, was a member from 1891 to 1906.

Patrol Searches Lake For Ship With 3 Aboard

Muskegon, Mich., Aug. 12 (AP).—Coast Guardsmen were patrolling Lake Michigan tonight for signs of a missing fishing craft, with three occupants aboard, which left here Wednesday and has not been seen since. The men on board, John and Edward Sloan and Jack Ghezzi, all of Muskegon, were feared to have been lost in storms which swept this area last night.

8 Convicts Dig Way Out Of N. C. State Prison

Raleigh, N. C., Aug. 12 (AP).—Eight long term convicts escaped from State's Prison today by tunneling under a wall, and authorities expressed belief they had fled in a stolen automobile. Warden H. H. Honeycutt said the tunnel was discovered after the men were reported absent at a roll call tonight.

Cleveland, Hard Beset, Named Sympathizer to Court

His Nomination Compared Here To Roosevelt's

Justice White Held Same Legislative Views as His Chief.

In the nomination yesterday of Senator Hugo L. Black to the Supreme Court of the United States, history repeated itself, and it was history from the political handbook of President Grover Cleveland.

The appointment of Senator Black and the elevation to the highest tribunal of Senator Edward Douglas White in 1894 were very similar in circumstance.

White, a native of Lafuorche, La., was serving in the Senate when Justice Samuel Blatchford died, in 1893. As Blatchford had come from New York State, it was presumed on Capitol Hill that his successor would likewise be appointed from among the jurists there.

At the moment, Cleveland and the country were facing a crisis. When Cleveland was inaugurated, the Nation was on the verge of a great monetary panic, resulting from the Sherman silver law of 1890. There was world-wide fear that the country was in danger of going on a silver basis, and gold was hoarded.

Cleveland in Difficulty.

So acute was the distress that Cleveland called the Congress into special session on August 7, 1893, for the avowed purpose of repealing the silver purchasing clause of the Sherman act. Despite hard efforts to break the Administration lines, the Senate passed the unconditional repeal bill on October 30.

It was pointed out, and sometimes remembered yesterday, that Cleveland was hard beset in those times. It was significantly recalled that Senator White distinguished himself through the issues by advocating the views that the President was known to hold.

Justice Blatchford had died and his place had to be filled. White was unaware at the time that through the curious ways of politics—particularly through the bad blood which existed between Cleveland and Senator Davis B. Hill, of New York—he was to ascend the bench and later have the renown of being the most profound justice on the principles of civil law who ever sat on the court.

Abandoned Precedent.

Cleveland, without consulting Hill, submitted two appointments to the Senate. One was William B. Hornblower, New York jurist; the other Wheeler H. Peckham, of the same State. The Senate, with Senator Hill most active, rejected both. Cleveland sent in the name of Senator Edward Douglas White. The Senate confirmed him within an hour. The President, thereby, was credited with throwing to the winds a custom which for 88 years had kept a New York man on the Supreme Court bench, and also with having had the political acumen to recognize the existing precedent that the Senate would not reject its own.

His appointment, political observers recalled yesterday, was a most happy one, even though it had shown the President alive to all the tricks in the political handbook. White in 1910 was elevated to Chief Justice by President Taft. His death occurred in Garfield Hospital, Washington, May 19, 1921.

Should Black be confirmed by the Senate, he will be the fifth Congressman to be elevated to the Supreme Court while serving in the Congress.

The four were Oliver Ellsworth, of Connecticut; John McKinley, of Alabama; Levi Woodbury, of New Hampshire, and White, of Louisiana.

3 Senators to Confer On D. C. Adoption Bill

The Senate yesterday named three conferees who, together with House conferees, will iron out minor differences in the bill to reform local methods in adopting babies. The three are Senators King (Democrat), of Utah, Overton (Democrat), of Louisiana, and Capper (Republican), of Kansas.

The bill provides for an investigation of both the adoptive parents and the child, requires a six-month trial period before adoption papers are made final, and insures the child's inheritance and succession rights. About 75 babies are adopted in Washington every year.

Pretzel Truck Stolen.

A truck loaded with pretzels was stolen yesterday from a lot near the Ebbitt Hotel, Wilbur A. Miller, of Philadelphia, reported. Miller said a large pretzel was painted on the side of the yellow and blue truck.

Postmaster General James A. Farley expressed an Administration view when he said the "appointment will be highly pleasing to those millions of our citizens who earnestly desire that our Government shall be conducted along liberal and progressive lines so that the social and economic welfare of all the people will be of prime consideration in both the laws and Governmental policies."

Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, ranking minority member of the Judiciary Committee, refused to commit himself on the nomination, but said he saw no reason for sending it to committee for study.

Outright opposition was expressed by Senators Austin (Republican), Vermont, a member of the sub-committee appointed to consider the nomination; Bridges (Republican), New Hampshire; Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, and King (Democrat), Utah.

Those who received the nomination in silence included Senators Walsh (Democrat), Massachusetts; Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi; Byrnes (Democrat), South Carolina; Clark (Democrat), Missouri; Copeland (Democrat), New York, and others.

But Senator O'Mahoney (Democrat), Wyoming, one of the Judiciary Committee members who opposed the Roosevelt court bill, hailed Black's appointment and said he would "vote to confirm him today."

Sentor Van Nuys (Democrat), Indiana, another leading court bill foe and Judiciary Committee member, said "that's the Chief Executive's responsibility and I'm willing to accept his judgment."

Ability "Ordinary."

Columbia, S. C., Aug. 12 (AP).—Cole L. Blease, who served in the United States Senate with Hugo Black, of Alabama, nominee for the Supreme Court, said today he considered Black "a man of very ordinary ability."

"I know him well," Blease said, when informed of the nomination, "and I consider him a man of very ordinary ability—and you can quote me on that."

Governor Plans No Action on Successor Until Confirmation.

By the United Press.

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 12.—Gov. Bibb Graves of Alabama tonight indicated he would take no action on a successor to Senator Hugo Black, of Alabama, until the Senate confirms his nomination as a justice of the United States Supreme Court.

Leaving for Jacksonville, Ala., tonight, the Governor announced "there won't be any appointments made from this office this week." Graves will not return to the Capital until Saturday.

A source close to the Governor said he will not seek to succeed Black in the Senate, choosing to abide by an Alabama law which prohibits a person from holding a political office within a year after the expiration of a previous term.

Unexpectedness with which President Roosevelt nominated Black for the high court slowed general speculation on his successor immediately. Mentioned, however, were Donald Comer, Birmingham industrialist; Representative Frank Boykin, of Mobile; former Senator Thomas Heflin, Representative Luther Hill, of Montgomery, and Representative Henry B. Steagall, of Ozark.

Under Alabama law, Graves must make a temporary appointment if a Senate vacancy occurs four months or more before a general election.

He also is authorized to call a special election whenever he desires, but such action is not mandatory.

Black's term runs until November, 1938, since the regular stated Democratic primary is scheduled for next May, it was deemed improbable that Graves would schedule a special election.

The Governor said he is "intensely happy" over Black's nomination.

"We have a man on the court now who has the head, the heart and the fortitude," he said. "It is a well-deserved promotion and is certainly a credit to Alabama."

Home Town Excited.

Ashland, Ala., Aug. 12 (AP).—This rural Alabama cotton town was "all excited" tonight over the Supreme Court nomination of its most distinguished son, Senator Hugo L. Black.

Clay County Judge F. B. Thompson said "everybody is rejoicing, all the people are excited."

The old home where Black was born still stands on a farm near the town, a sister of the Senator, Mrs. Daisy Black Roselle, lives here. She was ill today when word came that President Roosevelt has selected her brother for a Supreme Court seat.

Judge Thompson said the old friends of the Senator here "probably will have a celebration."

Black's father and mother, William Lafayette Black and Martha Ardellah Toland Black, are dead. A brother, Lee Black, lives near Birmingham.

Third Alabama Man on Court.

By the Associated Press.

Senator Hugo Black, if confirmed by the Senate, will be the first Alabama member of the Supreme Court since Justice John A. Campbell's term ended in 1861, and the third justice in the State's history.

The Anti-Lynching Bill.

Senator Borah's vehement opposition to the Wagner-Van Nuys-Gavagan anti-lynching bill was probably an important factor in the Senate's decision to lay it aside. No member of the Senate is a more conscientious champion of human rights than Mr. Borah. Nor is any better qualified to speak upon the fundamentals of American Government. When the Senator from Idaho threatens to filibuster against a bill to prevent lynching it should certainly be examined with the greatest care.

No civilized person attempts to justify this barbarous American practice. The growing indignation of the country against the illegal murder of persons suspected of crime is reflected in the reduction of lynchings from over 100 per year prior to 1900, and more than 25 per year before the World War, to only 9 in 1936. Consequently, there is widespread sympathy with the efforts of legislators completely to wipe out atrocities of this sort. It is the method by which the aim would be achieved that raises controversy.

Opponents of the postponed bill are convinced that its detrimental influence on our structure of government would be more important than its beneficial effects on law enforcement. It would impose severe punishment upon local authorities failing to protect any person from lynching. In short, the Federal Government would become a policeman to enforce the law upon local policemen. Even when the Government attempted to enforce the prohibition law against local violators there was intolerable confusion. A Federal attempt to enforce a statute against local officials elected by the people might produce a still more serious tangle.

The weakest provision of the bill, however, is that which would permit the Government to bring suit against a city or county in which a lynching might occur. All the people of that county would be humiliated and punished for the dastardly crimes of a few individuals. To some extent lynching might be discouraged by this practice. On the other hand, reversion to the tactics of the "carpetbag" days might permanently retard the encouraging rise of anti-lynching sentiment in the South.

"It is a perfect outrage," says Senator Borah, "to turn the Federal Government into the public affairs of the States and cities." Under our scheme of government problems of this sort are traditionally left to the States. There are some notable disadvantages in that plan, as in all forms of self-government. But the advantages of local autonomy should also be considered before such basic changes are made.

Under these circumstances it is gratifying that the anti-lynching bill has been postponed until the next session of Congress. In a less hurried atmosphere Congress may be able to see the problem with clearer perspective. Its task will then be one of actively discouraging the lynching evil without destroying the equilibrium between Federal and local functions of government.

Vocational Training.

President Roosevelt signed the Interior Department appropriation bill "with much reluctance," the item of nearly $14,500,000 for vocational education seeming to him particularly ill-advised. In a statement to Congress he explained the basis for his objection, ending with the hope that not all the money will be used. His reasoning in this statement is excellent.

The appropriation is $10,000,000 more than the estimate of the Budget Bureau for vocational education. This alone should have forbidden Congressional approval. And there are further reasons against it. The Government, as the President points out, is not ready to embark on an enlarged vocational education program.

To begin with, there is no program; and if there were, trained teachers to administer it would be lacking. Moreover, a procedure for distributing funds fairly among the States has not yet been devised.

An expansion of vocational education is very likely in order. This is strongly indicated by an extensive survey conducted by a committee of the National Education Association. The great majority (70 per cent) of children who now pursue their education through high school, the increasing complexities of present-day employment and changing industrial conditions which discourage apprentice employment are three insistent arguments for wider vocational training. But large appropriations to supply it should wait on expert agreement as to the desirable line of expenditures.

The Black Nomination.

Men deficient in the necessary professional qualifications have occasionally been named for the Supreme Court. And qualified men have sometimes been put forward primarily because they were also politically agreeable to a President. But until yesterday students of American history would have found it difficult to refer to any Supreme Court nomination which combined lack of training on the one hand and extreme partisanship on the other. In this one respect the choice of Senator Black must be called outstanding.

Hugo L. Black received the degree of Bachelor of Laws from the University of Alabama at the age of 20, and was almost immediately admitted to the bar of that State. He served as a police judge for 18 months and as a county prosecuting attorney a little longer. He was in general legal practice in Birmingham for the eight years prior to his election to the Senate in 1927. That is his legal background, paralleled if not improved upon by thousands of lawyers throughout the country.

If Senator Black has given any study or thought to any aspect of constitutional law in a way which would entitle him to this preferment, his labors in that direction have been skillfully concealed. If he has ever shown himself exceptionally qualified in either the knowledge or the temperament essential for exercise of the highest judicial function, the occasion escapes recollection. Undoubtedly he does possess that skill in the selection and utilization of evidence which is a part of the successful prosecutor's equipment. But it is to the Supreme Court that he has been named.

The reasons for Senator Black's nomination obviously have nothing to do with any demonstrated eligibility to a seat on the highest court in the United States. Professionally he has no such eligibility. But politically his claim to the favor of Mr. Roosevelt is persuasive.

From the outset of the New Deal this Alabama Senator has been a faithful henchman of the President. None has been more regular in his support; none has been less inclined to use the critical faculty to avert Administration blunders. On two issues of current importance, in particular, Mr. Black has stood at the side, or even ahead of, Mr. Roosevelt. One is Federal regulation of wages and hours. The other is a restoration of the AAA.

The paucity of other reasons for the nomination makes it appear that Senator Black is being named to the Court primarily to approve the constitutionality of such legislation, assuming its passage by Congress. And this emphasizes what was the President's real purpose in the court-packing endeavor, now happily brought to nothing. Justice Black—if he so becomes—cannot himself guarantee title to legislation which all or most of his conscientious colleagues believe to be unconstitutional. But six conformists of his type could have gone far to sabotage our organic law. Thus the virtue of this nomination—perhaps its sole virtue—is found in its revelation of what the country has narrowly escaped.

There is ample evidence to show what the judicial attitude of Mr. Black to the Constitution will be, if he is confirmed. Prior to the NRA he introduced legislation which would have made it a crime to move into interstate or foreign commerce any commodity produced in an establishment where any person worked more than a 6-hour day and a 5-day week. This 30-hour week proposal revealed the shallowness of the Senator's grasp of both economic and constitutional problems. It headlined him as a leader in the movement for an almost unlimited centralization of Federal power. It should be remembered now.

Precedent would seem to indicate immediate confirmation by the Senate of this nomination of one of its members. But a completely novel situation demands reconsideration of apparent precedents. The nomination now before the Senate is closely connected with an unusually bitter and exhausting struggle, in which Mr. Roosevelt's unprecedented attempt to pack the Court with six subservient judges was finally defeated.

Now, as a final post-war skirmish, he names one of his active partisans in that struggle to the vacancy presumably opened by Justice Van Devanter's retirement. Under the circumstances it is obviously incumbent upon the Senate as a body to consider the qualifications of their colleague for this high office, just as conscientiously and searchingly as though he were an outsider.

This is the more vital because President Roosevelt, in making the nomination, has as yet produced no arguments to support it. In favor of it he has not said, and it is to be feared he cannot say, anything comparable with the message which President Wilson sent to Senator Culberson on May 5, 1916, supporting the nomination of Louis D. Brandeis. As valuable background for the present issue a salient excerpt from that letter is printed below.

Qualifications Of A Justice.

The careful thought and frankness with which President Wilson considered a controversial Supreme Court nomination is indicated by this conclusion of a letter which he wrote to Senator Culberson when confirmation of Mr. Justice Brandeis was pending:

"Let me say by way of summing up, my dear Senator, that I nominated Mr. Brandeis for the Supreme Court because it was, and is, my deliberate judgment that, of all the men now at the bar whom it has been my privilege to observe, test, and know, he is exceptionally qualified.

"I cannot speak too highly of his impartial, impersonal, orderly, and constructive mind, his rare analytical powers, his deep human sympathy, his profound acquaintance with the historical roots of our institutions and insight into their spirit, or of the many evidences he has given of being imbued to the very heart with our American ideals of justice and equality of opportunity; of his knowledge of modern economic conditions and of the way they bear upon the masses of the people, or of his genius in getting persons to unite in common and harmonious action and look with frank and kindly eyes into each other's mind, who had before been heated antagonists.

"This friend of justice and of men will ornament the high court of which we are all so justly proud. I am glad to have had the opportunity to pay him this tribute of admiration and of confidence; and I beg that your committee will accept this nomination as coming from me quick with a sense of public obligation and responsibility."

One Step Forward.

Approval of the May bill by the House suggests that Congress is so weary of the local airport controversy that it is ready to patch up present facilities and again postpone its final decision. Discouraged by ten years of muddling on this issue, the District will be grateful for Senatorial concurrence in even that small measure of improvement.

Closing of Military road and leasing of 53 acres from the Arlington Experimental Farm will not make Washington Airport a first-class terminal for modern air liners. Each of those provisions in the May bill should substantially increase the safety of flying to and from Washington. Yet the local airport will still be one of the smallest landing fields in any large city, although only two other airports in this country handle more traffic. Le Bourget field near Paris is being expanded to five times the size of Washington Airport, and Tempelhof, in Berlin, to seven times its size.

It is obvious, therefore, that the local airport problem is not solved by the May bill. Even if the lagoon at the edge of the landing field were filled it would add only about 20 acres. Moreover, that plan, not included in the May bill, is vigorously opposed by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission on the ground that the proximity of the lagoon to the Mount Vernon Highway would create a serious new hazard.

Since it is apparent that development of a permanent airport is still a difficult problem which may not be settled for a number of years, the proposed improvements to the present field become the more important. The May bill ought to be passed.

Edith Wharton.

It was once said of Edith Wharton that "she writes leisurely, as if the world were still a place where people had time to read beautifully balanced sentences and to contemplate exquisitely involved ideas." Indeed, Mrs. Wharton had little traffic with the seamy side of life either in her writing or her mode of living. The appointments of her existence were as luxurious as those with which her novels were befurbished. Her books portraying New York society might well have borrowed their elegance from her autobiography. Then, as if to confound those critics who dubbed her a mere portraitist of social eras, she wrote the classic "Ethan Frome."

When Mrs. Wharton was just 11-year-old Edith Newbold Jones, she began a book in which a Mrs. Tomkins said to a Mrs. Brown, "If I had only known you were going to call, I should have tidied up the drawing room." That note of order became her theme song. It was a dread of upsetting this order which struck the tragic keynote to "The Age of Innocence." Again, in "Ethan Frome," it was lack of courage to buck the existing order which doomed that taciturn New Englander. Not until "Hudson River Bracketed" did Mrs. Wharton take cognizance of a more liberal attitude toward divorce and allow her characters to kick over the traces to happiness.

Mrs. Wharton was too much the gentlewoman and the romantic to be considered a historian of the times she portrayed. She daintily stepped over the mud puddles of vulgar life and looked down her letters at the middle classes. Her vision was clear but limited. Nevertheless, her death leaves a distinct gap among the interpreters of mohair modes and it will be a long time before another novelist even approaches the stark beauty of "Ethan Frome."

No Customers' Yachts.

From the St. Louis Star-Times.

"But where are the customers' yachts?" said the visitor to the New York Yacht Club after his host had pointed to one after another of beautiful craft anchored there and named its broker or banker owner. The visitor would have realized the silliness of his question, if he had first read the report of the Securities and Exchange Commission on stock market operators as announced recently in Washington.

The report covered the period before the 1929 crash and showed 300 per cent profit for certain stock operators and 40 per cent loss for their customers. While the report only covered the operations of one $200,000,000 investment corporation, a similar story with different figures would doubtless cover the operations of most of the others during this same period.

Things are somewhat different since the New Deal invented the Securities and Exchange Commission. In the old days, the New York Stock Exchange was one great racket run largely for the benefit of the big shots. All of which is another way of saying, "The customers ain't got no yachts, Buddy."

1,999th Anniversary.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I must disagree with the statement of William Lyon Phelps in The Post of August 10 that this month marks the 2,000th anniversary of the birth of the Emperor Augustus.

The year A. D. 1, immediately following the year B. C. 1, with no year "zero" intervening. In computing the interval between a B. C. date and an A. D. date, it is incorrect to add the respective dates together. For example, August 10, A. D. 1, is clearly just one year after August 10, B. C. 1, but Mr. Phelps' method, adding the two "ones" together, would result in an interval of two years between these dates.

As Augustus was born in August, B. C. 63, he was 62 years old in August, B. C. 1. A year later, in August, A. D. 1, he was 63. Thirty-six years later, in August, A. D. 37, he would have been 99 years old. Accordingly, August, 1937, is the 1,999th anniversary of his birth, and the bimillenial will not occur until August, 1938.

Second Precinct Traffic.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It's a crying shame for reflections to be thrown on No. 2 Precinct because of its high automobile accident record.

No. 2 Precinct is one of the colored precincts. It's the precinct where all self-opinionated persons think they do not have to obey any laws. Stop signs? Oh, we don't need to stop! Red light? We can start off on the yellow and hit that guy before he can get across the street!

Here is what is in the short block from W street northwest to Trumble street, on which is located Freedman's Hospital, a car pit, which is a traffic blocker, and three undertaking establishments which at any time have funeral cars standing by. In the next short block to the south is the ball park. And there is the big streetcar-bus terminal, where, if they can't slip upon you while you are walking past the entrance (of course on the sidewalk), they will smother you by racing the motor and letting the smoke get you.

Trumble street is very narrow at Georgia avenue, and at the corner there is a taxi stand. A big baking company, which is on the opposite corner, has lots of trucks coming in and out. A grade school is two short blocks east on Trumble street, Freedman's Hospital, Howard University, Minor Normal School and Banneker Playground are one block away. Trumble street stops at Georgia avenue, where streetcars stop to change from overhead to underground trolleys. Cars going south will deliberately stop right in front of the street, although the conductor sees one car on the pit and one in front of him and common sense tells him all he can do is block Trumble street by moving down so far.

Streetcars north and south, automobiles north and south, ambulances howling, the dead wagons, and here comes a taxi with its horn wide open with a person that has been hit, shot, cut, or seriously ill, and it has got to turn in that 30-foot (I have just measured it) street, with the taxi stand right at the corner.

Washington, Aug. 10.

The Third-Term Bill.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The bill proposed by Senator Copeland to ban third terms should have the unanimous, vigorous, overwhelming and early consent of Congress. The mystery is why this duty has been neglected for 50 or more years.

Perhaps it was because a bill was never needed before; but it is quite obviously needed now, if our present form of government means as much as a last year's raincheck.

Our New Deal has developed too many millions who suckle at the public trough and value a handout above good government. Of course, such a law implies no prejudice against the ambitious or lust for power of any present incumbent. Oh, no, naturally, but for the future—you understand, what?

LIBERTY LEAGUE RECRUIT.

Financing HOLC Health.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As a taxpayer I have read with interest the announcement in your paper of last Friday that a group of 2,000 employes of the Home Owners Loan Corporation has decided to establish a health clinic. It is stated that the maximum cost to a member is $3.30 a month, which will include practically complete health service to their families and three weeks' hospitalization.

Mr. Howard Acton of the Home Owners Loan Corporation is quoted as saying that Government money may be used to finance the plan, if necessary, and, if dues do not cover expenses, Home Owners Loan Corporation funds will be available to make up the deficit.

I should be interested as a taxpayer to know if the Home Owners Loan Corporation or any other group of Government employes are privileged, at their discretion, to use public funds for any enterprise they may consider advantageous to themselves. And, also, if there is any limit to such diversions of public funds.

"Parking Hogs"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: With parking space at a premium both on the streets and in some parking areas assigned to a fortunate few, I wonder why people take up so much space in which to park their cars.

The regulations state that no less than 3 feet from the car in front of you must be allowed. Is it that these "parking hogs" have such a keen desire to so strictly observe the rules that they go the law one better and allow themselves a good 6 feet or so? One would think that with conditions as they are, drivers would be a little more considerate of their fellow men and take not more than the allotted 3 feet. No—that wouldn't do—they'd have to give their steering wheels an extra turn or two in order to get out. The same conditions are encountered where angle parking is observed.

One might understand the owner of a new car being somewhat terrified of having his car bumped but they seem to be in the minority.

Perhaps it would be a good idea to have these "hogs" wear some kind of identifying insignia so that others bent on parking could dash ahead and get a single space before they took a double one for themselves. The spirit of being "all for oneself" eventually turns out for the worse—so why not co-operate—it makes driving (and parking) so much more pleasant.

"Gentiles Only."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Isn't it high time that Americans stopped hugging themselves in the belief that "It can't happen here?" Especially when it is happening here daily—as I was painfully reminded recently.

My wife and I were visiting in Washington, and sought relief from the heat by driving to the nearest bathing resort. The biggest billboards directed us to Beverly Beach, Md. When we got there we were confronted not by the usual "Welcome to our city," but by two large signs, standing like bristling watchdogs, one on either side of the road—"Gentiles Only."

I will not attempt to describe the feeling aroused by this gratuitous piece of chauvinist effrontery, beyond saying that it was a humiliating compound of belligerence and nausea, but I wonder whether the Declaration of Independence would have been signed had it contained an expression like "Gentiles only are created free and equal." How would the legend on the Supreme Court Building look if it were changed to read "equal justice under law to Gentiles only," or if, for the first line of the patriotic hymn, we were to sing "My country 'tis of thee—Land of Gentiles only?"

I believe it to be the moral and civic duty of every citizen to protest any affront to a peaceable law-abiding minority, whether it be on the other side of the world or in his own backyard. It is perhaps unfortunate that bigoted intolerance, though Constitutionally outlawed in this country, permits of no legal redress. SAMUEL GREENER.

Ending Japanese Aggression.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Permit me to suggest a practical way to help China end Japanese aggressions, and destroy her as a menace to world peace. Let the leading powers which control the raw materials necessary for the manufacture of war munitions embargo all sales and shipments of such materials, as well as arms and munitions, to Japan. If this can be brought about by an agreement among such powers, Japan would soon have to discontinue her aggressions against China because she has practically none of the raw materials in question, and such as she has on hand would be soon exhausted.

While such an act on the part of the powers would be for Japan a casus belli she could not fight the leading powers, and would have to accept the situation, and cease her unwarranted aggression, and violations of the treaties to which she is signatory, and of the treaties these powers have with China.

Congress can easily amend our so-called neutrality law, which should never have been enacted, so as to permit co-operation with other powers as herein suggested.

Ice Cream In Parks.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Just what is the terrible crime in selling ice cream in the Government parks?

Eager to criticize and condemn men for not wanting to work and then arresting and fining them when they are trying to earn a little something for themselves.

Too bad that both the police and their higher-ups are not obliged to resort to that way of making a living for a few weeks.

A $2,500 Home.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: After years of struggle and many reverses, I have purchased a suburban lot and saved enough cash to build a home for my family, to cost not more than $2,500. Despite high taxes I hope we will be able to swing it and give my family a roof over their heads that they can call their own.

I was brought up to believe it was more desirable to have something you could call your own than to use something that belonged to somebody else, even if it was more pretentious, and live like you could afford it. In this connection, I have had quite a shock. I have a daughter, almost a young lady, who thinks her friends would look down on her if we lived in a house we can afford. They tell her that they plan to live in PWA houses costing from $4,000 to $6,000, which she thinks will place them in a higher social scale, although their income is not as large as mine. My trouble is that my income is too high to permit me to occupy a $6,000 Government house and too low to enable me to live in one of my own, costing more than $2,500.

I read in your paper where the Associated Press says that "WPA architects and engineers have insisted, in their $140,000,000 slum clearance campaign, that every room be an outside room and that modern kitchen and bathroom equipment be installed." If I could build a house like that, I believe my daughter would be satisfied. Would the PWA supplement my $2,500 with another $2,500, or is it the policy to spend from $1,000 to $1,300 a room in building homes for persons who have nothing of their own to contribute? C. A. DOERR.

Men Do Not Like War

SOME people insist that war is inevitable because "men like war." They contend that, at bottom, man is not only a venturesome and combative animal, but a potential killer.

If tested by the established principles of psychology, this facile explanation for the "inevitability" of war might be found seriously wanting. War itself offers, of course, the severest and at the same time the fairest test of this theory. What has happened when organized society has given full sanction to murder? In time of war, with all moral restraints swept aside, do men rush to volunteer for military service in order to give vent to their supposedly inborn lust for blood? Not for a moment.

* * *

It might have been supposed that in the American Revolution, when the colonies were attempting to overthrow a military tyrant and to secure democratic self-rule for themselves, every last man among the patriotic colonists would have been ready to lay down his life for this holy cause. Yet Washington and his fellow rebel leaders had the devil's own time in keeping enough troops on hand to meet the Hessian mercenaries. Men had to be cajoled, shamed and bribed into serving with the Continental Army or with the various militia units.

This aspect of the Revolution was repeated in the War of 1812. Again bounties had to be paid in generous measure. Each recruit was offered, in 1813, over and above his normal bounty, a cash payment of $24, three months' pay in advance and 160 acres of land, while officers were paid $4 a head for each recruit they procured.

And again the volunteers balked at the military hardships and risks. On August 23, 1813, the day before the Battle of Bladensburg, the army for the defense of the Capital consisted of only 1,400 regulars (400 horse, 400 infantry and 600 marines) and 1,800 militia. On the day of the battle, a brigade of 2,200 untrained militia was rushed over from Baltimore to take part in the fighting.

In the Mexican War, the militia forces gave a slightly better account of themselves. But of volunteers for service with the Regular Army in Mexico, there were very few indeed. The enlisted strength of the Army had been increased by law from 7,580 to 17,020. But after six months of fighting, its strength was only 10,690 officers and men.

Lincoln's call to defend the Union in 1861 brought out a surprising number of volunteers—the only time that has occurred in the country's history.

Yet these volunteers, as well, had to be lured on to the field of battle. Some were given an extra month's pay and a bonus of $25 to boot. Others drew down a straight cash payment of $50. Still others were granted $100 each for enlisting for a period of three years. This was not enough. In July, 1863, Lincoln called for another 100,000 militia, but only 16,631 responded.

About this time, it was decided that only compulsory service—conscription—would overcome the scruples that American manhood had with regard to killing and dying on the battlefield. The first draft brought out only 35,782 men, "of whom at least 26,000 were substitutes." Men who could afford to do so bought their way out of military service.

As such things go, the War with Spain was hardly more than a diversion, an outing for the kind of men in whom the brute instinct still survives as a fairly positive force. Even so, Congress decided that it would be wise to raise the war pay of the soldier by 20 per cent, in order to attract volunteers.

In the great crusade for democracy, which was probably the "holiest" war mankind has seen since the religious wars of the Middle Ages, the theory that men will instinctively fight at the drop of the "moral lid" was put to a supreme test. The manhood of America was called upon to do battle in 1917, not only for American democracy and liberty, not only for all of those values which the American people supposedly hold precious, but also for the concept of universal freedom and democracy, for civilization itself.

But there was no maddening rush of patriots to the recruiting stations. Within a few months, a few hundred thousand volunteers—out of more than 20,000,000 eligible males—did present themselves for war service, and of these, at least 40,000 offered themselves as candidates for commissions.

I still vividly remember the sergeant at Quantico who at bayonet drill kept repeating over and over: "You gotta learn to hate 'em. Stick 'em in the guts, the dirty Heinies. They'll stick you. They'll rip your bellies open. They hate you. Kill 'em."

Then And Now.

A few years ago the United States had so much trouble that some people were extremely pessimistic. The distress was caused by depression. The situation had a bright side; there was extraordinary sympathy and co-operation for relief of distressed people.

Now the United States, recovering from the depression at least theoretically, has much trouble. The affliction now is class hatred capitalized and, in some instances fomented by politicians. In sum, the United States may be more sorely afflicted now and the cure may be far more difficult. (South Bend Tribune.)

The Choice In Spain.

A GREAT MANY of us who at the outbreak of the Spanish war thought of the struggle as one between democracy and Fascism have since been compelled to revise our views and admit that whatever the outcome democracy cannot win, and is not even represented. The loyalist side is communistic and anarchistic, and the Moscow interest is strongly represented in the military and political operations of the defenders.

Bill Carney, of the New York Times, was viciously denounced by the communists and undercover communists in this country after he left Madrid for Paris and revealed the fact that the Soviet ambassador was head man on the loyalist side.

But since then other information has confirmed his report, and there are many believers in democracy who are not only sorry but resentful for having been led to waste honest democratic indignation on behalf of a masquerader. They no longer have even a rooting interest. Their horse was scratched.

IN THIS SITUATION there is, nevertheless, a lively competition to enlist the sympathy of Americans, as though there could be a choice between one culture and the other of the same foul disease. The progovernment propagandist, communists, as well as those mulish democrats who are too stuborn to admit that they have been mistaken, insist that, even if the government is receiving help from Russia and from communists elsewhere, the government cause is preferable to that of the rebels, because Hitler and Mussolini are on the rebel side.

The propagandists of the opposition still harp on the fact that the loyalist side is an enemy of Christianity, particularly Catholicism, which is true in the formal sense, although it is impossible to believe that religion could be utterly exterminated in the Spaniards, even if the communists and anarchists should finally win. It is confusing, this, because how comes Hitler to be fighting on the side of Christianity and Catholicism in Spain, while his spies and sluggers make war on them in Germany?

The exasperating truth is that there are Christians and Catholics on the government side and enemies of Christianity and Catholicism on the rebel side, altogether apart from the Mohammedian Moors who accompanied Gen. Franco in his early campaign.

But democracy is nowhere in the situation. Democracy is not even in the middle, and anyone who believes in democracy only, with no choice between the two savages but identical extremes, can offer no encouragement. As to religion, it is clear, of course, that Franco has the mission, but in view of the writings which have been published on the rebel side of the case there is no very strong temptation to throw in with the revolt for that reason.

• • • •

FATHER WILFRID PARSONS, the noted Jesuit journalist, wrote last fall that the great tragedy of Spain was that in the nineteenth century the working masses of Spain apostatized from the church.

"And it is well to remember," Father Parsons wrote, "it was poverty, destitution and injustice which made them apostatize. They got to hate the church because they hated the friends of the church who exploited them and whom the church did nothing to rebuke or correct. The words of Pope Leo XIII 45 years ago went unheeded, and his great encyclical, 'Rerum Novarum,' was neglected. Now the church is reaping the sad fruits of that neglect in the loss of so many souls and in the destruction of its churches."

More recently Miss Aileen O'Brien wrote in the Jesuit publication America that it was treason of a certain duchess to dance a tango solo in a night club in Madrid, because this act of informality, like heresy, undermined the state. A Spaniard of the Franco side had said that he would have shot the duchess for this, and Miss O'Brien wrote, "The words were perfectly clear to me; moreover, I fully agreed with them."

• • • •

DEVELOPING her contention that it was treason of the duchess, punishable by death (commandment notwithstanding), to dance the tango solo in a Madrid night club, Miss O'Brien explained, "The Spaniard is democratic in that a peasant, speaking to a marquis, may address him as 'Thou.'"

This measure of democracy will seem a little scant, I am afraid, to most Americans, but Miss O'Brien proceeds to say that the peasant obeys the marquis, and above the marquis the King only, because they have received from God their right to be obeyed.

"But," says Miss O'Brien, "if he obeys the King and is not free to do otherwise, neither is the King free not to command. The king must command and the peasant must obey, because such is the will of God."

So that is God's will, is it?

Of such is the demand on the piety of American believers in democracy to put in with Hitler, Mussolini, Franco, castor oil, suppression, oppression, the infant soldiers of the dictators, persecution, paganism, militarism, massacre and everything that democracy detests and fears.

As between all this and complete ungodliness, what can an American possibly choose?

Japan's Objectives

By Mark J. Ginsbourg.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

Part II.

Shanghai.

LATE IN 1935, while Japanese forces were consolidating their newly won gains in North China, Maj. Gen. Hayao Tada, commander of the Japanese garrison in Tientsin, issued his famous "Paradise on earth" statement. The declaration, entitled, "The Basic Conception of China," was actually made "off the record," for the guidance of Japanese newspapermen attached to the garrison headquarters. Gleeful reporters, however, headlined it, carved for it a secure niche in the Oriental hall of fame.

Said the statement:

"The first step to enforce Japan's national policy in China is to make North China a land of peace where the Chinese and the Japanese can live in peace and enlightenment, a market where Chinese and Japanese commodities and capital will not be subject to jeopardy but will circulate freely—a paradise for coexistence and mutual prosperity of the two nations.

"Such a step will help the healthy growth of Manchukuo in the north and demonstrate to that part of China lying to the south that the happy state of mutual dependence for existence and co-operation among Japan, China and Manchukuo, with the Japanese empire as the center of gravity, can ensure peace in western Asia. Such is the importance of the North China question, upon which depends the success of the outward expansion of the Japanese empire."

First Explanation Of North China Goal.

MAJ. GEN. TADA'S journalistic effort was probably the first coherent abstract explanation of the Japanese army's aims in North China. It culminated nearly three years of continuous Sino-Japanese skirmishes and Nippon's steady advance south.

Early in 1933, the Japanese Kwantung army brought its Manchurian interlude to a victorious end by evicting the opium-trafficking Governor of Jehol and his army of 140,000 from the province after a nine-day drive

Without pausing to rest after the strain of a winter campaign, the Japanese troops continued to march south to the gates of Tientsin and Peiping. The pretext was that the concentration of Chinese forces close to the Manchurian border constituted a grave danger to the safety of the new state.

Unable to halt the advance of the Japanese juggernaut, the Chinese were obliged to sign on May 31, 1933, the inglorious Tangku truce, named after the little dusty town of Tangku, close to Tientsin.

Under the terms of the agreement, the Chinese consented to the demilitarization of East Hopei, between the sea and the Great Wall. While no Chinese troops were allowed in the zone, small Japanese garrisons were stationed in the bigger towns and the Japanese were allowed to use planes to see that the Chinese were faithfully carrying out the terms of the accord.

Shortly afterward, Maj. Gen. Kenji Doihara, whom the wary War Office has now relegated to the obscurity of a divisional command in the interior of Japan, came from Manchuria, where he headed the Kwantung army's omniscient secret service, to try his hand at remodeling North China's destinies.

Immediately, the north was thrown into turmoil. Aided by the Kwantung army's enormous secret slush fund, Maj. Gen. Doihara began to cultivate a "popular demand" for autonomy, "to protect the people of North China from the corruption and tyranny of the Kuomintang government."

Northern Warlords Succumbed To Influence.

WITH THE Kwantung army again concentrating its troops along the Great Wall, and with Maj. Gen. Doihara taxing to the utmost his powers of gentle persuasion, the northern warlords began to waver in their, at best shaky, loyalty to the Central government. To help them to make up their minds, the Japanese authorities issued a series of warnings against the alleged violation of the "spirit" of the Tangku truce by the Chinese.

In a desperate effort to save at least a few of the five northern provinces, Nanking delegated its war minister, Gen. Ho Ying-chin, to reach a compromise with the Japanese. This compromise, now known as the Ho-Umetsu agreement, was signed in June, 1935, and provided for suspension of the Kuomintang (China's sole legal political party) in Hopei and Chahar provinces; suppression of various anti-Japanese organizations; removal from Hopei of all former Manchurian troops; a thorough reorganization of the Hopei and Chahar administration, to make it more independent of Nanking; and removal of a large number of high officials, including the governor of Hopei.

Hopei and Chahar were thus virtually lost to China, but the three other provinces—Suiyuan, Shansi and Shantung—were apparently saved. But Maj. Gen. Doihara was still dissatisfied. In October, 1936, the Kwantung army again massed its troops along the Great Wall and charged the Chinese with violating the Ho-Umetsu agreement. On October 29, the Japanese army issued its "last warning," and less than a month later one Yin Ju-keng, a Japanese-educated Chinese official, proclaimed the independence of the demilitarized zone, created under the terms of the Tangku truce.

The efforts to sever Hopei and Chahar from China sadly failed. But the Japanese army succeeded in forcing the creation of a semiautonomous and pro-Japanese Hopei-Chahar Political Council, through which it planned to enforce its will upon the two provinces.

Hirota Was Preparing "Three-Point" Program.

MEANWHILE, in Tokyo, Foreign Minister Koki Hirota was preparing to issue his famous "Three-Point" program of Sino-Japanese co-operation a few weeks after Maj. Gen. Tada's "earthly paradise" declaration.

The three points provided for: (1) Suppression of the anti-Japanese movement in China; (2) co-operation among China, Japan and Manchukuo in the economic development of North China, and (3) joint tripartite war on communism.

The latter point immediately became the battle-cry of the Japanese army in North China. Hopei and Chahar were to become the base of a crusade against the Comintern—at first in China, later in Outer Mongolia and Siberia.

A year later Maj. Gen. Tada's successor, Lieut. Gen. Tashiro, told me that in his belief suppression of communism was a more important aim than the advance of Japanese economic interests in North China.

For a detailed expose of the army's policy in North China Gen. Tashiro directed me to an unnamed lieutenant colonel whom he described as "my chief of Economic General Staff." In an early morning interview this officer expounded for my benefit the Japanese army's aims and aspirations in the north. Together with Maj. Gen. Tada's declaration, this expose provides the army's full rationalization of its actions in North China. His statement, given here as I jotted it down, said:

"Japan's most pressing problem is her relations with Russia, and we mean to settle it in one way or another. In studying our relations with China, we always keep Soviet Russia in mind.

"While Russia is menacing the very existence of Manchukuo, the Chinese Communist Party, directed by Moscow, is threatening the security of this country.

"But while we can protect ourselves from Soviet military aggression by strengthening our defenses, the spread of Communist ideas is more difficult to check.

"A sovietization of China would bring ruin to this country and make our own position very difficult. Therefore, we intend to defend ourselves and serve the cause of humanity by opposing Soviet activities in China. This naturally affects our relations with the latter.

"We do not believe that communism would save China from misery. But, unfortunately, it is not difficult for Soviet agitators to sway the countless Chinese hungry farmers.

"No Territorial Ambitions In China."

"JAPAN has no territorial ambitions in North China. Aware of the fact that the sovietization of the region would menace her, Japan merely intends to prevent it by all means within her command.

"The best method to check the spread of communism is by raising the economic welfare of the people of North China. Next comes the welfare of our own people, whose gains will mainly be indirect.

"The army's chief aim is the stabilization of conditions in North China—stabilization, economic, political and social. With the region enjoying peace and prosperity, the people of North China would not readily entertain Communist ideas. We are working for the regeneration of the entire Chinese people. Great Britain and the United States should co-operate with us in solving China's problems and in developing the economic resources of North China.

"We do not want to drive the Chinese out of North China. This country is like a sick man who requires a blood transfusion. This should be carried out by other nations, who must see to it that the blood is good. We have not taken many concrete steps in this direction as yet. At present the army is only guiding the local Chinese administration in carrying out reforms which prepare the ground for future work.

"One should not describe North China as a Japanese colony. At present all local revenues are being sent to Nanking. We hope that this policy will be abandoned in the interest of the people of North China.

"We are not against the Nanking government. We are merely urging it to reform its administrative machinery, which is admittedly inefficient. At present we have no intention of extending our plans for Sino-Japanese co-operation beyond the Yellow River. What we want is to set an example that would convince Nanking of the necessity for changing its policies to benefit the entire nation.

"Japanese interests are opening cotton mills and power plants here and are engaged in other activities in co-operation with the Chinese. This is a part of our plan to improve conditions in North China. But I repeat—we are doing all this to combat the Red menace, and other nations, including the United States, must co-operate with us in our war on the enemy of mankind."

Reduced to a sentence, the aims of the Japanese army in North China are to obtain raw materials for the industries of Japan, to obtain a market for Nippon-made goods, to prepare a military base for a flanking blow upon Outer Mongolia and Siberia.

For these aims the army is prepared to fight.

(The End.)

"Elephant Dance"

SUPPOSE WHEN YOU awoke tomorrow morning, instead of dashing around to get dressed in time to gulp a cup of coffee, scan the headlines and hop a bus, you arose leisurely in an apartment in Bangalore, India, stepped into a perfumed shower and had a body-servant to salaam you into a dressing gown. Suppose as you rode to work, instead of unconsciously noting the familiar park statues, the Government buildings shimmering in a hot morning sun, the continuous stream of traffic, you were awed by the majesty of bullocks and buffalo, native carts and "slender women, in the upward curving line of their saris, balancing lovely things on their heads with delicate arm, elbow, wrist and finger upraised in a lovely bow . . . carrying two brass pots, one above the other, like a golden temple decoration."

If you think these miracles can't happen here in a mundane world of memoranda, time clocks and fruits in season, then put yourself in the place of Frances H. Flaherty, wife of the director who filmed "Elephant Boy." Leaving two daughters in school in London, Mrs. Flaherty set out with her husband, another daughter, a son and small party for Bombay, where Flaherty was scheduled to film Kipling's "Toomai of the Elephants." Mrs. Flaherty's letters to the two sub-debs left behind compose her book entitled "Elephant Dance."

But it is her delightful sense of humor, her fine discriminatory powers in discerning what will be of interest to desk-bound readers as well as two schoolgirls, and her exquisite descriptions which make this much more than just another experience-in-the-jungles book. As John Collier says in the preface, it "would be to absurd to discuss the writing as writing, as it would be to talk of the brushwork of a smile seen in the street."

• • • •

ONE MIGHT ALMOST call the filming of "Elephant Boy" an accident. At the very least, it was the culmination of a series of plans and setbacks, an ambition and a compromise. The Flahertys started out to write the story of a Spanish boy for the movies, basing it on a real event—the pardoning by public acclaim of a fighting bull in the ring. But there was, as they discovered later, so much labor involved in determining a bull's best camera angles that it was decided to switch the scene to India, change the Spanish boy into an Indian and make the hero an elephant instead of a bull.

Almost before they could say "H. H. the Maharajah of Mysore" that gentleman had arranged that every assistance possible be given them. Apparently the Mysore Chamber of Commerce, or its Indian counterpart, thought the film would be good publicity for the Maharajah's home town. It was not as if the project were unique. India, strangely enough, is the second largest consumer of raw film in the world. There are 180 companies producing pictures for the natives. (That should make a quaint addition to Willy's geography book.)

Naturally, the major problem facing the Flahertys was to find "Toomai." They had written of him, back in '29, "He is a little orphan boy and hanger-on of the Maharajah's stables." And six years before the trip to India they had specified that "his father died, and the elephant, the beloved elephant which had been in the family since his grandfather's time, went mad with grief and broke his chains and went off into the jungle." Little did they dream that all these qualifications would ever actually be incorporated in one small brown body. Then they found Sabu.

• • • •

BUT MRS. FLAHERTY'S concern with India was not wholly professional. True, she kept a strict lookout for potential talent and unusual picture sites. Meantime, her active, curious woman's mind was constantly being amazed and delighted at what she found in the countryside, the people, the customs. Her word-pictures are as clear as the many beautiful photographs accompanying her text. Describing a bright October day's march on elephants through the jungles of Melkote to see black buck sporting on the plain beyond their camp, she writes: "The buck didn't know whether to be frightened. They sprayed from the hollow and capped the rise, every delicate line from hoof to head and horn flung up sharp and clear. And we rolled after them for the sheer joy of seeing them leap again, up, up into the sky—beautiful curves shivering like glass the first rays of the sun."

There is a dry-point quality in her words about the traffic on an Indian road. "From end to end of India they trek unceasing. It is like a sort of nightmare to think of it. It is like the migration of ants one sees, no beginning, no end, unbroken, crowding, jostling, a whole mysterious way of life beyond all common comprehension." I am reminded here of the self-written obituary of Lawrence of Arabia, in which he stated: "Genius raids, but the common people occupy and possess."

It is impossible, as well as undesirable, to overlook the part which elephants play in this excellent book. They are, literally and figuratively, the biggest portion of it. When an elephant runs amuck it is said that he is "musth." The symptom is a white spot which appears on the beast's temple between his eye and his ear and from which oozes a fluid. Whenever this occurred, another elephant had to be trained for the part. Directors in Hollywood, who complain of temperament in their stars, apparently "don't know nothing."

• • • •

OF THE CANDIDATES for the role of "Toomai," Mrs. Flaherty said "there is one boy among them whom Bordie (Mr. Borrodaile, our chief cameraman) brought in the other day; found him at the elephant stables. He is different from the other sprightly little sprouts. He is rather pathetic, more reserved, an orphan. His mother's family came from Assam, where the people are part Mongolian. His name is Sabu."

It was of that same little fellow that Nelson Bell wrote in this paper last month: "Sabu seems to have an instinctive sense of acting for the cameras and microphones . . . There is power in the lad's portrayal of the picture's stellar role."

"BEFORE THE COCK CROWED," a new mystery selection of the Crime Club, is about a murder in Virginia . . . Dan Terrell, my Operator 13, calls attention to the fact that the jacket says it's about a murder in Maryland and that Clifton Fadiman, in reviewing it for The New Yorker, upholds the Maryland myth . . . Why, Uncle Clif, is it possible you're an old blurb-believer?

SOME 60 YEARS AGO, a penurious, neurotic governess in South Africa wrote a novel and signed it by the pseudonym "Ralph Iron" . . . Almost overnight the author became famous . . . Her real name was Olive Schreiner . . . There hasn't been an awful lot written about that untamed, violent, little-exploited background since then . . . But Houghton-Mifflin announces "The Turning Wheels," by Stuart Cloete, for September and it should do a lot toward filling that big gap . . .

LET'S PLAY a little game . . . It won't hurt you a bit and it will help to fill this column . . . (1) What famous authoress, whose initials were J. A., was glad to die at 40? And how do we know it? (2) What nineteenth century authoress fell in love with her tutor, wrote passionate letters to him, only to have his daughter turn them over to the British Museum many years later? (3) Who wrote a book in which the hero and heroine only meet for a brief period at the end of the novel?

ANSWERS: (1) Jane Austen. Her sister, Cassandra, wrote a letter, admitting it. (2) Charlotte Bronte, who fastened all her hopes on M. Heger, school teacher . . . (3) Mary Borden dared to do this in "Flamingo" . . .

Tom McCarthy

RENO, NEV., Aug. 10.—It would probably be inaccurate to say that I slept in the "reefer" of a freight car bound for Reno. I tried to sleep in the bouncing metal-lined ice box, but have no way of knowing whether I succeeded. I don't recall any surcease from the constant, bruising contact with the inverted metal gutter pipes which formed the floor.

TOM McCARTHY.

I wadded my raincoat into a buffer and tried to protect the more vulnerable bits of my anatomy. Every time I would get settled, in anything akin to comfort, the floor would come up and wallop me. When I became used to that the train would come to a halt with a sort of hiccough continuity, which would send me sprawling across the surging floor, clutching at the walls.

When the train resumed speed after coming to a halt, I would have to stand up until the riding smoothed out. Human flesh wasn't built to withstand the battering which that floor was designed to administer.

When it became light enough to see the countryside I groggily climbed out on the roof. It was more of a task this time, to pull myself through the hatch which was at once my window, door and source of ventilation. I hoped against hope that we'd arrived in Reno. The train came to a stop and I read the sign on the station. We were in Elko, Nevada, and I was in for at least another 12 hours of buffeting.

• • • •

THERE WAS a stopover in Carlin, Nevada, and I ran into three hoboes who had come in on another freight. Two of them were spindly oldtimers who had lived on the freights for years. One of them recalled the fine handout he'd received in Carlin four years before.

The third hobo was a soot-covered young man in his twenties, with a week's growth of beard. Sockless and overalled, he was heading home to Los Angeles, after two years of intermittent bumming. Riding freights, sleeping in jungles and living on handouts, he had come down from Maine in little more than a week.

"I suppose you'll be glad to get home, after two years on the road," I remarked.

"No," he said, with a great deal of bitterness. "I'm not going home to much. I'll work in my old man's hash house. He serves cheap food, at cheap prices, to cheap people."

The young tramp said that he'd held only a couple of jobs in two years. He'd worked on a relief project in Washington, D. C. Unshaven and unwashed though he was, and wearing a soiled shirt he'd been given by another tramp in the jungle at Ogden, he spoke well, exhibited a good vocabulary and laid claim to a high-school education.

"I worked out at Greenbelt, Md.," he said, "until they caught up with me. I used to have a racket whereby I'd check in when work began and check out when it was over. In between times I'd just beat it away and spend the time any way I chose. I used to get away with three or more days a month like that, but they finally got wise and tossed me out."

• • • •

GLAD TO FIND somebody who knew Washington, I told him I'd spent some time there. He asked me if I remembered the transient house at Logan Circle. I told him that I couldn't recall anything about it.

"That was the one they had such a furore about," he said. "A lot of the road boys were living there, working on relief jobs and going to school. One, I think, was at G. W. Some were taking high-school courses and there was one gang of us that used to have class over in Wilson Teachers.

"Well, they were cutting down on relief funds and it looked as though we were going to lose out. We made a sob story out of it. We got the papers to take up our case. It was a real tear jerker. They had pictures of us poor homeless boys, singing around the piano, playing ping-pong and studying. Everybody thought it was awful that we were going to be deprived of our chance for an education."

He smiled broadly as he told the story.

"It was a real laugh," he said, "the excitement we kicked up. Everybody wanted to help us out, and we got so much sympathy that they made a separate project out of us and appropriated about $10,000 for it. As I recall, it was a little better than $10,000. Thirty days later, after everything was fixed up, there were only about 10 boys left. About two-thirds of them scrammed away. We got a big kick out of the excitement we raised, though."

He strolled down into the town to "hit up" some house for a meal.

• • • •

TWO FREIGHTS were rolling out of Carlin about a half an hour apart. The train with the sealed cars, which offered accommodations only in the "reefers," pulled out first. I hitched on and prepared myself for another 12 hours.

It was hot as we rolled across Nevada. A searing wind came out of the desert of sagebrush and the sun beat down. It was impossible to ride in any comfort on the roof of the car. The air was so hot that it made breathing difficult. I retired to the "reefer" which, though uncomfortable, was 15 to 20 degrees cooler than the roof.

The train left Carlin at 9 in the morning and all day long it rattled and clanked across that desert of sagebrush which is a great part of Nevada. Towns were 25 to 50 miles apart and there was nothing to break the monotony of that constant clicking of the wheels, magnified into a roar in the metal confines of the ice box. The other 'boes, wiser to the trade, had waited for the second freight which, though slower, offered box-car accommodations.

At Farnley, 35 miles out of Reno, I hopped off. I was afraid that in a transient mecca like Reno, they might be sending the 'boes right through, when they attempted to get off the freight. I washed the soot and cinders off at an irrigation ditch preparatory to thumbing a ride into the divorce capital of the world.

• • • •

"WHERE ARE all the people in this State?" I asked the native Nevadan, who gave me a lift. "I've been riding all day across the State and what towns I did see wouldn't hold more than a couple hundred people."

"Brother," he said, with the pride which I was to find characteristic of the people of Nevada, "we may not have number, but we've got everything else. I guess we've only got 100,000 people up and down the State, but we've got the finest State in the Union."

"You're going into Reno," he said, "and they call it the biggest little city in the world. That's just what it is. You'll find more life in Reno than you'll find in all California, and it hasn't more than 20,000 people.

"We've got everything here. We've got rich mines, rich farmlands and rich grazing lands. We don't have the taxes the rest of the Nation has. The State government doesn't owe a penny outside the State. Our bonded indebtedness is less than $1,000,000, and it's the one State in the Union where you can do as you please without anybody bothering to mind your business for you.

"Brother," he said, "we've not only got wine, woman and song, but we approve of them. We legislate to protect them."

"How do you Nevadans feel about being the divorce capital of the world?" I asked him.

"Why, if they can't live together, you may as well split them up," he said. "If they're old enough to get married they ought to be old enough to know whether they can make a go of it. Anyhow, it suits us. It brings in millions every year."

109 Sent to Camp By Variety Club

Because of the generosity of the Variety Club, 17 underprivileged mothers and 92 children are enjoying a two-week vacation at Camp Good Will, which is operated by the Family Service Association at Chopawamsic, Va.

The club donated the major portion of funds secured from the recent boxing bout between Freddie Steele and "Hobo" Williams to finance the camp during its last period.

A committee from the club, which is composed of Washington representatives of moving picture companies, will inspect the camp Tuesday. The club plans to operate its own camp next summer.

Crenshaw Will Aid In War Risk Suits

Col. Allen Crenshaw, for many years a member of the bar in Florida, has been appointed attorney in charge of war risk litigation in the office of United States Attorney Leslie C. Garnett. The appointment was made to speed up lawsuits pending against the Veterans' Administration because of disputes over World War service insurance policies.

More than 400 such suits are already on the books, and approximately $5,000,000 is involved.

Col. Crenshaw, a native of Alabama, is a World War veteran, and he has had eight years' experience representing the Government in litigation similar to that he will contest here.

National Savings Staff Entertained by Willard

William B. Willard, vice president of the National Savings & Trust Co., entertained a large group of men employes, including directors and senior officers of the trust company Wednesday night at Burning Tree Golf Club. Moving pictures of the baseball team were shown.

Col. Frederick A. Fenning, one of the directors, spoke.

Four District Bills Are Sent to Senate

Five bills previously approved by the Senate District Committee were reported to the Senate yesterday, as follows:

An amended House bill to compel taxicabs to carry insurance, a bill to license real estate brokers and salesmen, a bill to extend westward toward the Potomac River the public building area of the Federal Government, and a bill requiring ligatures and sutures be sold only by firms licensed by the Secretary of the Treasury.

Senator Ashurst (Democrat), of Arizona, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, favorably reported a bill which provides a first-degree murder charge for those who kill during the commission of a felony.

Garfinckel Executor Here.

Streets Program Conference Today

Discussions will begin today at the District Building on plans for street condemnation under the highway program, with Surveyor Dent, Commissioners Sultan and Hazen and Director of Highways Whitehurst present.

Largest project under consideration is in the suburban area between Fort Totten Park and the Soldiers' Home, where a long street is to be built some day, according to Commissioner Hazen.

About $200,000 is available for purchase of land which lies in the path of projected streets, Hazen said. Sultan said no definite condemnation proceedings will begin today.

3 Italian Fliers Killed.

Rome, Aug. 12 (AP).—The Stefani (Italian) News Agency announced tonight three fliers were killed and two injured Monday when a seaplane from the Leghorn Airport fell into the sea near Marina de Pisa.

Child With Vagrant Fails to Remember Where He's 'From'

A knight of the road and a 4-year-old boy attracted the attention of the police yesterday when both were seen loitering under the bridge at Seventeenth street and Pennsylvania avenue southeast.

Fifth Precinct police took the strange pair into custody. One gave his name as John E. Gupton, 45, of no fixed place. The other gave his name as Tommy Gleason, 4, of some place, but Tommy couldn't remember where.

Gupton was charged with vagrancy.

Police sent Tommy to the Receiving Home and began to make inquiries as to who might have lost the blue-eyed, blond-haired boy.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson.

A 4-4 Fit.

The great advantage of the trump suit which is distributed 4-4 in the pernership hands is that trumps can often be drawn, leaving each player with a long trump for ruffing or for additional entry. Even if this desirable trump holding is in a minor suit, the partnership may find that it gives them their best chance for a slam. In the hand below the solid spade suit would not have produced a slam, whereas careful play brought home the slam in diamonds.

The basis for North's four-diamond bid (which paved the way to the slam) was the fact that he himself had much better than an opening bid, together with a good fit in his partner's suit. He was perfectly willing, therefore, to go past the three notrump level, knowing that at worst the partnership would be safe at game in a major, or even at diamonds. He hoped, of course, that his show of strength would encourage South to bid a makable slam.

West opened the King of clubs, dummy winning with the Ace. The hand looked easy at first, since a trump break would permit declarer to draw three rounds of trump, run the spades to discard his club and then knock out the Ace of hearts.

South, dealer.

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ◇	Pass	4 ◇	Pass
4 N T	Pass	5 ♣	Pass
6 ◇	Pass	Pass	Pass

But when South laid down the Ace of diamonds East's play of the nine-spot gave him pause. His normal insurance against four to the Jack would have been to take the second trick with dummy's Queen. But the play of the nine indiacted that West rather than East was likely to have four trumps. The fall of the nine also made it possible to use the Queen-8 as a tenace. The second trump trick was therefore taken with declarer's King. East discarded and South congratulated himself on his acumen. His difficulties, however, were not yet over.

He did not draw trumps, for eventually the Ace of hearts would have to be knocked out and then the opponents would take a club trick. South ran three rounds of spades, discarding his losing club. Fortunately for him, both East and West followed to the three rounds of spades.

Only then could the Ace of hearts be knocked out. When East took his Ace of hearts he returned a club, South trumping with the ten. The five of trumps was then led, dummy finessing the Queen-8 and drawing trumps. Declarer then easily took the rest.

Thrope said he and Miss Lieberum set out from Stratford last night for a sail down the river. A swift current swept them out into the sound. "The boat overturned," he said. "We tried to swim ashore. Charlotte was almost unconscious after we had swum quite a distance, so we clung to an oyster stake off Walnut Beach. I tied her to the stake with my shirt and swam for help."

Farewell comment of a Russian diplomat who returned to Moscow and is now meditating in Siberia: "Washington is not a real city; it is like a backdrop. Some day the curtain will rise and the drama will begin" . . . And Moscow sounds from here like the fusillade in a Western movie.

• • • •

Whatever became of the invitation to go fishing together after the election which President Roosevelt tendered Alf Landon when they met during the campaign? . . . Two New Dealers now in the heavy sugar: Taussig and Rex Tugwell, of American Molasses, a corporation dedicated to planned economy.

• • • •

Yesterday the Southern Senators made it clear that nice people ought to be allowed to lynch, if nasty people can. . . . Some of the statesmen on the Hill hire secretaries who are also good cooks.

• • • •

Latest ogler of the White House is Senator Harry Moore, of New Jersey; his poor-boy-to-President build-up is beginning . . . I may not be any Shakespeare, but out on the prairies they'll tell you I'm one of the best beauty judges who ever selected a campus queen. When do the sages on the Hill choose the prettiest secretary, as they do out in the 48 legislatures?

• • • •

One of my favorite statesmen is Representative Rabaut, of Detroit, because he has nine children . . . Why do some of the honorable members mention their wives by name in their biographies, while others merely write "Married?" . . . Their ladies ought to mention this at breakfast.

• • • •

It's a mingled blessing to be a Senator or Representative from Maryland or Virginia or other nearby States . . . While it's possible to go home for week-ends, it's also possible for constituents to toot in to spend the day with their members . . . When they spend the day they spend the day . . . And the boys back home expect their heroes to commute home for every clambake.

• • • •

Maybe it's only a legend that one of the Congressmen from Texas has yet to attend a session; he's still circling around looking for a place to park . . . I got lost in Rock Creek Park while driving downtown the other day, finally, emerged on Sixteenth street, and had driven a mile northward on the way out of town (without a cry of protest from anyone) before I came to. What we inlanders need is maps engraved right on the windshield.

• • • •

Another thing to do to reach the social heights in Washington, so the old settlers tell me, is to have your calling card at the White House, thus assuring yourself of an invitation to at least one reception a year . . . This sounds rather fishy to me. I think my informant was pulling my leg; but she said: "Why, it's easier to get into the White House than to get into the movies!"

3,000 Stage Night Parade to Open Legionnaires' Department Convention

Lorraine Rosch, 11, of 322 Douglas street northeast, and her dog, Skippy, form the center of a ring of "Cootie Carriers," members of the Cootie Drum and Bugle Corps, Veterans of Foreign Wars. Lorraine's father, P. J. Rosch, commands the unit, which launched a barrage of torpedoes as it passed the reviewing stand.

Legionnaires marched through Washington last night, as more than 60 units, totaling nearly 3,000 men, women and children, staged their annual parade up Pennsylvania avenue, past the reviewing stand at Farragut Square, and to the Mayflower Hotel for the first session of their department convention.

Headed by Col. J. M. Wainwright, commandant of Fort Myer, and grand marshal, and Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police and a police motorcycle escort, the parade started at 7 p. m. from John Marshall place and Pennsylvania avenue. The veterans marched past crowds to Thirteenth street, north to New York avenue, over to Fourteenth and then to K street, where they turned for the march past the reviewing stand.

For nearly an hour they moved into the lights at Farragut Square, swung past the reviewing stand, then up Connecticut avenue.

First marching units to pass the stand were the Third Cavalry Mounted Band, the mounted machine gunners troop of the Tenth Cavalry, and Battery A, Sixteenth Field Artillery, all from Fort Myer, Va.

Drum Corps Leads.

Paced by a high-stepping, high-hatted drum major, the Fort Stevens Post Drum and Bugle Corps, departmental champions last year, held first place over the 20 Legion bands as they marched by, playing "A Long, Long Trail," with drumstick and glockenspiel variations."

They marched and played their way to a second capture of the award for the best drum and bugle corps of the department.

They were followed by the District guard of honor, Horace W. Lineburg, commander of the District Department, and his staff. Close behind marched the department commanders and staffs from Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania and Virginia.

A volley of torpedo explosions announced the passage of the Military Order of Cooties, drum and bugle corps, of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. They identified themselves by red and white uniforms, decorated with little gold scarabs, and embroidered warnings of T. N. T. Their bass drum was exhibited as No. 1 cooty heaven, with the advertisement "Top Notch Tent," and their mascot was "Skippy," a very clean white dog, held in leash and owned by Lorraine Rosch, 11, daughter of the corps commander, P. J. Rosch.

Boys' Bands in Line.

Several boy's bands and marching units joined in the parade, including the Police Boys' Club Band, the Elks' Boys Band, the Drum and Bugle Corps, Flag section and other members of the District Sons of the American Legion, and Squadron No. 60, Laurel, Md., Sons of the American Legion.

Daughters of the American Legion marched, too, among the several women's marching units which were officially led by Mary A. Killeen, president of the American Legion Auxiliary. Among the women marchers were members of the Gold Star Mothers, American War Mothers, Women's Relief Corps of the G. A. R., and three units of Job's Daughters, their leaders armed with sabers and their members in purple and white uniforms.

Tank Corps Post No. 19 passed the stand in a light haze of smoke from their volley of cannon crackers and other fireworks. The Forty and Eight Society from Frederick, Md., furnished other sound effects with the bell and whistles on their locomotive, manned by five members of the post.

Parade Marshal Cheered.

A steady crossfire of conversation was continued between marchers and officers in the reviewing stand. Grover W. Tribble, American Legion parade marshal, brought a round of cheers as he stepped from his car in front of the stand, saluted and marched to his position among the reviewing officers.

Drum majors of the various bands enjoyed a field day or night as they goosestepped and twirled their shiny batons. Sons and Daughters of the American Legion from Laurel boasted two drum majors, one boy and one girl, while one post was led by a girl who tapdanced her way past the stand.

One band, the bugle and drum from Baltimore, Md., almost missed the parade. They reached the assembly grounds after the procession had started, and were assigned to bring up the rear.

Their position in the parade did not prevent the judges voting them the award for the best out-of-town legion drum and bugle corps. Other awards went to James Reese Europe Post, No. 5, for the largest number of marchers, including musicians; Victory Post, No. 4, which had the highest percentage of its membership in the parade; Sergt. Jasper Post, No. 13, best marching post; U. S. S. Jacob Jones Post, No. 2, best women's marching unit, and the District of Columbia detachment for the best Sons of the American Legion Drum and Bugle Corps.

Citations Issued.

Citations were issued to the Police Boys Club Band and the Elks Boys Band and to the Chestnut Farms-Chevy Chase Dairy Band, while Hechingers received an award for the best commercial float.

Musical judges for the parade were James M. Thurmond, bandmaster of the United States Navy Band; Joseph G. Hiller, of the Marine Band, and Rudolph M. Eckman, of the Army Band. J. Fred Johnson, national vice commander of the Legion; Thomas Owen, jr., national Legion historian, and Maj. Gen. James A. Drain, past national commander, judged the marching units and floats.

Chief reviewing officers were Louis Johnson, Assistant Secretary of War, and past commander of the American Legion, Maj. Gen. Thomas Holcomb, commander of the United States Marine Corps, Rear Admiral George Pettingill, Commandant of the Washington Navy Yard, James A. Drain, past National Commander of the Legion, and Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries.

Preparedness With Neutrality Demanded by Legion Leader

In a strong plea for national unity, National Vice Commander J. Fred Johnson, of the American Legion, last night stressed the importance of military preparedness. "The legion is not militaristic," he said, "the legion wants no more war, but we must be prepared to face any eventuality."

Neutrality, Commander Johnson declared in his address to the District Department of the American Legion, at their opening session of their annual convention, could only be attained if all Americans remained neutral in thought, mind, deed, and fact, as well as in law. "The legion has supported the neutrality program which was passed by Congress last year, but we feel that the facts of the situation require that the United States build up its armed forces in order to repeal any attack."

The profiteering of the last war must be prevented in the "conflagrations" which may beset the Nation in the future, he said, and urged that legionnaires support the bill now before Congress which would provide for universal service in the next war. "There must be no more of this business of profiteers building their fortunes on the ashes of their nation's distress," he declared, pointing out that he believed that between 75 and 95 per cent of the American people are in favor of universal service.

All Should Share.

"The burden should be placed on all alike," Johnson declared, "capital, labor and industry each have a part in war. Conflicts are no longer fought by armies alone, but by entire nations with all their resources of manpower and natural resources."

"It is not right," he continued, "that profiteers making munitions should earn $10 a day, while the men who are sent to the front to be shot are paid only $1 a day."

The annual occasion on which the flags are carried through the streets, Johnson said, are events which insure the continued existence of the United States, and the ideals which have been the foundation of the country. "It will be a sad day for America," he said, "when the sacrifices which have been made by the heroes of the Nation are forgotten."

In the American Battle monuments, which are now being dedicated in France, Commander Johnson found a thread which likens the present generation to the "young men" of World War days, who made such great sacrifices in France that the "transcendant star of liberty might continue to shine."

Ready to Confer.

Maj. Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of the Veterans Bureau, told the convention that his organization was ready to confer with representatives of the legion on any subject. He declared the facilities of the Veterans Administration are constantly expanding, and that by July 1, 1938, approximately 5,000 more beds will be provided for the use of disabled soldiers and sailors in the various veterans' hospitals throughout the United States.

"There has recently been talk of economy in the administration. I have been assured by President Roosevelt that no economies are contemplated in the Veterans Administration. We shall make every effort to eliminate unnecessary overhead and waste, but there will be no curtailment in the facilities which are available for the service of disabled veterans."

Department Commander Horace W. Lineburg acted as chairman of the convention, and welcoming remarks were made by Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of the Highway Department of the District.

Two Other Speakers.

The two final speakers on the program were Thomas Owen, national historian of the legion, who briefly traced the organization's growth to its present membership in 11,313 communities, and Charles Kohen, of the Costello Post. He announced that the post's junior baseball team, of which he is manager, is leaving for regional competition at Johnson City, N. Y.

Following the advance of the colors under the direction of Rich-H. Viancour, assisted by the guard of honor, commanded by Guy A. Nadeau, the invocation was pronounced by the Rev. Howard E. Snyder, department chaplain.

The trophies awarded were: The Harper Trophy, senior, Sergt. Jasper Auxiliary; Harper Trophy, junior, Washington Police Post, No. 29; Briggs Community Service Cup, Sergt. Jasper Post; Clagett Americanism Cup, Bunker Hill Post; Delaware Trophy, Victory Post Julius I. Peyser Cup, Cooley-McCullough Post; Spafford Cup, permanently to the Sergt. Jasper Post; Paul J. McGahan Trophy, George E. Killeen Post; Quentin Roosevelt trophy for large posts, Bunker Hill Post, No. 31; trophy for small posts, Cooley-McCullough Post; Peckham Trophy, Sergt. Jasper Post.

A plaque presented by the Agriculture Department Post for award to the Legion group sponsoring the best junior baseball team was won by the Costello Post.

Other speakers included Mrs. Mary K. Killeen, department resident of the American Legion Auxiliary; Mrs. Roberta Fawcett, past president of the auxiliary; Past National Commander James A. Drain; Thomas E. Lodge, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations; David B. Herman, departmental commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars; Representative Pete Jarman, of Alabama; Departmental Commander A. W. Pinto, of Virginia; Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, United States Army (retired), former departmental commander, and the first national adjutant of the American Legion, Lem Bolles.

Service Union Assails Work of Strikebreaking

Pensions for Peace-Time Soldiers, Sailors Urged at Encampment.

Opposition to the use of veterans as strikebreakers was expressed yesterday by the Army and Navy Union, which is holding its forty-eighth national encampment at the Willard Hotel.

Brooklyn Garrison, No. 285, offered the resolution declaring the organization "is in favor of maintaining the American standards of living advocated by our President and that hiring of veterans as strikebreakers is deplored. The resolution also empowered the President of the union to prevent members from wearing the uniform of the organization while on such duty.

The encampment also went on record in favor of pensions for soldiers and sailors who served in the armed forces in time of peace.

A banquet and dance were held at the Willard last night.

Following the banquet, Representatives James A. Shanley, of Connecticut; J. H. Peterson, of Florida, and Arthur D. Healey, of Massachusetts, addressed the members and wished them success.

John L. Crim, national legislative chairman, acted as toastmaster and introduced a number of officials of the union, including Caroline M. Toomey, national commander of the union's auxiliary; C. John Russell, national senior vice commander and national convention chairman, 1937, and Frederick M. Dryden, department commander and D. C. trustee, national convention committee.

The legislative agenda, adopted at the last encampment in Akron, Ohio, was called to the attention of members by Crim, and their cooperation in the passage of legislation favorable to veterans and active service men was urged.

Important among the legislative aims of the union are, securing more permanent employment for all idle former service men and women, their widows and dependents; to support firmly all moves made by the Army and Navy and other Government agencies to establish a better and greater national defense system, and authorizing the expansion of the aviation reserves of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps and enlarging the aviation division of the Coast Guard and National Guard.

Pickpockets Get $120.

While watching the American Legion parade last night, his pocket was picked of $120, Herman Cohen, 30, reported to police. Cohen, who lives at 529 Lamont street northwest, said he was standing on the corner of Thirteenth and H streets northwest at the time.

Bewildered Farmer, Bonds in His Socks, Calls at Treasury

It's a long trek by train from Wheeling, W. Va., to Washington with your bonds in your socks, and when you get there the city is confusing and if you are 75 and never have been away from home before, you are likely to get lost.

But then there's Travelers' Aid, as Charles Henry Bruhy, a retired farmer, found out yesterday. After a bewildering day, he was on his way back home, and "mighty glad."

Bruhy had several hundreds of dollars worth of the bonds. He had kept them years, and slept with them hidden in his straw mattress. He thought it would be necessary for him to present his bonds personally at the Treasury to cash them. But he did not have sufficient identification when he was finally taken there.

He'll probably sell them at Wheeling, he said last night.

Action Demanded On Army Housing

House and Senate leaders agreed yesterday that the need for improved housing should be met during this session of Congress. They indicated that the bills now pending in the two houses will receive consideration shortly.

Chairman Morris Sheppard, of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, said yesterday the Senate legislative jam would prevent action on the bill already passed by the House, providing for the expenditure of approximately $21,500,000. He urged House supporters to amend the slightly different Senate bill to get some legislation at this session.

Acting Chairman Andrew J. May of the House Military Affairs Committee declared the House is going to insist on the passage of its own bill. The Senate bill calls for the expenditure of approximately $23,000,000.

Marionettes Perform For Children at Camp

Visiting the Bald Eagle Camp of the Tuberculosis Association, a troupe of marionette performers from the Chevy Chase Playground yesterday entertained the 125 children there with a performance of "Hansel and Gretel."

The story of the play was told by Mrs. Ann Kloesius, who directed the players.

Calling the requested fare raise of the Capital Transit Co. "a daring attempt to burden the minimum wage group," the Marshall Heights Civic Association yesterday filed a brief demanding that the Public Utilities Commission refuse to grant the raise.

The company has asked for a change in the price of tokens from four for 30 cents to four for 35 cents. This proposal was attacked from several angles by George H. Ganaway, attorney, in his brief.

He stated that the company failed to earn more money because of "incompetent managements," and because equipment was "inadequate" and "run down."

The lawyer also asserted that at recent hearings on the valuation of Capital Transit properties, the company failed to render "a true and certain" valuation of its holdings.

He contended that the Public Utilities Commission, at the hearings, failed to let spokesmen for civic groups cross-examine witnesses.

He concluded by accusing the utilities commission of "illegally" assuming jurisdiction over the Capital Transit Co., giving as his reason the statement that some of the company buses operate outside the District, therefore are in interstate commerce.

The brief contended a 5-cent fare was adequate to pay a fair return here, since it is in other large cities. It cited Chicago, New York and Detroit as examples.

Briefs in answer will be filed by the company and the utilities commission.

Thieves Abandon $30 Grocery Loot

Four men were seen to leave the store shortly after 3 a. m. and drive away in an automobile. The car later was found abandoned in the 3200 block Reservoir road northwest, with all the loot intact.

Clothing and jewelry worth $175 was stolen from his automobile parked in the 1800 block Sixteenth street northwest, Samuel A. Moffitt, Danville, Va., said. The thieves broke a glass in the door.

Antique silver valued at $300 was stolen from a trunk at 204 F street northwest, Celia H. Costello, complained. Several fingerprints were found on the trunk.

More than 20 small burglaries were reported.

Workman Badly Hurt Under Concrete Chute

Injured when a concrete chute fell on him, Joseph Raducci, 43, of 802 F street southwest, workman on the Bureau of Engraving and Printing Annex being constructed at Thirteenth and C streets southwest, was in Emergency Hospital last night in a serious condition.

Police said Raducci, who was working on the chute, slipped and fell to the ground. A moment later the chute toppled over on him. He is suffering from a spinal injury.

Lions Group to Meet.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 12.—The Eastern Panhandle district of Lions clubs, in District 29 (West Virginia), will meet here August 17.

Two Capital Residents Injured in Accidents

Two colored persons suffered minor injuries in accidents yesterday. James Penn, 30, of 1428 Sixth street northwest, fell from the second floor of a house at 422 First street southwest while employed as a painter there. He fractured his left leg.

Jessie White, 34, colored, of 315 D street southwest, burned her hands severely while cleaning her bed at the D street address with gasoline yesterday. The explosion also set fire to furniture in the room, but damage was slight.

Dagger Throw Starts Film of Tom Sawyer

By the United Press.

Hollywood, Aug. 12.—Injun Joe threw a dagger in court today at Tom Sawyer—who didn't know it was rubber—and leaped through a stained-glass window of sugar candy, thereby inaugurating film production in full color of Mark Twain's immortal masterpiece.

And whoosie! The trouble Selznick International is taking to do the job right is enough to make Mark Twain himself turn over in his grave and express profound amusement.

First off, Director Norman Taurog had to find a good Tom Sawyer. "I thought it would be easy," he said, "but the more we looked, the scarer were typical American boys who could act. Before we were through we had 170 scouts on the road and had interviewed 25,000 boys."

"Yes, sir," he continued, "we looked over 25,000 12-year-old lads before we found Tommy Kelly, of all places, in the Bronx."

Little Tommy, who has the brightest blue eyes east or west of the Mississippi, and the curliest hair, spent the day between stints on the stage helping the studio hokey-pokey man peddle ice cream. Taurog said Tommy's only difficulty at first was his Bronx accent. He said "woise" for worst and "noise" for nurse, but six weeks under a diction coach remedied that.

Film Court Scene.

Today's big scene was in the courtroom when old Muff Potter was being tried for the murder which Tom and his pal, Huck Finn, had witnessed in the cemetery when they should have been home with Aunt Polly, studying their lessons. Walter Brennan, young character actor, played Muff. He had his teeth knocked out during the war and hence was perfect for the part. He put his upper plate in his pocket and immediately looked as decrepit as the original Muff.

The big climax came when Injun Joe—discovered as the real killer—tossed his dagger at Tom Sawyer on the witness stand, leaped on the rail in front of the judge and dived through the closed window.

Injun Joe (Victor Jory) had a real knife of cold steel during the preliminary rehearsals. Tommy saw it, touched it. Then the gigantic $25,000 color cameras began to roll. Injun Joe leaped to his feet and threw his knife at Tommy's head. Tommy didn't know it was coming. The look of terror on his face was real, as the knife swished by his left ear and bounced—yes, bounced—off the wall behind him.

Switched Knives.

Director Taurog had switched knives secretly, but he apologized with a toy movie camera as a gift, and Tommy forgave him.

Injun Joe, meantime, was sneaking like a cat down the rail, while the townsfolk, all dressed in the fashions of the 1850's, tried vainly to stop him. In front was a stained glass window of brown and blue panes, through which the imitation sun gleamed wanly.

With a scream of defiance Injun Joe leaped through the window and landed—in a shower of rock candy—upon two mattresses which had been placed to catch him. The whole window was made of pure candy, which shattered like glass, but tasted like butterscotch.

William Gargan Popular Player

No sooner did he finish work on Universal's "Behind the Mike" and prepare to go on a vacation, than he was called upon to play a lead role in that same studio's production of "Blonde Dynamite." He is cast as George Ragan, the "iron man's" manager. Noah Berry, jr., will play the title role.

He had the same experience before he went into "Behind the Mike." He had been making "Accidents Will Happen" on loan to B. P. Schulberg, but was called back to his own studio before he could pack up and leave town.

Previous to that he had a similar experience in regard to his long deferred vacation, when he was forced to jump from "Wings Over Honolulu" into the lead of "Reported Missing."

Gargan has three offers to appear in Broadway productions this fall, but, from the looks of his schedule, it will be 1938 before he can even consider anything of that nature.

Sterling Holloway Has Pain in Neck

"Hayseed parts give me a pain," complained Sterling Holloway, after he had completed the sixth role of that type in Universal's "Behind the Mike."

The next day Holloway had a real pain and went to bed with a mild attack of flu. It kept him there for ten days and when he appeared at Universal for retakes he pointed his finger at Director Sidney Salkow and said:

"Now maybe you'll admit I knew what I was talking about."

Universal Films Bungalow Love

"Love in a Bungalow," a sparkling comedy drama, went into production at Universal last week, with Kent Taylor, who made such a hit in "When Love Is Young," and Nan Grey, one of the "Three Smart Girls," in the lead roles.

Others cast for this important production include Dorothea Kent, Hobart Cavanaugh, Jack Smart, David Oliver and Louise Beavers.

The story concerns a hostess in a model home who hopes that a prince charming will come along, buy the home and marry her, which he does.

Give-Away.

Warner Baxter, Twentieth Century-Fox film star, who currently is playing in "Wife, Doctor and Nurse," has given all his fresh-water fishing tackle away to workmen on the film set since he has turned to ocean fishing entirely.

Nelson B. Bell About The Showshops

Motion Picture Houses Launch Their New Seasons; The Living Theater Announces Its Future Plans

First of the New Film Productions for Season of 1937-38 Reach Washington Screens, With Many More in Offing; National Theater Makes Known Its First Two Subscription Plays; Gayety Opens Aug. 29.

JUST as August was accustomed to launch the so-called "Greater Movie Season" each year in the old days of the silent cinema, so now come announcements from the Capital's major exhibiting units that they are inaugurating their drives for greater attention—if that is possible—the forthcoming week, meaning today, by breaking out the first of the new season's foremost motion picture attractions, designed solely to lend new luster to 1937-38.

BELL.

Skipping blithely over the current "You Can't Have Everything," on the Capitol screen, and the continuation of "The Good Earth," at the Palace, the Loew interests make known that a week from today the Palace will unfurl the "Broadway Melody of 1938," at the Palace, with Shirley Temple in "Wee Willie Winkie" as a companion offering with the "Going Native" revue, at the Capitol.

This is an auspicious start for any man's new season.

"Broadway Melody of 1938" will be found to be peopled with a formidable cast of both old favorites and newcomers to eminence—among the former, Robert Taylor and Eleanor Powell, as costars, Willie Howard, Buddy Ebsen, Charley Grapewin and Robert Benchley; among the latter, George Murphy, singing and dancing sensation; Judy Garland, Sophie Tucker, veteran of the theater, but new to the silver sheet, and Charles Igor Gorin, whose voice, it is promised, will be a revelation.

"Wee Willie Winkie" is heralded as the first vehicle in which Shirley Temple has essayed a dramatic role in a strictly adult picture, matching her juvenile capabilities with those of such mature players as Victor McLaglen, C. Aubrey Smith and the others who are cast importantly in this picturization of the Kipling story of the Bengal Lancers.

These opening guns in the new campaign will be echoed later by the cream of the crop, so to speak, of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Twentieth Century-Fox and United Artists studios, upon which the Loew houses have first call. Among the releases that are heavily underlined may be mentioned Sonja Henie and Tyrone Power in "Thin Ice;" Barbara Stanwyck, John Boles and Anne Shirley in "Stella Dallas," Samuel Goldwyn's widely acclaimed remake of the silent picture in which the late Belle Bennett, Lois Moran and Jean Hersholt appeared, and "The Prisoner of Zenda," in which the stellar roles will be played by Ronald Colman and Madeleine Carroll.

In the wake of these will be such features as Joan Crawford and Franchot Tone in "The Bride Wore Red;" Sylvia Sidney, Joel McCrea and Humphrey Bogart in the film version of "Dead End;" Luise Rainer and Spencer Tracy, together for the first time, in "Big City;" Greta Garbo and Charles Boyer in "Conquest;" Loretta Young and Don Ameche in "Love Under Fire;" William Powell and Myrna Loy (Mr. and Mrs. Thin Man) in "Double Wedding;" Gladys George and Warren William in "Madame X;" Robert Montgomery and Rosalind Russell in "Live, Love and Learn;" Nelson Eddy and Eleanor Powell in "Rosalie;" Judy Garland and Allan Jones in "Swing Fever;" Clark Gable in "Test Pilot;" Edward G. Robinson in "Last Gangster," and Wallace Beery and Virginia Bruce in "Bad Man of Brimstone."

There will be others than these, of course, but that will give you a sketchy idea of the outlook.

In the meantime, the Warner executives are getting 1937-38 under way today with "Mr. Dodd Takes the Air," at the Earle. This is the picture that elevates the youthful Kenny Baker to stellar eminence in the title role, supported by an illustrious cast that includes Jane Wyman among its comparative newcomers and a long list of tried and true favorites.

This will be followed on the same screen by "Artists and Models," with a cast that reads like a Hollywood "Who's Who." Here we encounter Jack Benny, Ida Lupino, Gail Patrick and Richard Arlen in the principal roles, with Louis Armstrong's Swing Orchestra, Andre Kostelanetz' Orchestra, Martha Raye and Connie Boswell, of the famous Boswell Sisters, in specialties; Ben Blue, Judy Canova, the hillbilly comedienne; Sandra Storme, England's most famous model; six leading American models, the Yacht Club Boys and a sextet of America's foremost artists and illustrators in the persons of Peter Arno, McClelland Barclay, Arthur William Brown, Rube Goldberg, John LaGatta and Russell Patterson.

A typical cross-section of the Warner Brothers' season's productions will be disclosed in the Ambassador Theater a week from next Monday and Tuesday, August 23 and 24, when the field day of previews, already celebrated in this space, will be held.

If all this doesn't cheer you up, it must be the weather!

In step with the trend of the times, Mr. James Jeremiah Lake, the Chesterfield of Ninth street and Beau Brummel of the sports arenas, drops by the desk to confide that his Gayety Theater will open its season on Sunday, August 29, with a completely new lineup of completely new shows in the best tradition of the old Columbia "wheel." The extravaganzas to be presented on Ninth street this season will represent the joint efforts of new writers, new stage directors, new casting directors, new dance directors, new scenic artists and new everything else that can be made to contribute to the expanded merit of the type of entertainment that will combine the best that remains of vaudeville with dramatic travesties, original playlets, skits, musical ensembles and all of the other ingredients that will add renown to the good Col. Lake's house of "girls and giggles."

The Gayety's improvements for the new season are not confined to the stage areas behind the footlights. The interior of the house has been redecorated and freshened in keeping with the "stepping up" of the type of entertainment it will shelter. Among the other notable changes will be an augmented orchestra, under the conductorship of the veteran Matt Mannix.

Col. James J. Lake, of course, will remain in personal charge of the Gayety with complete supervisory control of its bills. This alone is ample assurance that Ninth street is in for a boom. There are no better showmen than Jimmie.

Since this seems to be a "looking into the future" column exclusively, lovers of the living theater should know that the Theater Guild and the American Theater Society of Washington will initiate the Capital's subscription season of six plays during 1937-38 on Monday, October 4, in the National Theater, with "Madame Bovary," with Constance Cummings in the leading role, which will be followed on Monday, October 18, by Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne in "Amphitryon 38."

"Madame Bovary" is a dramatic adaptation of the Flaubert novel by the French playwright, Gaston Baty. Benn W. Levy, celebrated English playwright and producer—is private life the husband of Constance Cummings—will direct the production, which will have Viola Roache, seen here last season with Katharine Hepburn in "Jane Eyre," in its distinguished cast.

"Amphitryon 38" was adapted to the American stage by S. N. Behrman and will have a musical score by Samuel Barlow. Lee Simonson has designed the settings. Bretaigne Windust is director of the play, the capacity in which he served also in the production of "Idiot's Delight," the Lunts' last season's hit by Robert E. Sherwood. The cast of "Amphitryon" will include Richard Whorf, Sidney Greenstreet, George Meader, Barry Thompson, Edward Racquelle, Kate Mayhew and Edith King.

The books of the American Theater Society are open daily in the National Theater Building for the booking of season reservations.

Fisk Thinks He's "Diamond Jim"

In his latest biographical drama, as Jim Fisk, in "The Toast of New York," Edward Arnold seems momentarily reminiscent of an earlier performance he gave in his impersonation of James Buchanan Brady in "Diamond Jim." He seems just a little proud of the sparkler with which he has presented Frances Farmer, in the role of Josie Mansfield. All this may be seen on the screen at RKO-Keith's, where "The Toast of New York" is being held over for a second week.

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDLER

Hollywood, Aug. 12.—Idol Chatter: No wonder Grace Moore says "Poker is my favorite game"—the lady from Tennessee always wins. If Gary Cooper were to be adopted by an Indian tribe, they would probably name him "Man-who-sits-on-back-of-neck." Simone Simon's ability to get in dutch with her co-workers is positively uncanny. Peas from the same pod: Lucille Ball and Katherine Hepburn. Joan Bennett always reminds me of that girl the graduating class voted "likely to marry first."

GARY COOPER.

Wonder if Lupe Velez's earsplitting screams at prize fights are a coy announcement that she is still Tarzan's mate? If "It's a Paramount Picture"—Porter Hall is probably the villian. Victor Moore is Filmtown's one-man fishing information bureau—everybody telephones him to ask how "they're bitin'." The regular patronage of a top-flight star doubles the prices in any Hollywood eatery. Dolores del Rio and Gregory Ratoff are swapping—she teaches him Spanish; he teaches her Russian.

Hobby horsemen of Hollywood: Sigfried Rumann is bugs about bacteriology. The man who invites Mary Brian to see his etchings had better know his art because Mary is a connoisseur. Discovery of the week: Joe E. Brown is a very light eater—and with all that equipment, too! If Constance Bennett had prided herself more on diplomacy and less on combativeness, she might still be a star. The man who started the story about actors being spendthrifts had never met Adolphe Menjou.

John Beal, who has just signed a contract with M-G-M, told me an amusing little story this morning. Yesterday, during the lunch hour, there was a knock on his dressing room door and Master Bartholomew entered with the sedate announcement that he was there to welcome Beal to the Metro fold. "He seemed strangely unwilling to leave," John told me, "and I began to suspect that something he was carefully holding behind his back might have a connection with his visit. And I was right, for after the conversation had been stretched past the awkward point, Freddie suddenly produced a jar of pickles. 'I say, old man,' he said, 'I just stopped in to congratulate you, but as long as I am here, I wonder if you can get this jolly top off? It sticks.'"

Next door to the National Broadcasting Co.'s Hollywood studio is Nick's Grotto Cafe—the most interesting early evening spot in town. From 4 o'clock in the afternoon until the Nation-wide radio programs start signing off around 8 or 9, Nick's Grotto hums like a beehive. Famous screen stars are there gulping black coffee to steel their nerves for a scheduled air appearance. Established radio headliners are hurriedly going over their scripts with their gagmen and announcers. A booth full of musicians are softly rehearsing a new number. And every person there eats drinks and talks with one eye on the huge clock at one end of the room.

If you want to see celebrities off-guard, make a note to have dinner in Nick's Grotto when you pay Hollywood that long planned visit.

Had lunch with Fred MacMurray, who spent an hour glowing about the wonders of the new house he has built. And with an actor's ever-present flair for drama, he climbed to a grand exclamation point. "My architect," he said, "tried to talk me out of some of my pet ideas—said they might hurt the sale value if I ever wanted to get rid of the house. I told him I was building a home, not a 'house.' A home for my son and my son's son and my son's son's son!"

I was very impressed—until it suddenly occurred to me that Fred is not even a papa, much less a great-grandfather.

Jimmie Savo Has Soft Movie Task

Savo is one of the world's best known pantomimists. While Monte Brice and Dorian Otvos were preparing the script for production, Buddy DeSylva, producer of the picture decided to take advantage of Savo's gift of pantomime, an art rapidly disappearing from the theatrical scene. He ordered his writers to insert situations where Savo's talents could be used to the best advantage.

While Bert Lahr, Billy House, Mischa Auer, Alice Brady, Louise Fazenda, John King and Joy Hodges struggle to memorize their lines, Jimmie complacently smokes a cigar. He hasn't any lines to study!

The Post's New Yorker

By LEONARD LYONS

New York, Aug. 13.

DEFEAT—Last week the New York district attorney, prosecuting the Robert Irwin case, was defeated in his motion to have the Tombs physician, Dr. Perry Lichtenstein, examine the defendant to determine whether he was sane . . . Permission was denied Dr. Lichtenstein, but that doesn't prevent him from sitting on a stool outside of Irwin's cell—which is exactly what he's doing now. And there he sits—with Irwin throwing paper-balls at him!

• • • •

HUNGER—Ernest Hemingway, who is returning to Madrid soon, was very much disappointed at the food served there. The food was so bad that Hemingway and his friends sent a wireless to John Dos Passos—then on a boat bound for Spain—to hoard some of the food served aboard ship and bring it to them . . . Dos Passos couldn't believe that their plight was so drastic, and so the only food he hoarded and brought to them was two chocolate-covered mints.

TRIUMPH—Harpo Marx spent last week at the Vermont island he owns together with Alexander Woollcott and Mr. and Mrs. George S. Kaufman . . . Mrs. Kaufman told him that she hadn't seen the latest Marx Bros.' picture, "A Day at the Races." Harpo phoned the nearest movie theater, at Fair Haven, Vt. "But we've already played that picture," the manager told him . . . "Well, if you play it again," Harpo proposed, "I'll make a personal appearance" . . . And so that Mrs. Kaufman could see "A Day at the Races," Harpo Marx made a personal appearance in a Vermont movie theater whose total capacity is 210 seats!

ENTERPRISE—Louis Bromfield, the novelist, was reminiscing about the days when he was a rewrite man for the City News Association. "After 11 a. m. every day, there was nothing to do," he stated, "but we all had our typewriters going, writing novels on the City News' time" . . . "Yes," a listener told him, "but not one of those novels was anything as good as your 'Green Bay Tree'" . . . "Oh, well," Broomfield replied, "I wrote that on the Associated Press' time!"

HOPE—Charlie Washburn, the publicist, discussed religion last night and said that he was a Theosophist. "I believe in reincarnation," he admitted . . . "Well, then, tell me Charlie," Sam Levene asked him, "after you die, what would you like to come back as?" . . . "I'd like to come back as Charles Washburn," was the reply, "Washburne"—spelled with an 'E'!"

AMBITION—Monday night a huge reception was tendered for Don Budge, the tennis star who, practically single-handed, brought the Davis Cup back to America . . . Budge failed to appear at the reception and the sponsors still are wondering at his disappearance. Here's the reason for the tennis star's aberration: He was at the Penn Roof that night reveling in his major love—playing the drums in Tommy Dorsey's swing-band.

DISAPPOINTMENT—Jack Waldron, the night club comic, just returned from Hollywood, where he entertained at the Trocadero. Despite the fact that the producers who came to the cafe were very much amused at Waldron's routine, they failed to sign him for picture work . . . "It's your h-h-hair," Joe Frisco consoled the bald-headed Waldron . . . "Hair my eye," Jack replied. "For a guy to click out here does he have to have curls? . . . Frisco pointed to a photo of Shirley Temple, and returned: "Th-th-that's r-r-right!"

SPEECH—T. C. McClary, the writer, is still intent upon making Dick Merrill the subject of an article in the Sat. Eve. Post, despite the plane accidents which ruined the safety theses he had submitted . . . McClary, therefore, has been instructed to make a third revision—this time to stress the personality angle . . . He cornered the flier, drew out a pad of blank sheets and a box of pencils, and began: "Tell me all about your last round-trip flight across the Atlantic. ALL about it." . . . "Well," Merrill replied, "we flew over, picked up the Coronation photos and flew back!"

CHATTER—Report was that Al Smith has split with Tammany Leader Christy Sullivan . . . Alan Campbell and his wife, Dorothy Parker Campbell, have broken their contract with Sam Goldwyn and now are on their way East. They sail for Europe on the Normandie Wednesday. Ben Hecht will finish their job writing the "Goldwyn Follies" . . . Lillian Hellman did not win $27,000 at the Hollywood dice tables. In fact, she lost $2,000 . . . Beatrice Lillie is sending cables from London signed "Beatrice Hoover."

• • • •

KNOWLEDGE—Jean Van Cleef, whose ancestor Jon Van Cleef, once owned Brooklyn, is a member of the Westchester Country Club set and became tired of the empty activities. She therefore wagered that within two weeks she could do something really useful . . . As a result she has founded the Electric Lawn Mower Co. at Mount Vernon, employing ten men . . . "And what do you know about electricity?" she was asked . . . "All I know about electricity," was the reply, "is the fact that if your bill is paid and you push a button—something should happen!"

CELEBRATION—The newspapers reported that Yorke & King, the veteran vaudevillians, will celebrate their thirtieth wedding anniversary at a party Thursday. Actually, it's their twenty-eighth anniversary. The reason therefor springs from a twenty-fifth wedding anniversary party they tendered in 1932—although actually they had been married only 23 years then. "It was this way," King now explains. "We needed the silver!"

Alice Brady Does Old Comedy Gags

Although Alice Brady is rated as one of the ace comediennes of the screen, she feels that it is never too late to learn new tricks.

Working in "In Old Chicago" with Tyrone Power, Alice Faye and Don Ameche, she prevailed on Andy Devine, another member of the cast, to teach her some of the old comedy tricks of Mack Sennett vintage.

Thus far, Andy has taught her the "double take" and the "slow burn." The former is an exaggerated reaction to a surprise situation, and the latter is the pantomimic act of slowly building comedy anger.

Flyers Filmed for Cantor Musical

Unknown to them, the three Russian flyers who recently broke the long-distance flight record—Andrei Yumosheff, Mikhail Gromoff and Sergei Danilin—are going to appear in a Hollywood movie.

During their visit to Eddie Cantor on the set of "Ali Baba Goes to Town" at Twentieth Century-Fox, Director David Butler photographed them while they were surrounded by a crowd of stars and extras, giving autographs. He will insert the shots, which show them with Cantor in the center, into a scene picturing the famous of Hollywood arriving at a world premiere.

Jones Finishes Latest Picture

The majority of the picture was filmed near Kernville, Calif., because the story required vast expanses of ranch land and mountain scenery in order to depict the great gold rush to "Ghost Mountain." Another scene required the burning down of a ranch house and attendant buildings.

Buck Jones played the title role, with Noel Francis, Harold Hodge, Frank McGlynn, sr., and Evelyn Brent in important parts. Ray Taylor was director.

METROPOLITAN

Film Comedian Has Own Ideas Of What's Fun

By Edward Arnold.

Hollywood, Aug. 12.—So, you want me to write a guest column?

Has it occurred to you that I'm flat on my back in the hospital with water, I said water, on the knee?

That I'm suffering blood tests, heat rays and diathermy. The last mentioned, in case you don't know, is some stunt. They take my knee and sort of make a radio broadcasting station out of it. Nero wasn't any warmer when Rome burned. Certainly wish this sawbones would quit fiddling around.

Hospital life, however, isn't terrifically bad. For one thing, the nurses and doctors laugh at everything I say. They ought to. Just got my bill and it looks like they charged me for every chuckle, individually and collectively.

Go for Old One.

I know they must charge for it because they laughed at this old one about the guy who had been in the asylum for 40 years.

During that time he spent most of his waking hours fishing in the sink. His tackle consisted of a short stick, a piece of string and a safety pin. He was a pitiful sight, really, so much so that one of the guards, seeking to be friendly, dropped in for a social chat.

The patient was fishing, as usual. "Well, well," quoth the guard, beaming, "how's fishing today? Catching anything?"

The poor fellow turned an amazed expression upon the benevolent guard and exclaimed:

"What! In this sink! Are you crazy!"

Come to think of it, who was?

Have I ever told you about my operation?

A delightfully pretty little nurse came prancing into my room bearing a tray filled with gadgets. I didn't pay much attention to the tray. She was a blonde, so dainty, so innocent looking.

Bang! To the Elbow.

Well, when she took my hand in hers and smiled into my eyes I really thought she was going to sympathize with me, or something. Then, bang! That siren actually shoved a knife in my thumb clear out to the elbow.

I said, "Yow!"

And I said, "Oh, yeah! You're digging an artesian well, that's what."

It was, too. That woman filled about 16 tubes with fluid. On top of that she charged me for it. Next day she came in to tell me that my system was in magnificent condition. Bah! No thanks to her. I've always maintained that if a fellow looks all right on the outside he must be okeh inside.

But, just try to tell doctors anything.

Furthermore, what's a blood test got to do with water on the knee which I got banging the member against the side of the swimming pool?

But why crab? I guess everybody has to make a living, even doctors.

Germans Protest Espionage Arrests

Moscow, Aug. 12 (AP).—Germans reported tonight their embassy here had made "representations" to Soviet authorities against arrests of numerous Germans in a roundup of foreigners suspected of spying.

One German source asserted the Germans known to be under arrest now exceed 200. Germany and Japan are the nations accused in the Soviet press of the greatest espionage activity in the union.

Father of Astor's Wife Is Bankrupt

Providence, R. I., Aug. 12 (AP).—Francis O. French, father-in-law of John Jacob Astor, jr., filed a voluntary petition of bankruptcy in Federal court here today listing liabilities of more than $4,000.

Among the items listed were a bill for $1.48 due a Chinese laundryman, a 30-cent bill owed the Western Union and $5 due a Newport florist.

Chief liabilities were $2,875 to the Empire Trust Co., New York, and $1,280 to the Equitable Life Insurance Co.

Treasury Calls for Bids On $100,000,000 Bills

By the Associated Press.

The bids will be received Monday for $50,000,000 of 273-day bills and $50,000,000 of 122-day bills. The 273-day series is to meet a regular weekly bill maturity and the 122-day series is to put additional cash in the Treasury's working balance.

The $50,000,000 offering Monday will bring to $300,000,000 the sum added to the working balance by bill issues in recent weeks.

Possible showers and temperatures ranging in the high 80's were forecast for Washington and vicinity for today. Unless there is a break in the humidity, however, Washingtonians can expect little relief from the summer heat.

The highest temperature yesterday was 91 degrees, at 2:55 p. m. The humidity was 20 per cent above normal.

Public Debt Increases 14 Million to New High

By the Associated Press.

The public debt rose to a new all-time high of $36,826,653,243 on August 10. The Treasury reported yesterday this was an increase of $14,263,218 over the previous day and compared with a debt of $33,400,778,494 on August 10, 1936.

Sings Title Role in Filmusical

When "Mr. Dodd Takes the Air," adapted from a Clarence Budington Kelland story, as was "Mr. Deeds," is shown on the screen of the Warner Brothers' Earle Theater today, the title role will be acted and sung by the youthful Kenny Baker. Mr. Baker, already well known to Washington from his participation in the Jack Benny radio hours and his personal appearances on local stages, is pictured above in a familiar pose. Jane Wyman is cast opposite, she also being a screen newcomer.

N. Y. Opens Drive On Degenerates

New York, Aug. 12 (AP).—Spurred by parental alarm, police today began a roundup of degenerates accused of impairing the morals of children.

Detective John A. Lyons disclosed that a list of degenerates being compiled by police already contained the names of 300 in Brooklyn, locale of the attack-slaying of 8-year-old Paula Magagna, July 31, by a 49-year-old former convict.

County Judge Lester W. Patterson fixed a record high bail of $50,000 for Sam de Mateau, 56-year-old Bronx plumber charged with impairing the morals of a 13-year-old girl. A 64-year-old Bronx garage owner was arrested and accused of molesting at least nine little girls.

Mme. Stranska May Ask Czech Court for Child

Mrs. Anna Stranska may carry her fight for custody of her abducted child to the courts of Czechoslovakia.

The sudden flight yesterday of her diplomat-husband, Dr. Pavel Stransky, blocked the legal steps she had taken in this country to regain custody of the daughter he abducted, but she yet has recourse to Czechoslovakian courts, since, by marriage, she is also a citizen of that country.

Under the laws of Czechoslovakia, father and mother have equal rights to custody of a child.

Scouring legal precedents before making the next move, attorneys for Mme. Stranska said that their client may appeal to the courts of her husband's country to regain custody of her child.

Dr. Stransky, facing possible habeas corpus proceedings here, sailed suddenly from New York on the S. S. Deutschland yesterday. With him was the 6-year-old daughter whom he spirited away from the home of his estranged wife at Falls Church, Va., Tuesday afternoon.

Charles Pickett, partner in the law firm of Barbour, Garnett & Pickett, admitted Dr. Stranska did not violate any criminal law of the United States, since the question of the custody of the child had not been ruled on by any court here.

Dr. Stransky communicated yesterday by radiogram with his lawyer, James R. Murphy, and with his wife. The message to the latter included an invitation to her to join him in his native Prague. Mme. Stranska could not be reached last night for comment.

Her attorneys confess themselves at a loss as to what steps to take now. Once the father and child are on Czechoslovakian soil, even an American court order giving custody to the mother would be without effect.

The couple's unexpected departure was facilitated by the fact that the daughter, Mary Peyton, who was born in the Czechoslovakian legation in Berlin, is a Czech citizen.

Good Golfing Shows Priest Idles—Mooney

Detroit, Aug. 12 (AP).—Archbishop Edward Mooney regards golf as a barometer of a parish priest's work. Father William D. Hennigan, pastor of St. Mark's Church, said he was playing golf with the archbishop recently and the prelate told him: "If your golf score is over 100, you are neglecting your golf. If it falls under 90, you are neglecting your parish."

Zionists Study Plan to Resettle 200,000 Jews

Immigration to Palestine to Involve Investment of $175,000,000.

By the Associated Press.

Zurich, Switzerland, Aug. 12.—A proposal to settle 200,000 Jews in Palestine within the next three years, involving an investment of about $175,000,000, was laid before the world Zionist Congress today.

The proposal was made by Eliezer Kaplal, treasurer of the Zionist executive committee, who said American Jewry was expected to contribute $2,000,000 to the Zionist movement and Palestine fund in the current year.

Kaplal said the project was neither fantastic nor "far-fetched," since development on a similar scale took place from 1932 to 1935, when 150,000 Jewish immigrants went to Palestine, bringing their own capital of approximately $150,000,000.

Reporting on the outlay of national capital, or Zionist contributions, in the past two years, Kaplal said that of $10,000,000 estimated as probable income, $7,750,000 already had been received and expended.

Kaplal's financial report came after disposal of the main political issue before the congress, a decision to negotiate further with Great Britain on the proposal to partition Palestine.

Farewell Party Staged For Departing Diplomat

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

"Hail and farewell" was what approximately 50 friends yesterday afternoon said to Ibrahim Seyfullah, former Second Secretary of the Turkish Embassy, who leaves soon for his new post in Istanbul. The occasion was an informal farewell party given in his honor at the Turkish Embassy, with Mme. Ertegun, wife of the Ambassador, as hostess.

During the four years that Mr. Seyfullah has been attached to the Embassy on Twenty-third street, he has been one of the most popular bachelor members of the Diplomatic Corps. While many of his acquaintances now are vacationing away from Washington, a number were on land yesterday to say good-by. Virtually all the foreign envoys who are still in town were there, as well as representatives of the State Deparment and other Washington residents.

Mme. Ertegun, wearing a trim flowered frock with black and white accents, received with the Ambassador in the spacious drawing room of the Embassy, decorated for the occasion with huge vases of gladioli. For well over the two hours set for the "at home" guests remained, gathered around Mr. Seyfullah, the Ambassador and his wife, and the lavish buffet spread at one end of the room.

Sails Soon Under New Name

In the course of the party some of Mr. Seyfullah's friends found out for the first time what his new name is, and that when he sets sail for his homeland he will go not as Ibrahim Seyfullah, but as Ibrahim Seyfullah Esin.

This addition is in accordance with the comparatively new law in Turkey stipulating that strictly Turkish family names are to be adopted by all full-fledged natives of the country. Esin, which connotes "spirit," although this is not the literal translation of the word, was chosen by Mr. Seyfullah some time ago, but he decided not to adopt it here because he was already known by the other name. His passport, however, carries the full cognomen.

Another "discovery" made in regard to the diplomat yesterday was that he is the author of a scholarly book published seven years ago. Written in German, it deals with the Italian policies in the Near East, and is based on observations made first hand in his own country and neighboring ones. Mr. Seyfullah served as a diplomat in three countries—Greece, Italy and Germany—before coming to America. He regards his experience in the United States as "one of the most enlightening of all." He said as much yesterday and also averred that he considered it a rare and interesting privilege to have been here, particularly the past two years.

Murray Among Early Arrivals

Among early arrivals at the party yesterday were Wallace S. Murray, chief of the division of Near Eastern affairs, Department of State, and Mrs. Murray, the latter in a tailored black chiffon dress and black hat trimmed in white; the Bulgarian Minister, Dimitri Naoumoff, who will soon sail for a visit to his homeland; Mrs. Campbell Pritchett, the Commercial Counselor of the Netherlands Legation and Mme. Molekamp, she in a gray frock set off with a wide-brimmed black hat, and the assistant chief of the State Department's Near Eastern division, Paul H. Alling, and Mrs. Alling.

Others glimpsed there were the First Secretary of the Norwegian Legation, Francis Irgens; the Counselor of the Greek Legation, Nicholas G. Lely; the First Secretary of the French Embassy, Roger Gaucheron and his sister, Mlle. Simone Gaucheron, in a black and white ensemble; Mr. and Mrs. John Herrick, the latter wearing a print frock and a broad-brimmed black felt hat, trimmed in green; the First Secretary of the Turkish Embassy, Resid Anamur; Mr. and Mrs. John Farr Simmons, and I. Eradan, Turkish air engineer, and his attractive wife, who have been in Washington for the past three months and will go later to Los Angeles to spend some time.

According to his present plans, Mr. Seyfullah will leave Washington next week and spend a few days in New York before sailing for Europe on August 25. Since his moving orders became known several days ago, a number of informal parties have been given to him by his friends, including dinners at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Farr Simmons, and at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Herrick in Alexandria.

Belonging to one of Turkey's distinguished families, Mr. Seyfullah was educated in both his own country and in Paris, and speaks a number of languages. His beautiful home in Istanbul boasts handsome painted ceilings, spacious rooms and an expansive garden. Shortly after he returns he will assume his new duties at the Turkish Foreign Office.

Nuptials at Central Presbyterian; Bride's Cousin Officiates.

The Rev. Jacob Spangler, cousin of the bride, officiated yesterday at the noon wedding of Miss Ruth Lord, daughter of Frank B. Lord, of Washington, and the late Mrs. Lord, to Clyde John Korth Carlstrand, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Carlstrand, of Baltimore. The ceremony took place at the Central Presbyterian Church in the presence of relatives and intimate friends.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white satin gown with a lace redingote and a long tulle veil fastened to a cap trimmed with orange blossoms. She carried white gladioli and lilies of the valley.

Her only attendant was Mrs. Norman T. Engel, who wore a frock of pink mousseline de soie, trimmed with touches of delphinium, and a pink lace hat. Her bouquet was of pink roses and delphinium.

Bridegroom's Uncle Serves as Best Man

Jonathan Clausen, uncle of the bridegroom, served as best man. Ushers were Ralph Ravenburg and Robert A. Maurer, jr. Among the out-of-town guests for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Pieere Wantz, of Westminster, Md.; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Clemson, of Annapolis; Ensign and Mrs. William Rakow, of Pensacola, Fla.; Mrs. James Heilman, of Lancaster, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Dow, of Baltimore; Mrs. Francis Foulke and Mrs. William Erma, also of that city; Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Carlstrand, and Miss Dolores Carlstrand.

Shortly after the wedding, Mr. and Mrs. Carlstrand left for a wedding trip to Cape May. Upon their return, September 1, they will reside at 3736 Winterburne street, Baltimore.

The bride attended Friends School and the University of Maryland. Mr. Carlstrand is a graduate of the University of Illinois. Mrs. Carlstrand is a granddaughter of the late Rev. Charles M. Eyster, of Baltimore. Her father, a widely known newspaperman, was formerly president of the Press Club.

National Story League To Meet Here Next Year

This time next summer Washington will be full of stories—true and make-believe—for the National Story League is coming to the Capital for its convention in August, 1938.

The league was founded in 1903 by a Washington man, Richard T. Wyche, who was its first president and an active member until his death a few years ago. Only two years ago, however, was the Washington branch organized. The National League was started in Knoxville, Tenn., by a group of 100 teachers attending summer school there. They gathered on the campus each evehing for a story hour and from that grew the idea of the league.

Miss Mary Ellen Dashiell, president of the Washington branch since it was organized in January, 1935, points out that the the telling of stories really is an art—in fact one of the most ancient of arts and once the only means of passing on the history and traditions of mankind. A story, to be enjoyed, must be shared, and it is the purpose of the members to share with others the inspiration and beauty they find in life and in literature.

Present Programs For Institutions

They go regularly to homes for the aged, hospitals and children's homes, the community centers, Friendship and Neighborhood Houses and GlenDale Hospital. Three or four members join in presenting the programs to provide variety both in the types of stories and the manner of telling them. There also are musicians in the membership who tell their stories in song.

Members of the league practice on each other at their monthly meetings. The program is delegated to different ones each month. They select their own material in keeping with the theme of the day. Last season legends of different lands were given. The November program, on America, included Indian and colored folk lore and music as well as stories of the Pilgrim Fathers and the pioneres.

In December, with England as the background, Dicken's Christmas Carol and other English Christmas stories were told. In January Russian legends formed the program; in February those of Norway and Sweden; in March Mrs. H. Lyle Campbell, of the Better Speech Institute, presented a recital; in April there were the ancient tales of the Orient, and in May, those of Ireland, the home of story telling, and of Scotland.

Simplicity Is Essential in Art

"One must live with a story to tell it well," says Miss Dashiell. "There is also art in rearranging and cutting material so as to hold the listeners' interest. A book may be absorbing reading and yet not lend itself readily to the briefer version of the story-teller. Natural simplicity is essential to success in the art of story-telling.

"Our league is an organization for both old and young. Often older persons particularly enjoy it because they already have gathered a wealth of material through their reading and experience, and the participation in programs is a pleasure rather than a burden to them. They also welcome the opportunity to share with others that which has brought them joy."

In addition to visiting institutions regularly, the Story League answers requests for programs. Its members always are on call. This summer they have gone to the Girl Scout Camp and are glad to respond wherever story-tellers can bring cheer and entertainment.

One of the tales Miss Dashiell most enjoys telling is a romance based on letters found in the secret drawer of an old desk at Arlington House—letters, written and tucked away there at the time Lafayette visited this country. She has entertained audiences in six States with this story which is one of her own and she calls it the Romance of Arlington House. Needless to say little girls and boys who know members of the Story League, hardly let them inside the door before there comes the request "Oh, please tell me a story."

Officers of the Washington League, in addition to Miss Dashiell, include, Mrs. Maud F. Roby, first vice president; Miss Margaret A. Simmons, second vice president Miss Gertrude Niemeyer, secretary Miss Ruth Beuchert, treasurer, and Miss Florence Corby, librarian.

Other members are Miss Constance Adams, Miss Edith Allnutt, Miss Winifred Alvather, Miss Ruth Arnold, Miss Ruth E. Barnes, Miss Martha Bennett, Mrs. Gladys S. Bennion, Miss Ruth M. Beuchert, Miss Isabel Buckinsham, Mrs. Aileen M. Burns, Mrs. Lucy G. Bussey, Miss Thelma Caldwell, Mrs. Fannie B. Colonna, Miss Florence Corby, Mrs. Jane Donaldson, Miss Marguerite Dunbar, Miss Dorothy Emerson, Mrs. Hiram Evans, Mrs. M. B. Frothingham, Miss E. E. Greenlee, Miss Evangeline Gruver, Miss Laura Jacobs.

Also Miss Elizabeth Johnson, Miss Willamy King, Mrs. W. J. Knott, Miss Kate D. Lenoir, Miss Eleanor McGinnis, Miss Eileen C. Mitchell; Miss Elsa Muench, Miss Georgia Ramey, Miss Ethel M. Regan, Miss Janet Roby, Mrs. R. J. Rudd, Miss Etta Mai Russell, Miss Martha Seabrook, Miss Margaet A. Simmonds, Mrs. P. C. Smith, Miss Ruth Smith, Miss Mildred Tong, Miss Helen G Smith, Mrs. Jennie Esmond Wright, Miss Thelma A. Schmidt, Mrs. Charles S. Stephenson and Mrs. R. E. Doherty.

Loren Hortons Leave With Niece for Orient

From San Francisco they will go directly to Manila, where they will remain for some time visiting friends. From there they will sail to China, and later they will visit Japan, Java, Siam and Australia. They will return to Washington early next year.

MRS. DOROTHY K. BUTLER, of Arlington, was hostess last night at the weekly get-together at the Women's City Club. Members had supper in the coffee room and an informal program followed. Mrs. Albert E. Dodge, who recently returned from Vermont, will be in charge of the Thursday evening meetings for the remainder of the summer season.

Mrs. Butler entertained members and guests with an account of her trip this summer to the Scandinavian countries. It was a journey covering only the high points, she said, with stops at principal ports and the capitals. Going over, there was a large group of Danes on the ship, returning to their country in time for the celebration of King Christian's jubilee. The boat arrived on the day of the celebration, giving the passengers opportunity to see the Danish city in its holiday dress.

Despite the heat, members of the City Club gather each week for the suppers and programs in the clubhouse 726 Jackson place, at several of which those who just returned from interesting trips like thatof Mrs. Butler's have given accounts of their travels. Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, president of the club, a week ago was hostess and, at the request of the members, told of her trip to Mexico last spring. She also arranged a program of informal games in which the guests all joined.

Among those present last night were Mrs. Wiley, Mrs. Edith Sears, Miss Blanche Crapo, Miss Emma Arnold, Mrs. John M. Glover, Miss Martha Lane, Miss Olive Beatty, Miss Flora Hoff, Mrs. A. L. Gardner, Miss Maybelle Raymond, Miss Mary Gott, Miss S. Pearl Jencks, Miss Mary E. Faunsnaugh, Miss Louise McCrone, Miss Regina Butzen, Miss Charlotte L. Carmody, Miss Mary Black, Miss Ethel Johnson, Miss Esther Hill and Mrs. Kate Bates.

Women's Clubs Plan Exhibits at Marlboro Fair

THE MARLBORO FAIR, which opens August 24 at Upper Marlboro, Md., won't be all horse races. There will be a building devoted to women's clubs' exhibits as in previous years, and 12 clubs of Prince Georges County will co-operate in preparing displays.

Mrs. George B. Merrick, president of the Woman's Club of Melwood District and county fair chairman of the Prince Georges Federation of Women's Clubs, is in charge of arrangements, with Mrs. Mary Euwer as chairman of the general exhibit. Mrs. Merrick has directed the women's participation in the fair program for the past four years.

The clubs have been following the General Federation's conservation project and their exhibits will deal with various phases of this study. They will include displays on soil erosion, reforestation, crop rotation and other subjects under the head of conservation.

Each club receives $20 for participating in the fair and competes for prizes of $70, $50, $25, $15 and $10 offered for the individual exhibits.

The organizations included are the Woman's Community Club of Hyattsville, Decatur Heights Housekeepers Club and Decatur Heights Community Club, Chillum District Study Club, the Woman's Community Club of Brandywine, the Landover Community Club, Oxon Hill Woman's Club, the Woman's Club of Melwood District, the Woman's Community Club of Berwyn, the Civic League of Mount Rainier and the Woman's Club of Riverdale.

Picnic Is Held By Soroptimist Club Members

BRAVING the threat of rain, members of the Soroptimist Club last night took their picnic baskets in hand and assembled in Rock Creek Park for a supper party. Mrs. Claudia Brown, chairman of the social committee, was in charge of arrangements for the midsummer outing.

The Soroptimists meet for weekly luncheons at the Willard from September to July and the members miss seeing each other in the summer. The result has been several get-togethers within the recent "meetingless" weeks.

Last night, following the picnic supper, which was served at a long table at No. 24 picnic grounds, Mrs. Brown had arranged games for entertainment. There were horseshoe pitching, baseball and relay races in which the club members and their guests joined.

Guests included Mrs. Mae C. Bowman, president of the Soroptimist Club of Alexandria, and Mrs. Anna Rose, president of the Montgomery County Club.

Among others in the party were Miss Daisy Reed, president of the Washington Club; Mrs. Edna Hoffman, Miss Elva McNamara, Miss Ella Werner, Miss Emma Beuchele, Miss Alice Thomas and Miss Sallie Dillard.

Miss Reed and Mrs. Hoffman spent last week at Sandy Cove, Md., and over the week-end, just before their return to Washington, had as their guests three other members of the club Miss Thomas, Miss McNamara and Mrs. Helen Bogan.

"Madame Chairman" . . .

By Suzanne.

Washingtonians have learned with interest of the selection of Charlotte Carr to carry on the work of Jane Addams at Hull House, in Chicago. She leaves the Emergency Relief Bureau in New York the first of October to take over her new duties.

Miss Carr, whose home was originally in Dayton, Ohio, was sent to Madeira School here to prepare for Vassar College, where she was graduated in 1915. Her family was opposed to her working after her graduation, but she was insistent and took a position as matron of an orphan asylum in Columbus, Ohio—or maybe it was just a "job"—her salary was $18 a month, but it definitely launched her on a career of social service.

From there she went to New York to join the New York State Charities Aid Association. She was working there when the United States entered the war, a situation which presented opportunity for more important work, she felt.

She joined the New York Probation and Protective Association and was enrolled as Special Patrolman 720 of the New York Police Department. Her chief duty in this capacity was to look after young girls who, carried away by war hysteria, had left their homes to follow enlisted men to the metropolis. Later she took a position as an assistant in the employment agency of a large lithographic concern; from there she went to a textile mill as employment manager, then to a hat factory to take a similar position, becoming constantly more impressed with the need for improvement in relations between capital and labor.

For two years she was director of the Bureau of Women in Industry in the New York State labor department under Frances Perkins and then went to Pennsylvania at the request of Gov. Pinchot to organize a similar bureau in Harrisburg. The result of her success was her appointment as secretary of labor for that State. At the close of Gov. Pinchot's administration she returned to New York and has remained there since. October 1 she goes to Chicago "to interpret democracy in social terms," according to the precepts of Jane Addams.

Miss Mae Helm, who has just returned from a short stay in New York, had luncheon while she was there with Miss Henrietta Additon who, for several years has shared an apartment with Miss Carr. Miss Additon, a former deputy police commissioner in New York City, is now director of welfare for the World's Fair program, with offices on the twenty-fifth floor of the Empire State Building.

Miss Helm, on her trip up New York way, also spent the week-end with Mrs. John Allan Dougherty at her home in Westport, Conn.

OTHERS MAY COMPLAIN of Washington's heat if they care to. There is one person who is not complaining of our Capital—Miss Louise McCrone—for this time last year she was in Madrid. She was one of about 150 refugees living in the American Embassy there from July until September, when they were evacuated aboard the U. S. S. Quincy.

Miss McCrone was among the guests at the informal dinner at the City Club last night, dressed in a gay frock of Roman striped silk, which I thought surely had come from war-torn Spain, but instead it was from Baltimore. One did not buy dresses ready made in Spain, Miss McCrone explained; one had them made by a "modista."

However, memories of shopping tours and the picturesque Spain of her first year there have been crowded out by those of the last two months, when she was in the midst of the revolution. She had been in Government service for several years, working in the Department of Agriculture, prior to her assignment to the United States Commercial Attache's office in Madrid.

At first, when the revolution broke, she was inspired with a desire to "see the fight." She ventured from apartment to office without fear until a carload of young desperadoes came swaying by as she walked along the street and one of the girls made a derisive remark and he leveled a gun at her. With this experience, her thirst for being on hand for the excitement was suddenly quenched.

On July 22 she was called to the embassy and found the building was being prepared to receive Americans who wished to live there for protection. It was also knee deep in telegrams from inquiring friends. With other members of the group, she brought clothing, bedding and food and prepared to take up residence. The first two nights she slept on a sheet spread on the office floor. Later a mattress was obtained for her. Mattresses were also spread on the floor of the embassy ballroom and in the garage to accommodate the refugees of the American colony.

Woman's City Club Continues Its Activities

Summer has not entirely curtailed the program at the Women's City Club. Every Thursday night there is a supper followed by a program. Members of one party at the supper last evening were Miss Louise McCrone, left; Mrs. Albert G. Dodge, who is in charge of the weekly gatherings; Miss Ethel Johnson and Mrs. Dorothy K. Butler, who presented last night's program.

Dinner Held By Women Of the Moose

Chapter Meets Tonight, Plans Annual Picnic at Glen Echo.

A fried chicken dinner was served by the Annapolis Marching Club of Columbia Chapter, Women of the Moose, to the officers and committee members of Columbia Lodge last evening at Moose Hall. The proceeds from the dinner will start the Marching Club fund. Mrs. Margaret Deegan, Mrs. Anna Wagner, Mrs. Margaret Bates, Mrs. Alice McNulty, Mrs. Blanch Myers and Miss Margaret Mitchell formed the committee on arrangements.

At the chapter meeting tonight, plans will be completed for the annual picnic supper at Glen Echo, with the families of members of the chapter and the officers of Columbia Lodge as guests.

Next Thursday the ritualistic committee will meet at Moose Hall at 8 p. m.

The Homemaking Committee met Monday evening with the chairman, Mrs. Mae Sine, to organize the committee and outline plans for the early fall. Mrs. Mary Haines was elected as assistant chairman; Mrs. Mary Richards, secretary, and Mrs. James P. Mitchell, treasurer.

The committee will make a "ship" design quilt for one of the beds at Dixie Hall, Mooseheart, as its first project. Work will begin at once. The committee will also make aprons for the women at Moosehaven, national home for the aged of the order near Jacksonville, Fla., and renovate the draperies at Moose Hall.

Any Woman May Be Glamorous This Fall; Elaborate New Fashions Turn the Trick

This is the second in a series of articles on fall style trends as they will affect Washington women, by The Post Fashion Editor, who is in the New York markets viewing the new collections and talking over the latest ideas in fashion with prominent designers.

By Ethel Ehlen.

The Post Fashion Editor.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—If you have envied the glamour girls of the stage and screen and longed to have a more glamorous wardrobe yourself, the fall fashions offer you this opportunity. With the 1900 influence prevailing in the collections, there never has been such an array of luxurious materials, such styling synonymous with affluence and elegance, and such a general feeling of grandeur in clothes for all occasions. Any woman can have that elusive air of glamour this fall, if she studies the style trends carefully and plans her wardrobe wisely. This does not mean that she needs to be a millionaire, as even a limited budget can do wonders if shopping is planned methodically and not done in a haphazard manner.

Accessories Go Glamorous.

Materials for both daytime and evening are definitely in the luxurious classification; rich velvets and laces, metal cloth and brocades, gorgeous upholstering materials (for formal evening), gleaming satins, silk crepes with unusual surface interest, rustling taffetas, fluttering chiffons in unique color combinations. Paillettes and sequins are back in the style picture to add a touch of glitter to dinner and evening ensembles; expensive furs trim cocktail and evening suits; hundreds of tiny mirrors are called into service to enhance daytime costumes; ostrich feathers decorate gowns and hats in a charming modernized gay ninety influence; huge veils float gracefully from sophisticated hats; gloves and shoes echo the glamorous trends in styling and color schemes.

Jewelry has staged a return to the style picture—it is a necessary accompaniment to offset the new materials and fashions. The new costume jewelry, in glittering stones and antique metals of gold and silver color, copy rare old pieces in design and color themes. Millinery has gone high-hat and dashing, featuring rich materials and distinctive, colorful trimmings. Suits and coats, either trimmed with fur or unadorned, stress femininity and elegance, rather than nonchalance; fur coats were never more flattering or smarter. Handbags in antelope and suede echo the general scheme of luxury and elegance; many of them are inspired by ancient and romantic eras of history and adapted to modern utility and beauty.

Mode Is Individual.

Colors, too, reflect the decorative trend of the times. While black outnumbers any other color, there are luscious post-coronation jewel tones, colors of the 1900 era, Oriental hues and tints, and high-fashion color tones of unusual richness. Foremost in the current color chart are the basic colors—black, brown, various shades of green (green is coming into prominence as the season advances), purply reds, rust, the new blues. The 1900 colors are highlighted by Schiaparelli's wardrobe for Mae West and include champagne; taupe, talisman green, grape, chartreuse, Wilhelmina blue. In the realm of high-fashion tones are spicy shades of brown, stone blue, beige with a new caste, unusual grays, hollyberry red, grayed purples, deep greens. Directoire colors, sponsored by the Paris Exposition, are: ivory, poudre blue, lavender and light yellow-green.

There is a remarkable diversity in the fall mode which makes for individuality and distinctiveness, at the same time not interfering with all this glamour, which is seen everywhere. For instance, both Paris and American designs are sponsoring a pencil-like silhouette for daytime and the full-skirted silhouette for formal evening. To give a luxurious look to an otherwise simple daytime or evening costume, Paris is showing belts of self-material, studded with synthetic jewels or metals.

Gleaming black satin is the medium for a glamorous formal evening gown, whose shaped decolletage is edged with pleated net, which also fashions the deep ruching atop the long sleeves. The accessories, consisting of a clip, bracelets, earrings and tiara, echo the glamor theme so popular in the new fall styles. Fay Wray posed for the photograph.

Brunette Must Be Skillful in Picking Colors

By the Associated Press.

To prove it, all she needs is a frank friend who will hold a piece of chartreuse-colored cloth under her chin, step back a few paces and study the effect. It doesn't take an artist to see that the chartreuse brings out all the yellow in this brunette's skin—and it had more than its share of yellow to start with.

All right. Now hold a piece of pure green under the chin of our sallow brunette. There's a different story. The pure green more nearly harmonizes with the brunette's skin. Then try brown, rust and rose beige. Those colors, she'll find, are best of all.

You Must Experiment.

The experimental method is the only one to use, says Miss Muriel Cox, of Boston, who has given advice on clothing to hundreds of student stylists and department store executives.

But before she takes up cloth colors she tests the color of the questioner's skin by holding against her forehead a card with a peephole cut in it. Your forehead gives your true skin color—"background color," Miss Cox calls it. Cheeks are "foreground color," and shouldn't be considered when buying clothes.

With the aid of the peephole an amateur can see what color predominates in her skin—pink, purple, yellow or brown.

The skin is the most important detail to consider when picking clothes colors. Hair and eyes rank second, says Miss Cox. But she makes two exceptions:

If you have blue or blue-green eyes—in which case play them up.

If you have red hair—in which case you must think of it first.

Some Conclusions.

Many persons wear clothes that are too obvious, such as bright red, for instance, which separates the foreground from the background. Try blended colors, peach or dull blue, instead.

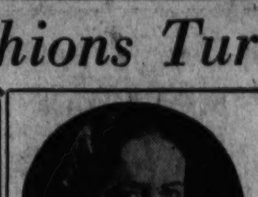
Women with dark hair and eyes can safely essay strong colors, to play up the contrast. Others should try to match the skin, rather than to contrast it.

Women with pink in their skins can wear a greater variety of colors than women with skins of yellow or tan pigmentation. But—here's the catch—they don't look so well as the yellows and tans who wear fewer colors, but with more dash.

Owners of carroty hair should stick to dark or dull colors, preferably grays and green-blues. They need to tone down their fiery hair.

Red-haired people, by the way, are the easiest to dress or the most difficult, depending on their pigmentation. A pink skin with red hair is particularly difficult, and calls for more subtle colors than does the white skin-red hair combination.

Clothes colors can't be forgotten when it come to make-up, either, says Miss Cox. Rouge must harmonize with the skin. Lipstick must harmonize with the colors you wear.



MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Describing 6-Year-Old Son, the Baby of the Family as "Bad and Mean," Mother Asks Advice.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have daughters and a very unruly, mischievous and bad boy six years old. He is my youngest. Due to financial difficulties I have had to help support the family and hence secured a Government job four years ago. It was very difficult at first to get used to being away from the children, depending upon a servant to look after them and the house, but gradually I became adjusted to it.

* * * *

The children are fine, normal and healthy, although with stricter discipline they would have been more obedient and easier to handle—especially the boy. Instead of co-operating with me when I reproach or punish them, my husband lets them have their way and disagrees with me in their hearing. Now I can not handle the boy at all and I feel like a nervous wreck.

* * * *

My husband says the child is like all other boys and that nothing can be done until he outgrows his badness and meanness; but I feel desperate at times. What the child needs is very strict discipline, administered in the correct way, but I admit he cannot get it at home. I should like to send him to some school for the remainder of the summer, where he can get personal supervision but my difficulty is that I cannot afford to pay very much. I shall appreciate your advice. Respectfully, E. S.

A Bid for Attention.

DEAR E. S.: You must be very tired and short-tempered indeed to regard the baby of your family as "bad and mean." No doubt you are suffering from over-fatigue and worry. It's quite possible the boy became unruly and disobedient as a way of compelling your attention. When a child is denied a sufficiency of maternal love, tenderness and patient understanding, almost instinctively (if he is a normally lusty child) he adopts a type of conduct which commands another brand of attention. To him, almost any kind of attention is better than no attention at all.

* * * *

It is my opinion that much of his mischievousness could have been obviated had you, from the very beginning of your necessitous employment outside the home, taken care to give him a reassuring amount of mother companionship mornings and evenings. As a working mother myself, I realize how difficult of achievement this is, but I also know that it is the all-important "stitch in time." Any child who, year in and year out, is denied the day-long reassurance of his mother's companionship should—in my opinion—be made to realize that though mother is absent, when she comes home it will be as a bearer of an inexhaustible abundance of wise and understanding love and full concern for him.

* * * *

He should not be shunted aside while mother oversees dinner preparations, checks the laundry, and attends to a thousand-and-one household duties waiting for supervision. Some period of the day, morning or evening—but preferably evening, just before his bedtime, say—should be given over fully to him; for reading, games, singing of lullabies, for quiet lap-sitting, or a happy exchange of childish confidences. If he knows confidently that he can have mother's attention without kicking and screaming to obtain it, he isn't half so apt to indulge in the latter brand of antics.

* * * *

Sometimes, disciplinary difficulties arise out of personality conflict between a child and a servant who is mentally incapable of understanding the child's temperament and handling him as he should be handled for best results. The servant may resent the child's quite innocent antics, and the child, in turn, may resent the servant's inept handling of a given situation, and a disturbing chain of trouble-making episodes ensue. Perhaps, consciously or unconsciously, the child fears and dislikes his nurse. Perhaps you have failed to give him good reason for placing full trust in your wisdom and full dependence upon your love. Maybe he feels himself one against the world. Perhaps you let others criticize him bitterly while he listens—then plainly register resentment and hopelessness. All discussion of his conduct should be conducted when he is not present. When you possess all obtainable data on any charge of misconduct, you should deal with him privately: gently, patiently, reasonably and firmly. Any child who is old enough to understand his mother tongue is old enough to be schooled in the thought that the best and tenderest mother love sometimes must express itself through the medium of firm discipline.

* * * *

Incidentally, a mother of six was telling me the other day of a startling conversational exchange with her 4-year-old son. He is a spirited little creature, with the average child's tendency toward occasional disobedience. His mother was forced to discipline him. He fumed at her, with sparks flying from his eyes: "Do you call this love? She told him firmly: "Yes, son. I call this love." And went on to explain to him the less pleasant duties of mother love, whereupon he forgave her and completely accepted her point of view.

However, to return to your query about where to send the child: my advise is to consult Mrs. Fannie M. Epstein, secretary of the Child Guidance Clinic of the Washington Life Adjustment Center, 1464 Columbia road northwest. You may make an appointment for consultation with one of the social workers by telephoning Mrs. Epstein at ADams 1033. The office is open from 8:30 a. m. to 4 p. m. daily (except Saturdays) and special appointments for working parents are sometimes made for Monday evenings.

Mrs. Epstein tells me your problem will be attentively studied, after which plans will be made in accordance with the need as indicated. If it appears the boy should be sent to school for a course of strict, impersonal discipline, the Child Guidance Clinic will help you find a school within your means.

Writing Urged As Recreation For Youngsters

Let the children write to their friends, without guidance, says Dr. H. Wayne Driggs, New York University professor, after a study of 2,000 letters by children.

Writing letters gives children opportunity to use a rich vocabulary they never use in the classroom, he finds.

Comparing letters with compositions by the same children, Dr. Driggs found that the unusual words in compositions obviously had been "lifted" from required reading, but those in the letters sprang from the child's interests.

Boys have a better command of words than girls, Dr. Driggs has discovered, because they have wider activities. So he advises parents to subject children to a variety of experiences, says it will improve their vocabulary.

Dr. Driggs has discovered that, in letters, girls talk more about school, take more interest in dress and looks, write longer letters. Boys write mainly about sports.

But in the average child's letter, school remains the most prominent topic. Other popular subjects are camps and vacations, family and friends, amusements, animals and pets.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes

New York, Aug. 12.

NOTHING has pleased me more in a month of blue-law Sundays than the recent visit of the three winners of the most sensible and useful "best-dressed contest" in history. I mean the three young ladies who won a three-week trip to Italy for the smartness and becomingness of dresses they actually made themselves.

ALICE HUGHES.

That competition, promoted by pattern makers, meant something. Any sister with an elephantine bankroll and a smidgin of taste can pretty well crash these "ten best-dressed lists" run by Paris designers for their best customers. But give me the girl who knows the north end of a needle from the south and is clever and tasteful enough to run up a number of her own. I wonder how many there are, for most of the New York girls I see wouldn't know a needle if it jabbed them in the laig.

And here were these three girls—Ruth Burns, of Nebraska, who shook up a tasty turquoise blue sharkskin suit; Ruth Burnett, of Detroit, whose entry was an evening gown costing all of $10, and Isabelle Judkins, a pretty airplane hostess from California, whose offering was an ensemble which included a silk print dress and a brown silk crepe coat.

And they were all pretty, vivid girls, I found—not prosy sit-in-corners at all. Instead of moping about on the front porch envying girls with lots of clothes-money, they set to work and made their own, and mighty swell duds they were, too, for I saw them. And as I saw the girls sail on the Conte di Savoia, I was sure that never was a trip more worthily earned!

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—I have been scratching the newspapers and polling my pals to see if American womanhood has so far been affected by that French verdict which fined a Gallic cutie $3.75 for shooting a count in the leg. Strangely enough, I cannot locate any undue outbursts of gunfire in the nation, even though I know at least a dozen ladies who would gladly fork over $7.50 for the privilege of shooting certain gentlemen anywhere at all. But they may feel that they could not count on such delightful old-world gallantry in our native courts. Or else they're just sissies...

* * * *

Isabelle Hallin, who lost her teaching job in Saugus, Mass., ostensibly because gossip said she served drinks to pupils, but really, I feel, because she is just too darned pretty, has turned up in town to take a screen test. No matter what a pretty girl does these days, she gets a screen test. The rest of us would just be reading the want ads . . .

The strong drink business in bottled goods here is 5 per cent better than it was at the same time last year, smirking dealers report. Faugh! For shame! . . .

* * * *

I hear that Sally Rand, the girl who made the ostrich feather fan famous, has done it again. Her performance in the lead of "They Knew What They Wanted" at Ogunquit, Me., is said to have reminded old-timers of snappy work by Duse, Bernhardt and Rejane. When Sally gets so old she creaks when she waves the fan or bounces the big toy balloon, she will probably become America's foremost tragedienne overnight and play the whistle-stops under canvas! Great girl, that Sally! . . .

* * * *

The meanest vandals in the world are those who recently upset and smashed over 200 tombstones in historic Trinity Cemetery here. I can't believe men could be so vicious—must have been done by bad boys who didn't realize the enormity!

* * * *

As you probably know, most of our citizens now call every field of activity, legal or not, a "racket." Butchers are in the meat racket. But here's a real racket I heard of the other day— something like smuggling Chinamen. Certain women here have been operating employment agencies without license and bringing country girls to town to hire out illegally as housemaids. One was charged with bringing as many as 50 girls a week from South Carolina, and she's held in high bail for this odd type of dealing in humans.

Many Recipes Are Founded On Sauerkraut

Such is its versatility that kraut lends itself to use at breakfast, lunch, dinner and late supper. It is also utilized in diets for building up the weight and for reducing purposes. A good many dietitians prescribe kraut and kraut juice for both because they possess health building and health maintaining properties necessary in either adding to the weight or in helping maintain vigor with a reduced diet.

Beauty experts also advise liberal use of the produce to help beautify the complexion, for the lactic ferments present in generous quantities are of material aid in keeping the intestinal tract clean.

Breakfast Innovation.

A delicious new breakfast omelet is made by adding strained and chopped sauerkraut to the usual ingredients of beaten eggs and pieces of bacon, seasoned to taste.

Kraut Fruit Salad.

(Main luncheon dish, or salad with dinner.)

Combined with pineapple and cherries, raw kraut proves very adaptable and makes a dish both tasty and healthful, and one which requires vigorous mastication, thus contributing to dental health as well. This mixture, when served on crisp lettuce leaves and garnished with chopped nuts and a fruit salad dressing, is tempting in appearance as well as taste.

Cooking Hints

Try making peach fritters. Add one cup of diced fresh or canned peaches to the regular fritter batter. Serve as either the main dish or for dessert.

Vegetables used in salads should be dried well before they are combined with salad dressing. Otherwise the salad is likely to become too watery.

To cut hard-cooked eggs evenly, use a silver knife frequently dipped in cold water. A steel knife may discolor the egg white.

If tomatoes are only half ripe, the ripe part may be used for salads, while the greener portions may be broiled or fried.

To remove rust stains from the refrigerator, rub with steel wool and then apply a coat of white enamel. This is an inexpensive and effective treatment.

One-fourth teaspoon lemon juice added to each cup of heavy cream will hasten the whipping. Have cream and utensils thoroughly chilled to prevent the mixture from turning to butter. This is particularly important in summer.

To clean chintz draperies or furniture covers brush them with a clean, stiff brush that is dipped frequently in cold water. The work should be done quickly.

New 15-Inch Skirts Viewed as Too Short

New York (AP).—The world is not plentifully enough supplied with beautiful legs to have skirts 15 inches from the floor, Miss Kay Morrison, young dress designer, believes; so she is making her daytime skirts 13½ inches from the floor.

Youthful looking evening dresses have skirts that trail slightly in the back and are sometimes slit to the knee in front.

Nearly every evening gown has its brief little jacket. A dull white crepe gown has a short jacket of pale gold brocade. Black evening gowns have matching long-sleeved jackets.

Old-Fashioned Bouquet Center Adds Summer Touch to Spread

ADD an old-fashioned bouquet of dainty roses, cornflowers, daisies, fern and forget-me-nots to your bedspread and preserve the glory of summertime throughout the year! A lace frill—actual lace, gathered a bit—trims your colorful bouquet and contributes to the gayety and individuality of your spread. So easy to do, the charming result is well worth the brief time spent on a bit of simple embroidery. Begin on it right away! In Pattern 5906 you will find a transfer pattern of one motif 16¼x21½ inches; one motif 5½x9½ inches; four motifs 3x3 inches; a color chart; material requirements; illustrations of all stitches used.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Washington Post, Household Arts Dept., 259 West Fourteenth street, New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and pattern number.

Elusive Aroma Is Given Clothes by Pomanders

Pomanders, those old-fashioned scent balls made by studding oranges with whole cloves, are being shown in smart shops as the appropriate thing to hang in clothes closets to give an elusive aroma to the fall wardrobe. Anyone can make a simple pomander at home, simply by sticking the skin of a whole orange full of cloves until the rind is almost invisible. Tie a piece of ribbon round the middle, make a loop, and you have a pomander which will yield its delicate perfume for many months.

PLEASANT HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

WHEN her little boy tears through a room, leaving havoc in his wake, our neighbor decides sure that he's going to grow up to be a gangster. Then she remembers the litle rowdies of her childhood and thinks what law abiding citizens they are now. So her hope is renewed. Or she wonders if she is just consoling herself for having a son who makes himself heard in no uncertain terms.

Anyway, we've been trying to decide what to suggest for his room which is just graduating from the nursery era into the little-boy stage. We got several tips when we called on a new lady in the neighborhood. Knowing that we were interested in home decoration, she showed us through her house (well, maybe we did hint!). She'd really done it up brown from soup to nuts, one of the few homes we've been through in a long time that really seemed finished. You'll probably be reading about more of the rooms in coming weeks, but today we're absorbed with the little boy's room because that was the one that interested us personally most at the moment.

The floors were covered in wide board patterned linoleum, and the walls were in a wall linoleum in a warm peach color. That gave a sunny glow to the room and had the added advantage of being very washable. A maple trestle table was placed at right angles to a window in just the right place for anything in boy's life from taxidermy to arithmetic. A maple chest of drawers with a mirror over it to provide for his clothes and a lift-lid chest made out of a homemade box with a hinged top was painted a blue-green. The bed was a studio couch with blue-green end tables also homemade of boxes with shelves in them for books. Then the spread for the couch was of rust plaid denim with cushions in blue-green denim. The rust plaid naterial was repeated again on an upholstered chair cover and lamp bases in copper took up the some tone. The walls were decorated with boyish treasures of his own choosing.

Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for the writer's bulletin "Design for Painted Furniture Decorations" which contains patterns to trace on painted furniture of walls.

Today's HEALTH TALK

Physiognomy, Graphology.

DR. DONALD LAIRD has written a book called "The Psychology of Selecting Employes," which should prove of great value to employers, and is of interest to anyone.

What causes the difference in the efficiency of a worker is partly physical, but mostly psychological. How to determine efficiency has frequently been based on physical characters. The so-called science of physiognomy and graphology has had claims made for them since time immemorial, but Dr. Laird does not believe that character can be read from the face or appearance.

He has a picture of five men. The mental capacity of each is known from experience. He asks you to number each picture in the order that you consider them to rank from a study of the face. Nobody in my family or neighborhood came anywhere near being right. I am sure that this is impossible. In dealing with classes of students, when I first meet them it is natural to try to judge their abilities by a study of the faces, but I am seldom able to pick the two or three most capable on this basis.

Not long ago a test was made for the general public to see how many could determine character from appearance. A railroad president and a feeble-minded convict sat upon a platform in front of a large crowd. The majority of the members of the audience were unable to tell which was which.

The size of the head is no criterion of mental capacity. One of the largest crania on record was that of the Russian novelist, Turgenev, but he was far outstripped by an unknown Indian whose skull was recently dug up near Washington.

Since appearance is the thing which is really tested when an employer interviews a prospective employe, the interview as a method of selection is really almost worthless.

Equally so, according to Dr. Laird, is the letter of application. Graphologists have long made claims that handwriting reveals character—a heavy line indicates strength of will; light pressure, emotional depression; vertical writing indicates self-control. There is nothing to it.

A test was made on certain individual characteristics, and 17 medical students were judged on this basis and the results compared with the actual known characteristics of the persons.

Ambition is supposed to be indicated when the lines in writing slope uphill. The medical student generally acknowledged to be the most ambitious had one of the most downward sloping writings of the entire group, and the most unambitious had the most uphill writing. The way you cross your t's doesn't mean anything one way or another. It was impossible to tell from the examination of five letters which writer was the most intelligent or, in fact, anything about him whatever.

As in most things in life, experience is the best judge of efficiency. Put them to work and the best will soon emerge.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a 3-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Serving Vegetables Instead of Meat Suggested as One Way of Averting Worry Over Home Budget

By Rebekah Blake.

INSTEAD of spending hours worrying over balancing the budget because of skyrocketing prices of meat, let vegetables be your main dish and meats function as the seasoning and flavoring.

The vegetable supply is large and inexpensive enough to vary the meals so that they need not become monotonous if you will use imagination, ingenuity and caution in planning and buying.

There are many different ways to prepare vegetables. Some lend themselves to stuffing with ingredients that are both appetizing and inexpensive. Among those that can be easily stuffed are: eggplants, tomatoes, potatoes, green peppers, cucumbers and onions. Peppers, onions and tomatoes may be prepared with either raw or cooked ingredients. Potatoes can be either boiled or baked for stuffing.

Tomatoes may be stuffed with cream cheese, pickles or olives. Peppers may be filled with raw shredded cabbage, pickles, tomatoes or celery, or they may be filled with muffin batter with a little bacon chopped in it and then baked. Eggplants are delectable when filled with cheese and baked.

Occasionally prepare your vegetables in a casserole—especially when it becomes the main part of the meal. Great variety in flavoring and taste can be obtained in the casserole dish and this can be sufficiently substantial to make almost an entire meal.

Two common faults in preparing vegetables are: overcooking and drowning their flavor in too much water. Cooked vegetables should retain full flavor, good color and a certain crispness. If they are properly cooked, there will be very little water left. Two pounds of shelled peas, for instance, will require one cup of boiling water, and one pound of string beans will take about two cups of boiling water. If you use lightweight saucepans, more water may be needed. If peas or beans are cooked with tight-fitting covers, less water will be required. And by the time the vegetables are cooked about half the water should have evaporated.

Strong flavored vegetables, such as broccoli and cauliflower, will require a large amount of boiling water, although shredded cabbage needs only a small amount and cooks in five to eight minutes. The liquid left from a lot of vegetables will make a good basis for soup or a nice sauce for the vegetables.

Eggs or cheese can be used to excellent advantage for flavoring or garnishing. Cooked bananas are now used as a vegetable to give interest and savor. Fruits may be combined with vegetables to complete the meal. Both may be served on the same plate.

Health authorities are emphasizing the nutritional value of raw vegetables. A vegetable salad is an ideal side dish for a hearty main course. This may be as varied and colorful as you choose to make it. It may be all vegetables or combined with fruits.

Each vegetable is rich in some necessary vitamin and by carefully selecting your vegetables you can have all the necessary elements that are essential to good health at very little cost.

Baked Stuffed Cucumbers.

Pare 2 cucumbers, cut in halves lengthwise and remove centers, making cases. Mix 1 cup cracker crumbs with 4 tablespoons butter. Reserve ¼ cup crumbs. To remainder add ⅔ cup tomato, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ tablespoon pepper and 1 tablespoon chopped onion. Put in cucumber cases, cover with reserved crumbs and bake surrounded with stock water, 30 minutes or until tender at 350 degrees F.

Green Peppers Stuffed With Macaroni.

Remove and reserve tops and discard seeds from 4 green peppers, cook 5 minutes in boiling salted water and drain. Cook ½ cup macaroni until tender in boiling salted water. Add 2-3 cup cooked tomato, ½ cup grated cheese, 1-3 cup dry bread crumbs, ¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, ½ teaspoon paprika, ¼ teaspoon pepper and ¼ teaspoon salt and use to stuff the peppers. Stand upright in baking dish, pour over tomato sauce and bake at 350 degrees F. for 30 to 40 minutes.

Tomatoes Stuffed With Pepper and Celery Salad.

Discard seeds from 1 green pepper and chop fine. Add an equal amount of celery cut fine. Mix with salad dressing and serve in hollowed-out tomatoes on lettuce. This mixture may be used as sandwich filling.

Corn, Tomato and Potato Casserole.

2 cups corn, canned or fresh
½ cup crumbs
2 tablespoons butter
4 sliced tomatoes
1 onion, minced
2 eggs
½ tablespoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Potatoes or Macaroni.

Add eggs, crumbs, onion, green pepper, butter and salt and mix well. Place in bottom of well-greased casserole. Put corn and sliced tomatoes over the other ingredients. Top with mashed potatoes or macaroni. Bake in moderate oven, 375 degrees F., 45 minutes to one hour. Strips of bacon or cheese may be placed over the top if desired.

One-Step Meals Ease Burden of Housewives

Get in the one-step meal preparation habit. It's easy, economical and efficient. Instead of cooking part of each meal in the oven, part on the surface unit, part in the thrift cooker and part in the broiler, plan your meals so that everything will utilize one source of heat. Suggestion for oven meal: Ring mold meat loaf, noodles, escalloped tomatoes, golden corn bread, baked apple, tapioca pudding.

Cinnamon Fluff Is Ideal Dessert In Summertime

JUST WHY it should be more fun to make desserts than any other of the courses for a meal is somewhat of a mystery, but most women take a real delight in making the sweets. Possibly it is because these are served last and women feel that they should be a true climax of perfection, that housewives set such store by their dessert recipes.

The recipe for Cinnamon Fluff, given below, gives particularly delightful results. It is little more solid than a souffle and a little more delicate than a cake, but its rich cinnamon aroma and flavor make classification unnecessary. Serve it either warm or cold. Whipped cream or a foamy sauce are luxurious accompaniments but the Fluff is excellent without them.

Cinnamon Fluff.

2-3 cup sugar
⅓ cup butter
2 eggs, well beaten
1 cup sour milk
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
1½ cups flour
2 tablespoons cinnamon

Cream the butter and sugar together, then stir in the eggs. Sift the flour before measuring, then sift together three times all the dry ingredients. Add these, alternately with the milk and beat one minute. Put the mixture in a buttered baking dish and put aside until topping is made.

For the topping, mix together ½ cup sugar, 1 tablespoon butter and 1 tablespoon cinnamon. Spread this over the batter and bake in a slow oven for about 30 minutes, or until a tester comes out clean.

"Nerves" Cause Fatigue

KNOWN as a "wet blanket"—always too tired to join the fun. That's your fate if you suffer from nervous fatigue.

But distracted nerves that make you ache with weariness can be rerouted. Turned into other channels they give you the bubbling vitality that charms and attracts friends.

Few sufferers from nervous fatigue realize that inferiority feelings may cause wear and tear on sensitive nerves. Building up self-confidence prevents this unconscious, but wearisome, fretting over your shortcomings.

What if you're not as amusing a talker as Ruth Jones, or as capable a housekeeper as Gladys Smith! You have your good points. List them. Develop these fine points even further; be proud of them. Your new confidence releases the nervous energies you used up before.

Another reason for this weariness-without-work is too much concern with your own small problems. Turn some of this interest to other people or into a "cause" or hobby—and you're off your self-centered little squirrel wheel on which you exhaust yourself. So the very nerves which plagued you when you mistreated them can give you the sensitive, alert, vital charm that only women of naturally nervous temperament can have.

Record Time Is Made by Fleet Filly

By Orlo Robertson,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Goshen, N. Y., Aug. 12.—Shirley Hanover, a chip off the old block, turned in the most brilliant speed exhibition in the 12-year history of the Hambletonian today as she whipped 11 other great 3-year-old trotters in the blue ribbon event of light harness racing.

Stunning a crowd of 35,000 with the ease of her triumphs, the light-waisted filly from Lawrence B. Shephard's, Hanover, Pa., farms, carried on in the ways of her parents. She won in straight heats and established a new time record for a winner of the rich strike.

With Henry Thomas handling the reins, the daughter of Mr. McElwyn and Hanover Bertha traveled the first mile in 2:01½ and then came back to take the second in 2:01¼. Only once has the time for the first heat been beaten and that was in 1932 when Hollywood Dennis won one heat in 2:01¼.

Shirley Hanover came rightfully by her speed. Her sire was the champion 2 and 3-year-old trotter of 1923-24, hanging up a mark of 1:59¼, while her dam won the 1930 Hambletonian and later went on to step a mile in 1:59½. The victory also gave the popular master of the Hanover farm the honor of being the first owner to win two renewals of the stake.

Shirley's triumph was none too popular with the crowd, unusually large considering the fact that the race was postponed from yesterday. She was so lightly regarded in the auction pool betting that she was sold in the field and was given no better than a 10-to-1 chance to take the first heat.

There was little reason to believe that Shirley, beaten in her only two starts this year, would be able to leave behind such top-flight performers as Paul Bowser's favored Desota of Boston, Schnapps from W. N. Reynold's Winston-Salem (N. C.) stable, and Bill Strang's New York-owned Twilight Song. She had victories in the Illinois and Horsman Futurities and a time of 2:05¼ to show for her two-year-old campaign, however.

When it came to racing for $19,916.92, the winner's share of the purse of $37,912.58, the Hanover filly left little to be desired. She stepped home a half length in front of Farr, from E. Roland Harriman's Arden homstead of Goshen, in the first heat and then came back to breeze to the finish line with four lengths to spare over Desota in the second. Shephard won an additional $600 as nominator of the winner.

Farr could do no better than fourth in the final hea' and was forced to split second and third money, totaling $12,237, with Desota, which wound up in the opening dash after being established the even-money choice to take the major share of the purse.

Shirley Hanover driven to victory and record time by Henry Thomas in yesterday's twelfth running of the Hambletonian. The filly, whose dam won previously, is shown here leading the pack to the imaginary wire in the second and concluding heat. DeSota, the favorite (third from left), is finding his best not good enough to cope with the 10-to-1 winner. A field of 12 faced the starter at the Good Time Track, Goshen, N. Y. The victory was the second in the historic race for Owner Lawrence B. Shephard.

Lewis' Blow In 9th Inning Beats Macks

Rick Ferrell Drives in Tying Run as Nats Erase 4-1 Lead.

By Shirley Povich.

Staging a story-book finish in the best approved Merrill-well manner, Clarke Griffith's atheletes snatched a ball game away from the unsuspecting Athletics yesterday and gained their fourth straight triumph.

As late as the eighth inning—with two out, in fact—the Nats were laboring under a sinister 4-1 deficit and the game apparently belonged to the A's. But then things began to happen, chiefly Washington base hits, and the upshot of it all was that the Nats tied the score in the eighth and won the ball game in the ninth, 5 to 4.

Buddy Lewis produced the game-winning hit—a crisp single to center that scored Mel Almada before the A's could get anybody out in the Washington ninth, but the inspiring part of the show happened an inning before in that juicy eighth.

Old Harry Kelley, who browsed about the bush leagues for a dozen years before Connie Mack plucked him from Atlanta, was doing a very workmanlike pitching job for the A's and had held the Nats to seven hits when the eighth arrived. All of a sudden they began to hack away at that 4-1 lead of his.

Johnny Mihalic, who was relieving the injured Cecil Travis at shortstop, belted a double over the bag at third base and it was the beginning of the end for Kelley. There was some delay, though, before the rally was on in full cry. Because Al Simmons and Johnny Stone, who represent the nub of the Washington hitting power, were easy outs for Kelley.

But Joe Kuhel pounded a sizzling single past Lou Finney at first base to score Mihalic and Buddy Myer took up the torch with a well-spanked two-bagger to the right-field corner that scored Kuhel all the way from first. That left the issue squarely up to Rick Ferrell and he met it nicely—the issue and the ball. A brisk single sailed into centerfield and the score was tied at 4-4.

That blow knocked Kelley out of the box and Lynn Nelson came in to halt the uprising by striking out Pinch Hitter Wes Ferrell, but Nelson fell afoul of Almada at the start of the ninth. Almada cleverly sliced a double to left and Buddy Lewis, after luckily failing in two attempts to bunt, broke up the ball game with a smack to center.

The Nats can take pride in their eighth and ninth inning batting performances, but they'd just as soon skip the rest of the game because it was all in favor of the A's.

The Athletics hacked a run out of Jimmy DeShong in the first inning with the aid of a base on balls and

Bitsy Grant Is Victim Of Stunning Upset

By the Associated Press.

Rye, N. Y., Aug. 12.—Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, Atlanta atom and a member of this year's Davis Cup team, was eliminated in the third round of the Eastern Grass Courts singles championship today by Gerin Cameron, of Tulsa, Okla., 6—3, 8—6, in a stunning upset.

Grant was the third member of the squad to be eliminated from the singles at the Westchester Country Club. Wayne Sabin, of Hollywood, Calif., alternate on the cup squad, was beaten by Don McNeill, of Oklahoma City, in the second round, and Gene Mako, cup doubles player, defaulted in the second round of the singles. Frankie Parker, of Milwaukee and New York, is the only cup player still in the tourney.

Vying with Grant's defeat for attention in today's play was Alice Marble's victory over Mme. Sylvia Henrotin, of France, in the semi-finals of the women's singles. The blonde Los Angeles girl swept Mme. Henrotin, the defending titleholder, off the court to win in straight sets, 6—2, 6—0. It was the only women's singles match of the day.

Fumituru Nakano, of the Japanese Davis Cup team, eliminated Arthur Hendrix, of Lakeland, Fla., in a third-round match, 6—2, 6—4.

Francis X. Shields, movie actor and former Davis Cup player, won the other men's singles match over Lewis Wetherell, of Santa Anna, Calif., 6—3, 2—6, 6—4.

Grant, third ranking United States amateur, fell before a player whose lone claim to fame heretofore was the position of runner-up in the intercollegiate championship.

Grant encountered another upset in the doubles when he and Sabin were beaten 6—3, 6—4 in the third round by Charles Carr, of Los Angeles, and Henry M. Culley, of Santa Barbara, Calif.

Bobby Riggs, of Hollywood, Calif., and Bernard Coghlan, another Californian, were trimmed in the doubles by John McDiarmid, Princeton University professor from Fort Worth, Tex., and Hendrix.

Suburban Club Tourney Draws Local Golfers

Burnett, Brownell, Dettweiler to Compete; Two Pro-Ams Scheduled.

Volney Burnett, Bobby Brownell, Billy Dettweiler and Ralph Quinter head the local golfers that have entered the Suburban Club's invitation tournament, starting Thursday, August 19, over the Pikesville layout, near Baltimore. Harvey Johnson, Columbia, and J. A. Cosgrove, Manor, also are entered.

Baltimore's ace linksmen, including Ernie Caldwell, playing in his first tournament of the year; Spencer Overton, State amateur finalist; Otto Greiner, Five Farms invitation winner, and Johnny Farrell, Middle Atlantic junior champion, also are slated to compete.

The tourney, revived after an eight-year lapse, starts with a qualifying round on Thursday and match play continues on Friday and Saturday. Early responses to the invitations indicate one of the fastest fields ever to compete in the event.

Pro-amateur affairs at Cumberland Sunday and Lancaster, Pa., on Monday will draw a representative field of local pros and amateurs for prize money totaling over the $500 mark.

Tribe, Behind Hudlin, Blanks Browns, 7 to 0

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, Aug. 12.—The Cleveland Indians landed on Elon Hogsett, who relieved Jack Knott in the eighth inning, for five hits and five runs today to defeat the St. Louis Browns, 7 to 0, and make a clean sweep of the three-game series.

The Tribe had scored single tallies in the fifth and sixth off Hogsett. Willis Hudlin, pitching for the Indians, won his seventh game of the season, scattering the Browns' nine hits.

Earl Averill, fanned three times by Hogsett yesterday, evened up matters today by tripling to the score board in center field in the eighth inning. Billy Sullivan, Cleveland catcher, had a perfect day at bat with three singles and a walk.

Gabby Hartnett Hurt As Bucs Defeat Cubs

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 12.—The Cubs looked like anything but league leaders today as Pittsburgh's Pirates, led by Lloyd Waner and Wilbur Brubaker, pounded four of their pitchers for 15 hits and profited by six Chicago errors for a 16 to 6 victory before 10,977 fans.

The defeat cost the Cubs the series, two games to one, and the loss of their ace catcher, Gabby Hartnett, for a few days, but their National League lead of six and one-half games over the Giants remained intact. L. Waner had a perfect day of five singles and a pass, while Brubaker homered, doubled and drove in five runs to head the rout. Phil Cavarretta whacked a consolation homer for the losers.

Hartnett's right index finger was badly bruised by a foul tip off Tommy Padden's bat in the fourth inning and he will be out several days. His injury brought the casualty list for the series to five. Dutch Brandt, who started the game for Pittsburgh, was sidelined as a result of being hit on the right ankle by a drive off Billy Herman's bat, while Rip Collins of the Cubs and Woody Jenson and Al Todd were put out of action indefinitely by injuries incurred in the opening game Tuesday.

The Cubs erased an early 3-0 Pirate lead with a four-run splurge on three hits in the fourth, when Mace Brown and Russ Bauers, Brandt's successors, were wild, but the Pirates came back to score seven runs on three hits, five passes and three Cub infield errors in the fifth, erasing Tex Carleton from the scene and continuing against Larry French.

Bauers steadied to check the Cubs the rest of the way, while the Pirates fell on Clyde Shoun for two more runs in the seventh and wound up with four runs, including Brubaker's two-run homer, off Charley Root in the ninth.

Post Notes on FISHING

By Bill Ackerman.

A dark ulterior thought is the motivating forc ein back of the fishing contest that gets under way on Sunday August 15. The idea that the bluefish inhabiting Chesapeake Bay waters are as large as any to be found along the Atlantic coastal shelf is not new; neither are the stories of big fish and big catches every year; so, that in the future there may be authentic records to point to, local tackle dealers are going to make it lucrative enough to go out after the big ones and to bring them in for recording after they are caught.

ACKERMAN

On Saturday morning sports stores interested in the contest will carry the notice in their windows, and will have for your use entry blanks. The rules are few and simple and there should be little inconvenience in following them. There will be weekly prizes for six successive weeks, from August 15 to September 26, and in addition grand prizes for the three largest fish caught. For the weekly awards the ladies will have to take their chances with the men, but when it comes to the final accounting there will be one for them alone.

Tackle may be any size rod and reel, hook or line.
Any kind of artificial or natural bait or lure.
Must be caught in Chesapeake Bay or Potomac River, above Tangier Island, or any tributary of either.
Entry blanks must be signed by captain or guide if there is one. Entries may be weighed and entered at any sport store participating in the contest.
There will be weekly prizes for the largest bluefish, the largest striped bass (rock) and the largest weakfish (sea trout), gray or speckled.
Awards will be made each week following the one in which the fish were caught.

There you are, anglers, the balance of the game is in your care. If you are good enough, here is just the chance to add a coveted item or two to the old tackle box, or maybe get a fine new one. Reels, rods, lines and several chances to be host to several of your friends, at some fishing point for a whole day, at no cost to you.

F. W. Connick, E. A. (enthusiastic angler) brings back from a several day fishing trip at Ocean City, an oddity that is worth passing on, and of a kind of which we like to be informed.

Over a period of several days, commercial men in lifting their nets, found 12 small sailfish in their catch, and after showing them would have cast them aside had it not been for Al Pflueger, noted taxidermist of Miami, who recognized the great value these small specimens would have for scientific research, due to the fact that the young of the sailfish have never been observed or studied. The smallest of these fish weighed but 9 ounces, while the smallest here-to-fore taken in Southern waters weighed several pounds.

The blow of Tuesday and Wednesday held inside the offshore fishermen. Until then, there were plenty of blues up to 4 pounds. The marlin had scattered somewhat and caused the boats to spread out in a mad chase to pick them up again. In spite of which, Capt. Red Hall reports raising at least three every day out, with an average of one caught. On the seventh, he hooked a large mako shark, the ultimate in sport fish, but it broke loose after a short battle.

Rockfishing has picked up considerably at Colonial Beach, Capt. Dewey Parkinson bringing in catches from 20 to 30, and weighing from 4 to 8 pounds.

Catches of hardheads not quite so large as they have been, but the individual fish are. Worth trying at any point.

Capt. Bob Lee's boats at Shadyside were doing exceptionally good, until the rough weather. Fine catches of hardheads, rock and a few blues. Don't let that last upset your equilibrium though, for the few stragglers caught at various upper bay grounds are just that and no more. Not consistant in biting, nor plentiful enough to go after.

Some excellent catches of largemouth black bass have been made during the past week, particularly in Aquia Creek. The Shenandoah is muddy, and much of the Potomac, although there are a few stretches running clear enough to fish.

Walker Jumps 6 feet, 10 Inches; Betters World Mark Second Time

By the Associated Press.

Stockholm, Aug. 12 (AP).—Mel Walker, Negro high jumper on the touring United States track and field team, bettered the world record for the high jump for the second time within a week today when he cleared the bar at 6 feet 10 inches (209 centimeters), in a meet.

Walker jumped 6 feet 9 and 29/32 inches here Friday to better the world's record of 6 feet 9 and ¾ inches held jointly by his teammate at Ohio State, Dave Albritton, and Cornelius Johnson, of Compton, Calif.

The Negro jumper cleared the bar after two failures.

Roy Staley, of Los Angeles, won the 110-meter high hurdles in 14.6. Ross Bush, of Los Angeles, won the 800-meters run in 1:52.3 and Perrin Walker scored another victory for the United States in the 100-meter dash. Walker was timed in 10.7. Ray Mallott, of San Francisco's Olympic Club, won the 400 meters in 48.7 and Archie San Romani, crown prince of American milers, turned in 4:00.9 in the 1,500 meters.

Dykes' Pinch Single Gives ChisoxBreak

Chicago Wins, 6-4, in 2d After Losing 1st By 11-8 Margin.

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, Aug. 12.—Chicago's White Sox and the Detroit Tigers split a thrill-packed twin bill today, a pinch single by Manager Jimmy Dykes with two out and the bases full in the tenth salvaging the nightcap for the visitors, 6 to 4. Detroit won the opener, 11 to 8, and Second Baseman Charlie Gehringer figured in all but two of the Tiger tallies.

Pinch-Hitter Leon (Goose) Goslin sent the second game into extra innings with a home run that brought in Hank Greenberg, who had reached first on a fielder's error. The Tigers previously had trailed, 4 to 2.

Singles by Ray (Rip) Radcliff and Luke Appling and an intentional pass to Mervyn Shea set the stage for Manager Dykes' prize blow, the Sox's sixteenth off Tommy Bridges, veteran Detroit right-hander. The Bengals touched Johnny Whitehead and Clint Brown for ten hits, while Bill Dietrich yielded none in the inning he pitched.

Gehringer drove in six of the Tiger runs in the opener and scored three himself. He hit a home run and two doubles, failing to reach first only once in five actual trips to the plate. Radcliff, who accounted for three Sox runs, also homered in the curtain-raiser.

Phils Almost Out of Cellar After 2 Wins

Dodgers Bow, 3-2, 8-2; Mulcahy Gives Three Hits in Opener.

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Aug. 12.—The Phillies came within half a game of climbing out of the National League cellar today by whipping the seventh-place Brooklyn Dodgers in both ends of a double-header, 3 to 2, and 8 to 2.

Hugh Mulcahy, big rookie flinger, stopped the Dodgers with three hits in the opener, and drove in one of the Phils' runs himself with a single Luke Hamlin, the Dodger pitcher, was effective all the way, but his mates were unable to give him any batting support.

Bosox Here Today; Appleton to Pitch

The Nats step into higher company today when the Red Sox open a four-game invasion of Griffith Stadium, to be climaxed by a double header on Sunday.

The Red Sox, mid-season sensations of the pennant race with their recent 12-game winning streak, were in second place until they fell afoul of the Yankees earlier in the week and are now third.

Manager Bucky Harris, remembering Pete Appleton's impressive victory over the Red Sox in Boston in June, will send Appleton to the mound in the series opener today. Manager Joe Cronin is expected to counter with the left-handed Fred Ostermueller.

RedSoxWin, Lose in Pair With Yanks

By the Associated Press.

Boston, Aug. 12.—The Yankees and Red Sox went from the ridiculous to the sublime today to split a double-header and wind up just where they started in the American League pennant chase, with 20,383 fans on hand.

They hit any and all kinds of pitching in the burlesque opener, with the Sox slugging out a 16-to-10 victory to end the Yanks' ten-game winning streak. Bump Hadley, pitching his most effective game in a year, bested Archie McKain in a tight pitching duel in the nightcap, with the Yanks finishing on top, 5 to 3. The split left the Yanks 11½ games in front of the second-place Bostons.

Jimmy Foxx, leading the Sox to an even break today, after they had gone down to a double-header defeat in the opening two games of the series yesterday, belted a homer in each game, his thirtieth and thirty-first. Joe DiMaggio, leading the big league home-run derby, walloped his thirty-fourth of the year in the nightcap.

Lazzeri Hits Homer.

Also hitting homers were Tony Lazzeri for the Yanks and Eric McNair for the Sox in the opener, and Myril Hoag (Yanks) and Joe Cronin (Sox) in the nightcap.

Batting hero of the day was Doc Cramer, the Sox's classy outfielder, who clubbed out two singles and a pair of triples, to drive in four runs in the opener, and followed with two more singles, sending in another run in the second game. DiMaggio led the Yanks with a pair of singles in the first game and a single as well as his four-bagger in the second.

Outstanding among the seven pitchers who saw action in the opener was Buck Newsom. He took over the Sox mound assignment in the sixth, after both Johnny Marcum and Rube Walberg gave up, and held the Yanks to one run and four hits the rest of the way.

30 Hits in Opener.

A total of 30 hits were clubbed out in the opener, the Sox getting 16. The Yanks went away to a 6-run lead in the first three innings and then blew it as Monte Pearson was clubbed out in the fourth, and neither Frank Makosky, Spud Chandler nor Kamp Wicker, who followed, could hold the Sox. The Bostons started their scoring in the third, and didn't stop until they had finished the eighth. Foxx's homer, coming in the eighth with one on, cleared the center field wall for one of the longest hits ever in Fenway Park.

Hadley, in walking only one man and allowing only six hits in the nightcap, turned in his best performance since the early days of last season. The Sox started off in front on Foxx's homer in the fourth, but the Yanks pecked away at McKain for a run in the fifth, anothe: in the seventh on Hoag's homer, and finally took the lead in the eighth on DiMaggio's blow, before putting the game on ice with a 2-run rally in the ninth.

Joe Louis Hits Mat, But It's Just a Slip

Cabello Arrives Today for Armstrong Clash

Johnny Cabello, the Puerto Rican featherweight ace, is due in town today, and will hold a workout at Turner's Arena for his ten-round joust with Henry Armstrong, the California comet, next Monday night at Griffith Stadium.

Accompanying Cabello will be his manager, Dave Sonnenberg, and George Henry, a stablemate, who yesterday was matched to meet Johnny Johnson, of Philadelphia, in one of the preliminary bouts.

Cabello won 13 out of 17 matches last season, including a two-round knockout victory over Joey Archibald, Washington's latest rage. Among his victims this season are Johnny Hutchinson and Cristobal Jaramillo.

Armstrong fights Irish Eddie Brink in New York tonight in a postponed match, and will leave by plane immediately after the bout for Washington. Accompanying him will be Eddie Meade, comanager with Al Jolson, and Johnny Jones, a stablemate, who has been matched against Kid Howle, of Washington, in a preliminary on the Armstrong-Cabello card.

Armstrong will be seeking his fourteenth straight knockout at Brink's expense. Among those previously flattened by Armstrong this season are California Joe Rivers, Frank Klick, Varias Milling, Baby Casanova, Wally Hally, Gene Espinosa, Alf Blatch, Lou Massey, Mike Belloise, Mark Diaz, Tony Chavez, Pete DeGrass, and Benny Bass.

Matchmaker Ahearn is seeking an opponent for Baby Manuel, Mexican fighter, on the Monday card. Already listed for fights are Buddy Scott, who faces Frank Donofrio, of Philadelphia, in an eight-round semiwind-up; Mike Morton, who debuts against Brooks Bowen, and Wild Bill Howell who opposes Spike Miller.

Cricket Game Set.

The Washington Cricket Club is entertaining the Chicago Cricket Club, which is touring the States and Canada, on Thursday, the ninteenth, on the estate of the Honorable L. McCormick-Goodhart, Langley Park, on the Riggs road, in nearby Maryland. The game will start about 12 noon.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—AIRY SONNET, $13.80, $8.40, $4.60; HALO, $5.80, $3.80; TAKAWALK, $3.00.

AIRY SONNET displayed speed from the start, followed along in closest attendances of Little Pacemaker, moved up fast to take command when reaching the stretch and outlasted HALO in the closing tests. HALO went to the top at once, opened up a good lead in the first quarter mile, was rated along and held on willingly when challenged. TAKAWALK, well placed all the way, responded gamely in the stretch, getting up in the last stride to wear down FOREST B. for third.

SECOND RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good from Bahr gate. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post 2:55. Off 2:58½. Winner, H. Bieber's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MARY SENATE, $7.60, $4.40, $3.80; WEST SEA, $27.60, $14.80; FLOOR MAID, $5.80.

MARY SENATE went to the front soon after the start, drew into a good lead in the first three-sixteenths and rated along under slight restraint, held away to the close, although ridden out at the end. WEST SEA, unable to keep up early, moved up fast after leaving the backstretch and closing willingly in the stretch, was gaining on the winner at the end. FLOOR MAID, in closest chase of the pace, weakened slightly in the last sixteenth.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from Bahr gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:26. Off 3:28. Winner, H. H. Brown's b. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—HAPPY HELEN, $13.80, $7.20, $5.20; TARPING, $8.60, $6.00; KABO, $3.80.

HAPPY HELEN was unable to keep pace during the first half mile, swung to the outside when reaching the stretch and closing with a rush, was up in the closing few strides to wear down TARPING. The latter displayed keen early speed in the going, opening up a good lead, weakened slightly in the last furlong and was unable to stave off the winner's bid. KABO, unable to keep pace early, moved up nearing the stretch and although holding on well, was unable to close any ground in the stretch drive.

FOURTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from Bahr gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:00. Off 4:02½. Winner, E. B. McGee's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—TINDER BOX, $9.00, $5.20, $3.80; BLIND BROOK, $9.80, $5.20; APPRENTICE, $3.60.

TINDER BOX moved up on the inside approaching the far turn, disposed of VITOX for the lead and meeting determined opposition from BLIND BROOK, held him safe to the end. BLIND BROOK moved up gradually when leaving the backstretch, responded gamely to urgings and held on stubbornly in the final drive. APPRENTICE worked his way up gradually in the last three furlongs and closed going willingly.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; allowances. The Texas Rangers Purse. For 3-year-olds. Start good from Bahr gate. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post 4:33. Off 4:34. Winner, C. Shockley's ch. f. (3), by Eltango—Dakota. Trained by J. Cuevas. Value to winner, $675; second, $175; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:13 2-5.

GOLDEN THOUGHT	(Craig)	106½	2	4	2²	2½	6½	7	5.60

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DECURIA, $11.00, $5.20, $3.80; DARK BEAU, $4.20, $3.00; JAMES N., $3.00.

DECURIA, quickest to begin, was taken under steadying reserve when overtaken, began bettering her position on the inside leaving the backstretch, came to the outside when reaching the stretch, wore down JAMES N. and held safe the challenge of DARK BEAU. The latter, on the outside throughout, came with good courage in the final drive. JAMES N. moved into a long lead in the first half mile, weakening in the stretch drive.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,100; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from Bahr gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:03. Off 5:06½. Winner, C. Shockley's ch. h. (6), by Quemance—Arquademar. Trained by J. Cuevas. Value to winner, $750; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:14 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ATLANTE, $10.80, $6.40, $3.60; AMERICA FIRST, $6.40, $4.00; BOSTON MARY, $3.20.

ATLANTE, under steadying restraint while following the pace, moved up readily when called upon, wore down TOP TAX for the lead when reaching the stretch, and under urging, lasted to hold safe the closing bid of AMERICA FIRST. The latter, a trailer until reaching the stretch, was brought to the extreme outside when making the turn and closing with a rush out in the better going, just failed to be along in time. BOSTON MARY was prominent all the way and continued with good courage in the stretch drive.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from Bahr gate. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post 5:38. Off 5:42. Winner, C. S. Howard's ch. g. (8), by Playfellow—Happy Night. Trained by J. Smith. Value to winner, $675; second, $175; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:50 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HAPPY FELLOW, $12.80, $8.40, $5.80; TAP ON, $13.00, $8.60; STUMPTOWN, $12.00.

HAPPY FELLOW was well placed from the outset, moved up gradually nearing the far turn, wore down TAP ON for the lead, bumped the latter slightly and drew clear at the end. TAP ON took command straightening out in the backstretch, drew away into a long lead and made a bold attempt to go along with the winner when challenged, but was not quite good enough. Huff lodged a claim of foul against the winner, but was disallowed. STUMPTOWN came with a belated rush after trailing until leaving the backstretch.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from Bahr gate. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post 6:13. Off 6:14. Winner, C. Andrade 3d's br. m. (5), by Relgh Count—Chestie Ann. Trained by F. F. Haldy. Value to winner, $675; second, $175; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:55 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—COUNTESS ANN, $8.40, $3.20, $2.40; U DEMON, $3.80, $2.60; AUREATE, $3.00.

COUNTESS ANN followed along in pursuit of the pace, began moving up rounding the far turn, came through on the inside at the stretch turn when U DEMON went wide and taking command, drew out steadily. U DEMON drew away into a long lead, lost ground at the stretch turn and was unable to stave off the challenge of the winner. AUREATE went evenly throughout while never in a position to reach the first two.

WITH BILL BENNINGS

Selections at Suffolk Downs.

Dear Al:

I have been asked why some jockeys are stars on the smaller tracks and can't get close when in competition on the major circuits. I put the question to one of the big-time riders and he gave me a plausible answer. On the half-milers, the star rider comes into a turn behind several horses and he yells, "Look out, I'm coming through." As a rule, the timid youngsters and careful veterans are frightened and open up a hole for the half-mile hero. However, when this same jockey comes on the mile tracks and bellows, "Look out, I'm coming through," the boys in front of him yell back, "Let's see you try it, you bum." And Mr. Half-Mile Star just stays in back. Few boys who get a crack at the big time and drift back to the half-milers ever return to the top flight with any degree of success. Did I hear someone say I am a half-miler? BILL.

First race—Dark War probably will draw a strong play in this field and his present excellent condition will warrant it. Looks like the spot for him to take down a purse. Charwitch and Caleb seems to have something on the others.

Second race—Royal Cunning will like the off-going and seems capable of giving away weight to this group. Berry Patch moves up on a soft track and is likely to be close. Foolem to take care of the show award.

Third race—Sketchbook gets in action here with only 102 pounds and will be hard to beat with that assignment. I'm expecting a good ride from Apprentice Morgan, however. Memory Chair and Time Interval probably will chase the top one home.

Fourth race—Wise King, Dedication and Die Hard are a close fit in this sprint. I prefer them in the order listed. If you want to take a shot at the moon, there's Goldman with only 98 pounds.

Fifth race—Bubblesome, bred for an off-track and reported to be in form, appears to be headed for big things in this field. Trina is fast and may crowd Trouper out of second money.

Sixth race—Lady Tichner, the featherweight of this party, has all her speed now and may make every post a winning one. Blacknose and Peerless Pal are due consideration.

Seventh race—Dark Friend is tossed into a promising spot in this affair. Needs only to run his best race to take down the chief award. Erb and Lucky Color are good now and promise to make a battle of it.

Best bet—Dark Friend.

This Morning

The Wrestling Moguls Enjoy Prosperity.

By Shirley Povich.

There's something pretty significant in the tidings from the Pacific Coast to the effect that 22,000 persons paid $35,000 to see a wrestling match.

POVICH.

The wrestling industry had fallen on lean days, you know, and the bleating of promoters throughout the Nation was so genuinely pathetic as to jerk a tear out of a cast-iron gargoyle.

But signs of a wrestling renaissance are now abroad in the land. That match at Los Angeles the other night between Bronko Nagurski and Vincent Lopez produced the biggest gate since Jim Londos and Jim Browning wrestled to a $90,000 house in New York back in '34.

• • • •

And Nagurski, the reformed Minnesota All-American fullback, apparently is the answer to it all. The men who manipulate the wrestling trust may have been a bit brazen when they decided to spotlight Nagurski as their champion, but that $35,000 gate is a powerful argument for the wisdom of their choice.

• • • •

At that, the wrestling trust is only harking back to an old trick first used to needle interest in the mat sport back in 1929. That was the year when Paul Bowser unveiled Dartmouth's Gus Sonnenberg as the new champion of the wrestling realm. Bull-necked Gus dug his bald pate into the generous tummy of Strangler Lewis with such frequency one evening that he won himself the title and established the flying tackle as a wrestling hold.

• • • •

A terrific upswing in wrestling followed Sonnenberg's ascendancy. College football stars flocked to the sport, captivated by the fabulous earnings of the Dartmouth tackle. The promoters wired the wrestlers for sound, refused to traffic any longer in those journeyman who couldn't grunt and grimance or whose idea of wrestling was to go to the mat and merely huff and puff.

• • • •

Sonnenberg put wrestling on its feet by wrestling on his feet. Unskilled in the science of the game, he was no match for the guys who knew how to wrestle. But, on his feet, he could unleash those terrific flying tackles, and it became the vogue—stand-up wrestling.

• • • •

Back in the early days of Sonnenberg's reign, wrestling was playing in luck, too. It is axiomatic with the wrestling trust that when boxing goes into a decline, wrestling comes into its own. And back in the late twenties and early thirties boxing was in a sorry state and disgusted fight fans eagerly turned to the shows wrestling was staging.

• • • •

Gene Tunney was never a popular fight champion—perhaps because he dethroned the popular Jack Dempsey, and fight fans did not grieve when he retired after only two defenses of his title. Then came a succession of drab champions. Max Schmeling was a foreigner who came into the title while sitting down claiming a foul; Jack Sharkey was a cordially disliked braggart; Primo Carnera was a joke champion, and Max Baer and Jimmy Braddock contributed nothing to prize fighting's fan-appeal.

• • • •

And so wrestling was cashing in—heavily. In virtually every part of the Nation the wrestlers with their physical pyrotechnics, their grunts, grimaces and airplane spins, their acts on the ropes and between 'em worked up a terrific trade. A dead sport underwent an amazing revival because the wrestlers did it in the modern manner.

• • • •

But, of a sudden, a new fistic figure appeared on the scene—a genuine, crowd-pleasing heavyweight around whom was erected an aura of invincibility that belonged to no heavyweight since Jack Dempsey battered down Jess Willard at Toledo in 1919. Joe Louis' meteoric rise in the prize ring was like a knife in the back of the wrestling industry.

• • • •

Fans turned from wrestling to boxing once more. Joe Louis carried the entire load for boxing. His seemingly limitless possibilities produced a new boxing consciousness that extended into the lighter divisions, and throughout the land boxing gates began to smack of old-time figures. The cycle was completed again and wrestling fell into the doldrums.

• • • •

And in the doldrums it has been for nigh onto four years now. In an effort to stimulate the game in sections where it once was highly profitable, promoters set up their own champions to no avail. The multiplicity of champions served only to befuddle the fans and every champion, legitimate or synthetic, lost caste.

• • • •

That was the sorry state of the wrestling industry when Toots Mondt, one of the big-shot promoters, discovered Bronko Nagurski wasting his talents in the smaller clubs in the Midwest. Mondt remembered Sonnenberg and visualized the Minnesota All-American, a more famous football star than Dartmouth Gus ever was, as another tonic to the game. He contrived to have Nagurski win Dean Detton's "world" title.

• • • •

Well, apparently it worked. Those 22,000 fans at Los Angeles the other night tumbled over themselves to pour $35,000 into the till. Nagurski apparently was something to see. And, don't forget, boxing isn't offering much these days. A Joe Louis-Tommy Farr fight for the world title looms about as exciting as a chess match by telegraph.

Ed Gableman Takes Typo Golf Crown

Baltimore, Aug. 12.—Ed Gableman, bespectacled compositor from Cincinnati, won the 1937 Union Printers International golf tournament here today and with his victory took permanent possession of the Walter Hagen trophy.

The 18-hole score of 82 which gave him a record 321 for the 72 holes of tournament play brought the tournament championship to Gableman for the third time. He won the tournament in 1931 and 1935, to get two legs on the Hagen trophy.

His 321 score was the lowest ever made in the printers' tournament.

Joseph L. Matthews, Miami, pressed Gabelman hard for the victory but blew up on the last two holes, finished the round with a 77 and posted a 72-hole mark of 322, one past Gabelman.

Matthews really lost the title on the short seventeenth tee. He struck the bank, pitched over the green and had trouble recovering.

Joseph Balestri, Washington bookbinder, posted the actual low score of the tournament—317—but was not eligible for the printers' trophy. He won the Allied Trades title.

Third in the tournament was Bobby Peters, Grand Rapids, Mich., who had an 82 today for a total of 323. Ed Merkle, Washington, defending champion who bested Gabelman in 1936, had a 330 final score.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 12.—Miss Marion Miley, of Cincinnati, Ohio, plodded stoically over the Onwentsia Country Club course today to shoot her fourth successive subpar round—39-38—77—and became the first person to win the 9-year-old Women's Western Golf Derby three consecutive times.

MARION MILEY.

Miss Miley, the daughter of Fred Miley, one of the first native born American golf professionals, hung up a new tournament record of 309 for the 72 holes. The previous low mark for the event was 320, set in 1933 by Mrs. Sarah L. Reinhardt, of Chicago.

Patty Berg, Minneapolis freckled gift to golf, also repeated history by finishing second for the third straight year. Today her par 39-41—80 left her eight strokes behind Miss Miley, three shots farther back than when play resumed this morning. Her total of 317 compared to last year's 327 which was only three behind Miss Miley's winning 324.

Betty Jameson, of San Antonio, Tex., women's trans-Mississippi champion, rallied on the incoming nine to take third place by one stroke from a trio of rivals. After moving up from seventh to third place yesterday Betty shot 44-39—83 today for a total of 323.

Miss Miley's score of 11 better than perfect figures was compiled by rounds of 76-78-78-77. Last year she needed 324 strokes to take the crown.

The other Minneapolis Star, Miss Barrett, sank a hole-in-one the same day on the 190-yard eighteenth hole.

Sports in Brief

SOUTH BEND WINS.

Flint, Mich., Aug. 12.—The South Bend team eliminated Lebanon, Pa., in the regional American Legion junior baseball tournament here today and went into the finals Saturday. Ed Hanyzlewski's five-hit pitching was largely responsible for South Bend's 4-to-0 victory.

• • • •

New York—Solly Kreiger, rugged New York middleweight who rose to fame last winter when he knocked out Harry Balsamo, knocked out another rising New York star, Walter Woods, in 2:32 of the eighth round of the feature ten-round bout at Madison Square Garden, tonight. Krieger weighed 162, Woods, 160.

• • • •

Tournament Ends.

Chicago.—The McGuire-Lockie Memorial team trophy competition and the doubles and singles championships of the American Lawn Bowling Association concluded a four-day national tournament at Lakeside Club today.

Montclair, N. J., won the Memorial trophy, defeating Lakeside Club, of Chicago, 19-14, the winning team was made up of A. C. Williams, Robert H. Stanley, Robert G. Pollock and D. Paul Brown.

SPILLWAY WINS AGAIN.

Chicago.—Dixieland, benefitting by Fantine's failure to get away with the others, scored an upset victory in the Demoiselles Purse at Lincoln Fields today. Dixieland, owned by Kennuckians, D. B. Midkiff and Howard Wells, was second choice in the betting and finished a length and a half ahead of Oddessa Lady with the odds-on choice, Fantine, third.

• • • •

TWO STARS AHEAD.

Lakeside, Ohio.—George Atkinson, Indianapolis, Joseph West, Chicago, and Phil Wolf, Bellevue, Ohio, defending champion, led the first division today in the national summer roque tournament. Each had perfect averages: Atkinson 128 points in four games, West and Wolf 64 points each in two games.

• • • •

Harbor Springs, Mich.—Ernest Sutter, of New Orleans, defending singles champion and seeded No. 2 was eliminated today in the quarter-final round of the Western tennis championships by Frank Thompson, 21-year-old University of Virginia junior from St. Louis.

Thompson, dark horse of the tournament who won the St. Louis open last week, defeated the No. 2 ranking player of the country, 4—6, 6—3, 6—1. Sutters smashing forehand drives gave them the first set, but he was outsteaded in the others.

Charlottesville, Va.—Seven of last year's money winners will be among the field of upward of 100 Virginia golfers seeking the State open title at Farmington Country Club Saturday and Sunday.

• • • •

MEET FOR CROWN.

Xenia, O.—Tommy Walker, of Chicago, and Henry Graham, of Cleveland, meet Friday to decide the men's singles championship of the Midwestern Tennis Association. Walker eliminated Teddy Cousins, of West Virginia State College, 6—2, 6—1. 6—6, and Graham beat Dr. E. D. Downing, of Roanoke, 6—4, 6—3, 6—4.

• • • •

Belleville, Ill.—Paul Dean, making his first appearance on the mound since April 24, faced seven batters in two innings and allowed one hit in an exhibition game here tonight as the Cardinals toyed with the Belleville Stags, a semipro team, to win, 17 to 4.

• • • •

TENNIS TEAMS CLASH.

Huntington, W. Va.—Teams representing Huntington and Baltimore, Md., will clash tomorrow in the first game of an American Legion junior baseball tournament to decide the champion of a four-State region.

Cuccinello Stars; Bees Rout Giants

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 12.—Tony Cuccinello, whose homer with two aboard whipped the Giants Tuesday, drove in four runs today to give the Boston Bees a 6-to-4 victory over the New Yorkers and a sweep of the two-game series.

His liner in the first drove in one Boston run, his single in the second sent another pair across, and his base hit in the ninth produced an unneeded tally, after Gil English's single in the eighth had broken a tie to put the game on ice for the Bees.

Cuccinello's clouting coupled with eight-hit pitching by Guy Bush and Johnny Lanning were the big factors in the victory as the Bees stretched the Giants' losing streak to three straight.

Mel Ott hit his twenty-fourth homer of the year for the Giants in the fourth with a man on base, and Harry Danning clouted one in the fifth. Dick Coffman, the third Giant pitcher in the game, was charged with the defeat.

3d Columbus Horse Show Due Sept. 12

The success of the third annual Columbus Horse Show would be a certainty if the prominence of those who have subscribed as honorary members was to be used as a criterion. The popularity of the show has increased rapidly since its debut in 1935.

Those who have already subscribed as honorary members are: Gov. Harry W. Nice, who is honorary chairman of the show committee; Herbert R. O'Connor, attorney general of Maryland; Stedman Prescott, Maryland State senator; Lansdale G. Sasscer, Maryland State senator; John A. Flanigan, State deputy of the Knights of Columbus of Maryland; Walter I. Plant, State deputy of the Knights of Columbus of the District of Columbia; John A. Jarboe, State Treasurer of the Maryland Knights of Columbus; Melvin C. Hazen, president of the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia; Howard W. Jackson, mayor of Baltimore; George E. Allen, Commissioner of the District of Columbia; Robert D. Hagner, Montgomery County commissioner; Arthur Godfrey, Arch McDonald, Gordon Hittenmark, Bill Coyle, of radio fame; Vernon G. Owen and Joseph A. Cantrel.

The Columbus show will be held at the Meadowbrook Show Grounds on Sunday, September 12 and the program will include 14 classes in addition to individual hunter and jumper championship awards. Information relative to the show may be obtained by communicating with Vincent P. Lester, secretary, Forest Glen, Md.

Shoreham Bear Has Slight Edge On Boxing Boss

By Chanticleer

It didn't take some wise guy long to figure out that the brown bear, Teddy, spotlighted this week at the Shoreham Terrace in a boxing exhibition with his master, has a slight edge in the encounter. The line goes something like this: The man's head is more smart, but the bear's paws smart more.

Teddy takes his place in the ring nightly at 10:30, wearing regulation boxing gloves and ready to abide by all the rules of the commission. His opponent is his boss, but if you think that makes much difference you're silly. Even a bear knows it doesn't pay to do better than draw with the head man.

Louis Pike, 22, and married a week, is the popular attraction at Wardman Park Hotel this week, with impersonations. The contest now going on in a quest for unknown talent is for Government employes only, but that doesn't prevent Pike from doing a little impersonating of his No. 1 employer, Mr. Franklin D. Roosevelt. All in good fun, of course. Pike says he began impersonating people when he lived in Louisville. He had to do an act with a friend in which they impersonated Hoover and Roosevelt. He appreciated it was terrible and set out to improve himself just for his own satisfaction.

Don't look now, but that fellow over there, on the business side of a typically delicious Madrillon dinner, is Al Sakol. Same Al Sakol we all know 'round these parts as one of the better band leaders. This summer Al is playing on a boat sailing out of Baltimore He just drops in on us occasionally. He eats at the Madrillon when he comes to town because he likes good music and good food. Simple enough, isn't it?

Brinkley's, that gathering spot in the Southeast, is the kind of place where you retire to forget the mean old boss and the heat and to—just get away from it all. A gentle sort of air of frivolity about the place and if you're with the right people you'll soon be taking your hair down and become yourself. Try it. It's nice.

'Old Home Week' Planned at Garfield Playground Today

It will be "old home week" at Garfield Playground today when adults who played ball and other games there during the past 30 years gather for a reunion.

The Rev. Francis Cowhig, just back from Rome, the Rev. Francis Cornell, another Catholic priest, the Rev. Elmore Kimball, a Methodist cleric, will represent the clergy on the ballfield.

Present director of the Garfield Playground is Mrs. Evalyn Sheridan, who has been there ten years. Tennyson, who was there from 1918 to 1923, will take charge of the sports.

Magill Gives Cup To Customs Bureau

A silver cup was presented by Acting Secretary of the Treasury Roswell Magill yesterday to the Bureau of Customs and medals were awarded to members of leading teams in the Treasury Department matches in small arms marksmanship concluded at Camp Simms, D. C., Wednesday.

A new feature of the 1937 competition was a match to select a team to represent all Treasury law-enforcement agencies at the national championship firearms tournament at Camp Perry, Ohio, August 22.

Fatal Cigarette Fire Pronounced Accident

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald yesterday termed "accidental" the death of Willie Goggins, colored 49, who was fatally burned May 28, when a spark from a cigarette ignited his pajamas.

Confined to a wheel chair, Goggins was in the rear yard of his home, 1435 Church street northwest, when he was burned. Taken to Gallinger Hospital, he died Wednesday.

Lightning Injures Two Va. Farmers

Winchester, Va., Aug. 12 (AP).—E. C. Helvestine, farmer, and an employe, Charles Barnett, were dragged unconscious today from a blazing barn, fired by a bolt of lightning. They were rescued by neighbors.

The two men had taken refuge in the barn from a storm and were rendered unconscious by the bolt of lightning, which killed a horse in the stable. The barn was destroyed and the loss included approximately 1,000 bushels of wheat, 8 tons of hay, a quantity of feed and harness. Helvestine estimated the loss at about $10,000, which he said was partly covered by insurance.

Personnel Cuts By Burlington Offset Pay Rise

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 12.—A reduction in personnel was announced by the Burlington Railroad today as part of an economy program designed to counterbalance recent wage increases to union employes.

The announcement came eight days after the Nation's railroads granted pay increases of 5 cents an hour to the 800,000 members of the nonoperating brotherhoods and during current conferences here between representatives of the carriers and the five operating brotherhoods on demands for a 20 per cent increase for the 300,000 members of the latter organizations.

F. G. Gurley, assistant vice president, said about 300 men had been laid off, but he did not know now how many others would ultimately be affected.

"The Burlington is finding it necessary to reduce its expenses by such means as are possible in order to offset the wage increases. The wage increase will cost the Burlington about $3,000,000 a year.

"The 70-car limit bill, recently passed by the Senate, will, if enacted into law by the House, cost us another $1,750,000, and to meet partially the actual expense of the wage increase and to protect us against the threatened increase, forces are being reduced, expenses are being curtailed by canceling orders for materials and other economies are being effected."

The layoffs, he added, were being made throughout the system.

Corporation Counsel Elwood Seal, behind part of the mountain of applications which have come to him thus far for the $2,600-a-year job as assistant corporation counsel. More than 300 have applied thus far. Choice of a successor to Rice Hooe, recently made legal adviser in the Tax Department, will be made about September 1.

Drive.

The Federation of Architects, Engineers, Chemists and Technicians, a C. I. O. affiliate, is planning an intensive drive to organize the 6,000 technicians in Washington . . . . John Vesta, president of the Washington Chapter, F. A. E. C. T., announces the appointment of Milton Fischer as regional organizer for this area . . . The local campaign is part of the national drive which is receiving financial assistance from the C. I. O. . . . The view is to enroll the 400,000 technicians in the U. S. under the Lewis organization . . . Fischer commented

"The FAECT's program for the advancement of the economic status of the technical man will concern itself with a legislative program similar to that which other chapters of the FAECT have successfully carried on in New York and other parts of the country."

Congratulations.

Without elaborating on the good time that was had by all, this paragraph is simply to congratulate the leaders of the Interior Department Recreation Association on the swell coming-out party that was held Wednesday night.

F. C. A. Notes.

Officials call attention to the fact that when an outgoing letter is sent to the Vise Section, it should always be accompanied by the incoming letter to which it replies . . . A great deal of looking-forward is being done to the sightseeing trip planned by the Hiking Committee of the F. C. A. Club for Sunday, August 22—The outing will be held in the Charlottesville, Va., section—On the way the cars will travel over the always-popular Skyline Drive and will return by a different route—The trip features a visit to Monticello, for over 50 years the home of Thomas Jefferson, and a visit to Ash Lawn, where President James Monroe lived for 26 years . . . The F. C. A. Credit Board of Directors introduces Miss Genevieve McLain, who recently began work in the office, room 207—A native of Richmond, Va., Miss McLain until a short while ago was employed by a private concern in Washington.

Delegates.

O. E. Reed, chief of the Bureau of Dairy Industry, and other representatives of State and Federal dairy agencies, are on the high seas today, enroute, as official delegates, to the eleventh World's Dairy Congress in Berlin—The conference opens August 22, and continues to the twenty-eighth—The delegation, aside from Reed, who is the chairman, is composed of Dr. E. W. Gaumnitz and C. W. Kitchen, United States Department of Agriculture; Dr. A. C. Dahlberg, New York State Agricultural Experiment Station; H. P. Davis, Nebraska State College of Agriculture; Fordyce Ely, Kentucky State College of Agriculture; Dr. C. L. Roadhouse, California State College of Agriculture; A. W. Rudnick, Iowa State College of Agriculture; C. N. Shepardson, Texas State College of Agriculture, and T. G. Stitts, of the F. C. A., Washington.

Convention Note.

From all advance notices, it seems like a tremendous crowd will be at the twentieth jubilee convention of N. F. F. E. in Springfield next month—Luther Steward, the president, signals that delegates will come from local unions in every American State, the possessions along with Federal employes in the foreign service in more than 50 countries. And Steward has arranged to let them give first ear to the President's statement of attitude on Federal unions.

By now, no doubt, many forgotten corners of hundreds of homes have been seached for those ancient and now funny looking bathing suits—one of these is going to win a prize for someone Sunday afternoon at The Oaks when Federal Employes Union, No. 2, features its all-day outing with a bathing-suit contest. The contest judges insist that they will close their eyes to the figures in the suits. What they want to see is the oldest suit, probably the strangest suit. After this event, comedy might be the name, the members will engage in softball, horseshoe pitching, swimming, croquet and dancing. The announcement says: "The grounds at The Oaks are spacious, cool and inviting. They are covered with a large number of trees and chairs are available under the trees. All of which would seem to combine for a nice party.

Debris Combed As Tenement Falls, Killing 19

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 12.—Weary searchers and official investigators focused their attention tonight on the debris of the Staten Island tenement building in which at least 19 persons lost their lives last night.

Five were injured and in hospitals. Two were missing and being sought in the wreckage of the structure which collapsed after flood waters undermined its foundations.

Fallen bricks and splintered wood still filled the deep cellars under the 40-year-old building, which housed eight families and which went down in the rushing stream flowing down the narrow cobbled street after a thundershower.

A board of inquiry was called tonight by Richmond Borough President Joseph Palma. Separate investigations were ordered by New York Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine and by the fire department and District Attorney Frank Innes, of Richmond County.

Two days ago, Palma said, a building department inspector had labeled the structure "safe."

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Detroit, Aug. 12.—Two Washington youths, Randolph Holmes, of 227 R street northeast, and Jack Redinger, of 510 Decatur street northwest, today won the senior and junior divisions of the Napoleonic coach-building competition conducted by the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild in the District of Columbia. Each will receive $100.

Redinger also was regional winner, being awarded one of two trips to the seventh convention of the General Motors Educational Foundation at Detroit August 31 to September 3, offered coach builders making the highest scores in each age division. Redinger also becomes eligible to compete for the $5,000 university scholarship offered as national awards.

Another Washington boy, Raymond Latner, 18, of 1510 Ridge place southeast, won second place and a $75 award in the senior division. Judging of coaches has been in progress here since August 2.

Man Raised 2,000 Feet From Earth to Plane

Dallas, Aug. 12 (AP).—A. V. Muzzy, Tulsa pilot, said he released 2,300 feet of aircraft cable while flying at 2,000 feet and picked up Ray Bridges, Chicago parachute jumper, from the ground here today.

The cable was lowered with a sandbag, which Bridges released as he grasped the end of the cable. Within 25 minutes Bridges had been reeled into the ship, Muzzy said. "It was a demonstration of scientific rescue work," Muzzy said. A person marooned on a peak, in a disabled plane or in a small boat at sea could be rescued in that manner, he stated.

Gang Gun Shop Found in Cellar At Baltimore

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Aug. 12.—A gun shop, equipped with motors, tools and machinery for increasing the deadliness of firearms, was found today by police investigating activities here of the Brady gang, sought in the midwest for robbery, murder and jail-break.

As charges of conspiracy to obstruct justice were placed against the wives of two members of the band, their sister and their brother, police discovered the well-equipped gun repair shop in the basement of the house in which the gangsters had lived with their wives.

An automatic rifle, with magazine capacity increased from 15 shots to 50, was found in a sedan the trio abandoned after a running gun-battle with police a few days ago.

Deputy States Attorney William H. Maynard placed the charges against the four members of the Raimondo family, Mary and Minnie, who married Clarence Lee Dalhover and James Shaffer, Anthony and a sister, Mrs. Josephine Economidis. They were held at headquarters police station.

Previously the police had found, at another address, four hand grenades, a machine-gun stock, 1,000 rounds of machine-gun ammunition and the pistol holster they said belonged to P. V. Minneman, an Indiana State policeman killed in a gun battle with the gang.

Dominick Raimondo, 13, told Federal agents that Dalhover and Shaffer, with their leader, Alfred Brady, built the gun shop several months ago.

New Bill to Provide For Police Appeal

A policeman dismissed from the force here could carry an appeal to the Police Court under a bill which Representative Bates (Republican), of Massachusetts, plans to introduce in the House. At present the Commissioners constitute the final board of appeal except for Congress itself.

Representative Bates is member of a sub-committee of the House District Committee which has been considering bills authorizing the Commissioners to reinstate four dismissed policemen. On the recommendation of the sub-committee, the full House District Committee on Wednesday reported a bill for the reinstatement of Amos B. Cole.

As the hearing on the other bills closed yesterday, Representative Bates outlined his plan and asked Assistant Corporation Counsel Thomas to draft an appropriate bill.

Corn Slumps As New Crop Hits Market

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Aug. 12.—Announcement of the first important marketing of the United States' 1937 big corn crop led to 4 cents quick collapse of the corn prices today. Texas provided the new corn the purchase of which for Chicago plunged quotations down to 96¾ cents a bushel for September contracts here. This was the extreme immediate permissible overnight drop allowed by board of trade rules, and tended to pull all grain values lower.

At the close, corn futures ranged all the way from 1½ to 4 cents under yesterday's finish; September, 96¾; December, 65⅝ to 65¾; May, 66⅞ to 67. Wheat, ⅝ to 2 cents down; September, 1.12½ to 1.12⅝; December, 1.13¼ to 1.13⅜; May, 1.14⅞ to 1.15. Oats, ¼ to ⅝ off; December, 29⅛, and rye showing ⅞ to 1½ setback; December, 80. Provisions results varied from 40 cents decline to an advance of 2 cents.

2nd Suit Against Alleghany Merger

New York, Aug. 12 (AP).—Donaldson Brown, vice president and finance officer of General Motors, said today a second suit has been filed in Circuit Court in Baltimore against the Chesapeake Corporation and the Alleghany Corporation to restrain them from proceeding with the proposed reorganization of the old Van Sweringen rail system.

Brokers' Loans Drop $32,000,000 for Week

By the Associated Press.

The Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday that last week's loans to brokers and dealers on securities held by reporting member banks in New York City totaled $1,143,000,000. The week ended Wednesday and the total represented a decrease of $32,000,000 when compared with the previous week.

Excess Reserve $40,000,000 Higher in Week

Turns Upward After 3 Weeks' Decline; New Peak for Gold.

By the Associated Press.

Excess reserves of Federal Reserve System members banks increased $40,000,000 during the week ended August 11 after declining $260,000,000 in the three previous weeks. The Federal Reserve board reported last evening that the upturn during the week ended August 11 brought the total of idle bank funds to $740,000,000. The excess reserves form the basis for possible credit expansion, and the total of such funds thus exerts an important influence on credit conditions.

The $40,000,000 increase was traceable to a $56,000,000 drop in Treasury deposits with Federal Reserve banks. Treasury withdrawals from the reserve institutions customarily are spent, sending the money into hands of private individuals and thence into commercial banks. The banks' store of lendable money thus is increased.

The board's report showed money in circulation increased $14,000,000 during the week to $6,482,000,000. This was $312,000,000 over the same week a year ago. The board reported no change in the Reserve Banks' $2,526,000,000 holdings of Government securities.

Gold stocks, increasing $35,000,000 for the week, reached a new $12,497,000,000 high.

Cotton Declines; October at 10.18

New York, Aug. 12 (AP).—Increased hedge selling in an otherwise narrow market sent cotton prices back to about the previous low levels today, with little demand aside from trade price fixing on a scale down and covering. December sold down from 10.24 to 10.11 and closed at 10.13, with final prices 14 to 17 points net lower.

May	10.38	10.28	10.28-30
July	10.41	10.31	10.31

Spot, quiet; middling, 10.48.

Cottonseed Oil.

Cottonseed oil declined 3 to 8 points early today under further liquiadtion promoted by the disappointing Census Bureau consumption figures and the weakness in lard, but rallied near the close on covering and local buying. Final prices were 1 point lower to 5 net higher. Sales, 86 contracts. The census report placed the consumption of cottonseed oil in July at 246,932 barrels, against 248,688 barrels in June and the visible supply at the end of July at 1,152,300 barrels, against 1,374,300 at the end of June. The Market

New York, Aug. 12.—Stocks gained a little ground wiht the best prices reached in the last hour. Trading volume increased to around 750,000 shares. Government bonds failed to shake off this lethargy. Commodities were mixed. Corn broke sharply. September wheat declined ¾ of a cent to $1.12⅝ a bushel.

Selection by President Roosevelt of Senator Black, of Alabama, as his choice to fill the Supreme Court position left by the retirement of Justice Van Devanter was the piquant news of the day. The announcement, which reached Wall street shortly after 1 o'clock, appeared to affect neither the volume of trading nor price changes. It scarcely could have been expected to do so, for some one of the general quality of the Senator from Alabama had been expected by most persons. In view of the many guesses as to possibilities, some in the financial district even felt relief over the selection, which it was assumed Senatorial courtesy would confirm.

Another Vote.

Undoubtedly the Supreme Court will now have one more vote guaranteed to be on the side of the New Deal legislation. One of the most pronounced socialistic and dictatorial measures of the Administration is that which bears the name of the nominee to the court, along with that of Representative Connery. That measure, designed to put under a Federal body the control of wages, hours and production for American industry is little more than a new NRA, which the Administration hopes will get by a more submissive Supreme Court. Senator Black's selection, in other words, looks to be one for the purpose of validating New Deal policies, and not merely to place upon the Supreme Court bench an outstanding judicial mind.

For some time it has been growing more apparent, and even before the Senate so decisively killed the President's proposal to pack the Supreme Court, that industry would have to look for protection at the source of adverse legislation rather than to the court of last resort. The court may still be relied upon to stave off some of the worst and most radical legislative attacks on the existing order, but it hasn't shown much disposition to swim strongly against the stream.

Swing From Reform.

With Congress the case is a bit different. More sensitive to public opinion, the prevalence of prosperous times will act more and more to restrain its enthusiasm for reform and to urge it to maintain and extend business enterprise. The chief danger lies in the possibility that, reacting to the burdens already placed upon it, industry might go into another serious slump, in which case all the old forces for social experiment would revive. Given another year's lease on life for active business, the limits of the New Deal probably will have been set.

The slowly moving stock market was only occasionally even moderately active, and then only in spots. The good profits report of Anaconda Copper had been anticipated and the whole group was barely steady as news came of a slight setback in the price of copper abroad, where a speculative movement has been under way. Nickel and some of the other mining stocks were held back by the coppers.

Steel Shares Rise.

Hardened stocks in the matter of give and take among the industrials managed to keep a fraction ahead of the previous closing prices most of the time. Steel found believers in its bid for higher levels and General Electric was firm. Crucible Steel rose easily 3 points. General Motors and Chrysler found better conditions. Mail order and farm implement shares strengthened.

In early trading the oil shares were given a trial and some of them went ahead, but not enough interest could be attracted to keep up the movement. Railroad shares were represented among the gainers, but dealings were far from positive railroad influence. Central was a favorite rail. The Alleghany and Chesapeake Corporation issues were unmoved by new suits against the merger plan. Some price disparities were still apparent in the Baldwin securities.

Cotton Consumption Heaviest in History

New York, Aug. 12 (AP).—The Cotton Exchange Service today published its estimates for July, the last month of the cotton season, showing domestic mill consumption for the 1936-37 season was the heaviest in history. On the basis of its estimate of 575,000 bales for July, the season's total was 7,937,000 bales against 6,351,000 for the 1935-36 season. The only season approaching it was 1928-29, with 7,091,000.

Interest Rates.

Interest rates tended to stiffen in July, usually a month of extreme ease. The most pronounced firmness occurred in New York City, where excess reserves have fallen sharply on Treasury operations and out of town withdrawals. The average rate charged by banks to customers rose from 2.34 to 2.36 per cent. In other Northern and Eastern cities the average rate was unchanged to 3.32 per cent. In Southern and Western cities the rise was from 4.18 to 4.19 per cent, marking the third consecutive monthly gain for that section of the country, now feeling the increased activity that accompanied the harvesting of the largest grain crops in six years and that has in prospect the largest cotton crop in several years.

No Objection.

In an interview yesterday, Chairman Landis of the SEC said it was desirable to have a quality stock market rather than a quantity market. That and the tenor of other observations which he made on the subject indicate strongly that the SEC will raise no objections to higher commission rates, shortly to be voted upon by the Stock Exchange membership, or to any other device calculated to reduce the volume of trading. The higher rates, approved yesterday afternoon by the law committee of the exchange, show an increase of from 15 to 70 per cent in the charges which the public will have to pay the brokers. What some brokers seem to fear is that, with one scheme and another and one restriction and another, so much quantity will be squeezed out of stock trading that the remaining quality will have little substance.

Losing Business.

While the New York Stock Exchange for generations has had a virtual monopoly of the trading in securities of the country's leading corporations, no monopoly is perpetual. Even in these disconsolate days of scarcity trading, the sales volume is being depleted much below what it would be if all the purchases and sales now carried on in listed stock were handled on the Stock Exchange floor. So many traders, small fry as well as large, have lost interest in the Stock Exchange operations that the remaining market is too thin to handle good sized blocks of stocks, in many instances, without sharp price fluctuations. That explains why dozens of large deals in listed stocks recently have been consummated over the counter.

General Motors.

The balance sheet of General Motors for June 30 showed no lack of cash on hand. Cash in the banks totaled $170,347,000 or about $18,000,000 less than at the beginning of the year, the difference being virtually made good in a rise of inventories during the first six months, that figure standing at $245,071,000. For the remainder, General Motors began the year with less than $5,000,000 held in Government bonds. The temporary investment stood at $89,647,000 at the end of the half year or more than enough to pay two full quarterly dividends of $1 a share on the common shares.

Retail Group Prepares for 3d Convention

By Thomas M. Cahill.

Local members attending the annual convention of the Credit Retail Association of America to be held in New York, this month, will hear an address by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, who will be the convention's honor guest and a speaker at the annual dinner, August 25. The convention opens August 23, Secretary Perkins' address, it is expected, will deal with matters relating to retailing and labor problems, according to President Allen J. Michaels, of the association.

This meeting will be the third convention of the organization, which comprises more than 350 credit stores throughout the United States. Other speakers will include Mr. Michaels, J. E. Butler, president of the Association of Credit Apparel Stores, and Aaron Cohen, merchandising director for the association.

Two other conventions at which there will also be local representation are those of the Association of National Advertisers, to be held at The Homestead, Hot Springs, Va. October 27-30, for which H. W. Roden, vice president of Johnson & Johnson, New Brunswick, N. J., is chairman of the program committee and the annual meeting of the Life Insurance Sales Research Bureau and the Association of Life Agency Officers at the Edgewater Beach Hotel, Chicago, October 26-28.

FDIC Surplus.

A net gain of approximately $21,000,000 in surplus during the first half year is announced by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, in the semiannual report of its board of directors to insured banks as of June 30. Income for the period amounting to $19,336,829 from assessments and $4,437,985 earned on securities was reported, as against administrative expenses, deposit insurance losses and expenses totaling $2,855,909.

A net decline of 86 in number of insured banks occurred during the period, largely as the result of definite programs for elimination and consolidation. Thirty-eight banks were admitted to insurance during the period which witnessed 21 suspensions. 102 mergers, absorptions or voluntary liquidations and one termination of insured status.

Maryland Banks.

The 124 State banks and trust companies of Maryland on June 30 had resources of $330,311,460, Bank Commissioner Warren F. Sterling reports. Resources of $248,021,830 for the State's 12 mutual savings banks were also reported. Principal assets of the State banks and trust companies were listed as follows: cash, etc., $63,350,400.34; United States Government obligations, $71,299,065.41; loans and discounts, $103,165,868.51; reserve with Federal Reserve Bank, $20,590,285.83; State, county and municipal obligations, $12,386,937.21; other bonds, notes and debentures, $35,676,989.21.

Principal resources of the mutual savings institutions were stocks, bonds, securities, etc., $178,022,027.97; mortgages and judgments of record, $43,498,829.02; due from banks and trust companies, $18,258,565.14.

Air-Conditioning Sales.

Installed cost of equipment sold by members of the Air-Conditioning Manufacturers Association in the first five months of 1937 exceeded the total for all last year, amounting to $50,131,360, as contrasted with $49,942,301, in 1936. This is according to announcement of William B. Henderson, executive vice president of the association, which has headquarters in this city. Every month reported had broken all records of previous years. The total for May was $8,820,059, an increase of 43.2 per cent over the month a year ago.

Personal.

Assistant Cashier Gerald E. Keene, of the Second National Bank, with office at its Seventh Street Branch, is back from a three weeks' visit in Cape May. Joseph R. Fitzpatrick another assistant cashier of that institution, has left for a vacation at Rehoboth Beach, Del.

Store Sales Drop Sharply in Capital

Richmond, Va., Aug. 12 (AP).—Department store sales in the Fifth Federal Reserve District in July totaled 3 per cent less than the July, 1936, sales although the cumulative sales for the first seven months of this year increased 5 per cent, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported today.

The decrease, the report said, was due to a "material decline" in sales in Washington, stores in other reporting cities nearly all showing moderate gains over sales in July, 1936. Total sales in 541 stores in the United States in July, 1937, were 4 per cent larger that the total sales in July of last year. Cumulative sales in the Nation were 10 per cent above the total sales in the first seven months of 1936. Three Winston-Salem, N. C., stores reported an increase of sales in July of 19.1 per cent, with a cumulative sales increase of 21.3 per cent.

Bank Clearings Continue Rise Over Last Year

Total for 22 Cities Is an Increase of 5.9 Per Cent.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Aug. 12.—The volume of bank clearings in the latest period continued higher than its 1936 comparative for the third week in succession, despite a recession from the preceding week's total, which included first-of-the-month settlements, Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

The aggregate for 22 leading cities for the week ended August 11 was $5,067,245,000, as against $4,785,771,000 for the corresponding week of 1936, giving an increase of 5.9 per cent. The year-to-year comparison for the preceding week showed a gain of 7.1 per cent.

Check transactions at New York amounted to $3,038,979,000, a rise of 5.7 per cent from the 1936 figure of $2,874,301,000. Outside of New York the bank clearings turnover amounted to $2,028,266,000, as compared with $1,911,470,000 in the like week of last year, a gain of 6.1 per cent. Bank clearings this week were $771,470,000 less than the aggregate for the preceding week.

	Week Aug. 11, 1937	Per cent Change

Boston Wool Market.

Boston, Aug. 12 (AP) (U. S. Dept. of Agr.).—Little wool moved in the Boston market today. Users made a few inquiries but apparently were not eager to buy. Quotations were steady and the few small sales reported were within price ranges quoted last week.

Some fine grades of semi-bright fleeces were taken. Fine Dakota fleeces of mostly average French combing and clothing lengths brought around 91-92 cents scoured basis, the greased price being around 33 cents a pound.

French combing lengths half blood Dakota wool brought around 92 cents scoured basis with the grease price in the range of 37-38 cents for comparatively light shrinking wools.

G. O. P. Parley Is Set Aug. 25 For Arlington

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST, Clarendon, Va., Tel. Clar. 509.

Grayson Ahalt, chairman of the Arlington County Republican executive committee, has announced a county mass meeting and convention at the Lyon Park Community House at 8 p. m. August 25.

The purpose of the meeting is to nominate a candidate for the General Assembly and to nominate delegates to attend the State convention at Richmond August 28.

The legal and qualified voters of the county, who are in accord with the principles of the Republican Party, are invited to attend the mass meeting.

Arlington, 7; Ballston, 6; Cherrydale, 7; Clarendon, No. 1, 5; Clarendon, No. 2, 8; East Falls Church, 2; Glencarlyn, 1; Lyon Park, 5; Virginia Highlands, 5; Rosslyn, 3, and delegates at large, 2.

The annual carnival of the Falls Church Fire Department opens tomorrow night, to continue through August 21. The event will be on a vacant lot located on Lee highway just above the firehouse.

O. C. Pearson, general chairman, will be assisted by the following members of the department: Moyer G. Copeland, automobiles; Kenneth Elliott and Joseph A. C. Fought, printing; Robert Copeland, music and dancing; Joseph Birch, electric wiring of grounds; J. R. Royston, erection of stands; Douglas Royston, steam train for children; Kenneth Elliott and Edward Rullman, soft drinks; J. R. Royston, Douglas Royston and Edward Rullman, ice cream.

Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, U. S. A., retired, former chief of the Chemical Warfare Service will speak at the Arlington County Lion Club luncheon meeting next Tuesday. The meeting will be held at the Rixey Mansion on Glebe road. Gen. Fries will speak on communism.

Arlington Post, No. 139, American Legion, will hold its annual picnic tomorrow on the farm of Roger Hunt Blake on Sleepy Hollow road, south of Fort Buffalo, Fairfax County.

Ritualistic, Miss Ann Schau; publicity, Mrs. Julia A. Cullin; membership, Mrs. Betty Whitehouse; homemaking, Mrs. Irene Wopinsky; library, Mrs. Edna Wolff; social service, Mrs. Eunice Matthews; Moosehaven, Mrs. Beulah Scheffel; child care and training, Mrs. Violet S. Willet; Mooseheart, Mrs. Leola V. Clever; reception, Mrs. Gertrude Lankford; adult, Mrs. Gladys Chaney; ways and means, Mrs. Edna Wolff; sick, Miss Pauline Whitehouse.

Frank C. Hanrahan, county manager, will attend the annual meeting of the League of Virginia Municipalities which will be held at Virginia Beach September 20 and 21. It is expected that members of the board will also attend. The meeting is being held for the purpose of studying questions relative to good government in the State.

Dr. Earl G. Brown, county health officer addressing the Arlington Rotary Club today outlined the work of a modern health department. He commented on the advances being made in the control of contagious diseases.

Stressing the need of greater care when colds are first noticed among children, Dr. Brown stated that last year in the Arlington County public schools a total of 5,938 pupils were absent from classes as a result of colds. This number showed a total of 17,582 days absent from school.

2 Small Dirigibles Ordered by Navy

A contract for $284,821 for the construction of two nonrigid airships has been awarded to the Goodyear-Zeppelin Corporation, Akron, Ohio, the Navy Department announced yesterday. One of the blimps, of 125,000 cubic feet capacity, will be used for training and general utility purposes. The other, of 400,000 cubic feet capacity, will be for coastal patrol work. Both ships will be based at the Naval Air Station, Lakehurst, N. J.

Construction of another dirigible to replace the Los Angeles has also been indorsed by the General Board of the Navy. The proposed airship of approximately 3,000,000 cubic feet capacity would be used for experimental purposes.

Although no official policy has been adopted by the Navy Department, Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of Naval Operations, has opposed lighter-than-air ships, while Rear Admiral Arthur B. Cook, chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, favors construction of another dirigible.

Man Who Threw Gun At King Leaves Jail

Narrow Fabrics Drive Planned By T. W. O. C.

Providence, R. I., Aug. 12 (U.P.).—A campaign to organize the entire narrow fabrics industry was announced tonight by Herman Blumberg, New England director of C. I. O.'s Textile Workers Organizing Committee.

Announcement followed a two-hour conference between manufacturers and T. W. O. C. officials seeking "standardization and stabilization of working conditions for benefit of both employers and employes."

Edith Wharton Dies of Stroke At 75 in Her French Chateau

By the Associated Press.

Saint Brice Sous Bois, France, Aug. 12.—Edith Wharton, the noted American novelist, died yesterday at her chateau near here, it was learned today.

The author of "Ethan Frome" and many other stories was 75 years old. Death occurred at 5 p. m. yesterday, following an apoplectic stroke which she suffered early in the morning.

Edith Wharton, daughter of a socially prominent family and educated at home and abroad, made her greatest mark with the novel "Ethan Frome," dramatized two seasons ago in New York.

Of the novel, written in 1911, one critic said it was comparable only to the work of Nathaniel Hawthorne as a tragedy of New England.

Born Edith Jones in New York City, the novelist was related to the Schermerhorn and Rhinelander families. As a child she lived much abroad and later in life resided in Italy and France.

Her first published work was a short story in Scribner's Magazine when she was 29. This was followed by other short stories which won her a reputation as a rival of Henry James and high praise for her "refined intellectual quality."

She had published 38 works, including fiction, travel and autobiography.

Among the most famous of them were "The House of Mirth," 1905; "Crucial Instances," 1901; "The Fruit of the Tree," 1907; "The Age of Innocence," 1920; a four-volume novel of old New York in 1924; "Twilight Sleep," 1927; "The Children," 1928, and "A Backward Glance," her autobiography, in 1934.

EDITH WHARTON.

In 1916 France made her a chevalier of the Legion of Honor for her activities during the war, which included the founding of the American Hostel for Refugees. She also received the Chevalier Order of Leopold of Belgium.

She was the second woman member of the American Academy of Arts and Letters—being preceded by Julia Ward Howe. The academy awarded her a gold medal for excellence in literature and fine arts.

Father Testifies For Girl Fighting Browning's Will

New York, Aug. 12 (AP).—Jacob Herbst, who until yesterday had not seen his daughter, Marjorie, since she was adopted 19 years ago by the wife of multimillionaire Edward W. (Daddy) Browning, testified today in her suit to obtain $1,000,000 of the wealthy realtor's estate.

He was permitted to answer one question: "Is she your natural daughter?"

"Yes," Herbst said, looking intently at his daughter, now Marjorie Browning, 22, of New Rochelle, N. Y.

Claiming Browning promised to name her as his heiress, Miss Browning is opposed in her suit by Mrs. orothy (Sunshine) Browning Hood, of Dunn, N. C., who was adopted by Browning and is principal beneficiary of the estate.

Garnett Considered For Vacant Seat On Appeals Court

District Attorney Leslie C. Garnett is under consideration for the seat on the District Circuit Court of Appeals bench left vacant by the death of Justice Josiah Van Orsdel, it was learned yesterday.

Two other men are also being prominently mentioned for the post. They are H. Winship Wheatley, former president of the District Bar Association, and Judge Fletcher Riley, of the Oklahoma Supreme Court.

Riley is said to have the support of both Senator Elmer Thomas and Senator Josh Lee, of Oklahoma.

It was said unofficially Garnett, whose name was presented by Attorney General Homer Cummings, is the President's choice for the position.

Mrs. Atkinson, who has lived in McLean for 20 years, is survived by her sister, Miss Julia McGrotty. She was a member of Sharon Chapter and Friendship Circle, Eastern Star, and corresponding secretary of the Guild of St. John's Episcopal Chuch.

Last Trolley Is Junked In Pennsylvania Valley

Beaver Falls, Pa., Aug. 12 (AP).—Trolley No. 611, the last street car in the Beaver Valley, went to the junk heap today. She made her last trip yesterday on tracks lined with orpedoes and hundreds of pennies, to be crushed by the iron wheels for souvenirs.

On board were members of city council, the police and fire department, and several who had ridden on the valley's first electric trolley 36 years ago. The trolleys are being replaced by motor buses.

Old Babe's Marker Delayed Pending Dr. Mann's Return

Director of Zoo Will Be Consulted Before Determining Tribute for Elephant Who Entertained Thousands.

A campaign to place a marker at the grave of Old Babe, 4-ton elephant who entertained thousands during her lifetime, was halted temporarily yesterday to await the return of Dr. William M. Mann, director of the Washington Zoo, from the Sumatran jungles.

Old Babe died at the zoo Wednesday at the age of 99 and was buried on the hill back of the zebra house. She toured with a circus for more than a half century and was the oldest and best-known elephant in captivity. Grief at her death was Nation-wide.

Ernest P. Walker, acting director of the zoo, expressed the desire that any move to commemorate her memory be postponed until Dr. Mann returns in September. He said he hesitated to express any belief as to the form a marker should take and that the director would want to be consulted. Dr. Mann and Babe were special friends.

A marker to Dunk, a big bull elephant that died at the zoo more than a decade ago, was erected in the old brick elephant house—the gift of Washington's school children.

A new elephant house is now under construction, and has been mentioned as a suitable location for a marker for Babe. The Zoo has an excellent picture of the elephant—taken when she was a circus queen. This now hangs in the office of Mr. Walker and "serves as a marker until another is provided for."

The Smithsonian Institution yesterday said Old Babe's bones would be permitted to stay back of the zebra house. "As far as we are concerned Old Babe is buried. It would be a year before we could remove her bones for mounting purposes, and we have no such idea in mind," Alexander Wetmore, assistant secretary, said.

Walker today will write a letter to officials of Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey Circus—informing them officially of Babe's death. The letter will be merely for sake of the record, as the circus folks—now playing in St. Louis—are already mourning the passing of one of their greatest attractions.

Yesterday they recalled her steadiness and her ability in leading younger elephants. "She was a rock of dependability. Talented, but never a prima donna actress," said Larry Davis, elephant superintendent. "I never saw a smarter elephant. She soothed the younger elephants with kind words, usually. When they failed, though, she would not hesitate to slap them down with her trunk. She was also a mountain of energy when we were ready to move the show on and off the lot."

Glazers Agreement Is Expected Here

Settlement of wage demands by Washington Local No. 963 of Glazers is expected next week.

The glazers, affiliated with the International Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, Paperhangers and Glazers of America, an A. F. L. union, have been receiving $1.30 an hour and are demanding $1.75. The Washington Glass Dealers Association, the employing contractors in this instance, are offering a compromise rate of $1.50 an hour, according to Business Agent John Mikels.

The wage agreement, when made, will go into effect October 1.

Woman Juror Overcome By Sex Murder Picture

Los Angeles, Aug. 12 (AP).—A woman juror nearly fainted when she saw one of several photographs introduced today in the trial of Albert Dyer, 32, charged with murdering three young girls in a sex frenzy.

Mrs. Shirley Agranoff, the juror, was so affected the trial was delayed. The exact purpose in showing the pictures of the girls' bodies was not announced. A deputy sheriff on the witness stand identified the pictures.

Eight Convicted Of Kidnaping John O'Connell

The jury had spent almost 11 weeks listening to testimony against what the Government said was "the Nation's last organized kidnap ring."

Those convicted were John Oley, 36, Percy Geary, 34, and Manning Strewl, 35, all of Albany, and John McGlone, 34, Charles Harrigan, 37, Thomas Dugan, 35, George Garguillo, 31, and Harold Crowley, 35, of New York City.

Strewl, "go-between" in ransom negotiations that led to release of O'Connell on payment of $40,000, was convicted of conspiracy to use and four counts of actual use of the mails to extort money. He faces possible sentence totalin, 82 years.

The other seven on trial were found guilty of conspiracy to transport a kidnaped victim in interstate commerce as well as actual transportation and the extortion charges. Each faces possible life imprisonment.

Two confessed participants in the crime, Frank Fischer, 53, and Thomas Burk, 39, guards of young O'Connell in the kidnap hide

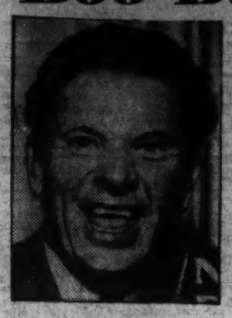
Bob Burns Says—



I had an aunt that was very particular about her house. One day she found a little place on the wall where a piece of plaster had fallen out about an inch square and she told my uncle to call in a plasterer to patch it up. My uncle says, "Oh, I can fix that myself!' So he took the day off and drove 30 miles into town and bought a sack of plaster and stepladder and all the tools a plasterer would need and he comes back and went to work.

Just as he finished makin' a botchy job of it, the ladder slipped and fell, spillin' plaster all over the floor and the ladder and my uncle fell against the piano and broke that. The piano hit the parlor lamp and knocked it through the window and my uncle broke his arm. My aunt picked him up and my uncle stood there and pointed his good arm at this spot on the wall and he says, "Now, wouldn't it have been foolish to call a plasterer in for a little job like that?"

Officers View Battle Scenes At Gettysburg

Citizen Soldiers Also Will Make Visit to Area Next Week.

Camp Albert C. Ritchie, Cascade, Md., Aug. 12.—The more than 800 District National Guardsmen encamped at Camp Albert C. Ritchie took part in a spectacular regimental parade late today before Col. John W. Oehmann, commanding officer, and other Guard leaders.

All day the Guardsmen were busy cleaning their equipment and uniforms for the evening's parade. The call for formation was sounded at 6 p. m., when the men left their tents for the ceremony.

A gun salute for Gov. Harry Nice and ceremonies for other distinguished guests were not held. Gov. Nice is vacationing in the West, and Mayor Howard Jackson, of Baltimore, had visited the camp earlier in the day.

Visited Battlefield.

Officers of the 121st Engineers visited the Gettysburg Battlefield, 20 miles away, to complete plans for the entourage of the entire camp to the grounds today.

In preparation for the Guardsmen's visit to the battlefield, Capt. E. H. Walters, E. E., instructor of the 121st Engineers, gave a lecture, illustrated with lantern slides, on the battle last night.

The men were then shown photographs of Gettysburg. One of the prints was that of President Lincoln at the dedication of the battlefield on November 19, 1863, when he delivered his famous address.

Pictures Shown.

Pictures of the points of interest that the Guardsmen will visit today and Monday were shown to the District men. Capt. Walters will conduct them over the battlefield. Lectures on the battlefield will be delivered by Lieuts. Ellis H. Martin, Henry L. Green 3d, Henry Gableman, Anton G. Mensik, and W. J. Conlyn.

The Washington men have been at Camp Ritchie since last Saturday. They will remain until August 21. Groups representing the 121st Engineers, commanded by Col. John W. Oehmann; the 104th Quartermaster Regiment, under Maj. Fletcher F. Bernsdorff; the Twenty-ninth Division Special Troops, under Maj. William T. Roy, and Company A, 372d Infantry, colored, under Capt. Arthur C. Newman.

Hold Gas Drill.

Earlier the District men attached to the 104th Quartermaster's Regiment took part in a gas attack defense. They practiced the regular running formation with gas masks attached.

Corpl. Oswald J. Wines, 20, colored, attached to the 372d Infantry, was taken to Washington yesterday suffering from a dislocated hip which he suffered Wednesday in a fall.

Maj. Joseph J. Greenlaw, medical officer of the Engineers, reported the health of the Guardsmen was good.

Carl Lutes, 50, Dies; Was War Veteran

Carl Lutes, 50, a World War veteran, died suddenly in Providence Hospital yesterday after an emergency operation. A resident of Washington for the last six years, Lutes had been employed by the Potomac Electric Power Co.

He enlisted during the war and served overseas, participating in several major engagements. A native of New Jersey, he was a member of the Fraternal Order of Eagles. In Washington he lived with a brother, William R. Lutes, at 1828 Bay street southeast. Other survivors are his father, Frank Lutes, and a sister, Mrs. Ann L. Erickson, both of Browns Mill, N. J.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 10 a. m. from Chambers funeral parlors, 517 Eleventh street southeast. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Duce Extols 'Lush' Times of Fascism

Syracuse, Sicily, Aug. 12 (AP).—Premier Mussolini told 30,000 Sicilians tonight that the "lush old days of the Roman Emperor Augustus" were the only suitable comparison to the modern Fascist epoch.

Orders for launching final phases of war games to test the vulnerability of western Sicily to invasion were issued by Il Duce and, tomorrow, he will join King Vittorio Emanuele on the simulated battle front between Marsala and Cape Granitola.

Father Withheld $225 Is Plea of His Killer

Oklahoma City, Aug. 12 (AP).—Assistant County Attorney Walter Marlin said Verl Waller, 26, walked into his office today and confessed he killed his father because the latter refused him $225 for a sex operation.

Marlin said Waller signed a statement giving this motive: "I, after reading a number of medical books . . . had made up my mind that my sister's condition, as well as my own, physically, was due largely to lack of training and education along sex lines which I feel like my father overlooked."

On Capitol Hill

Secretaries Ickes and Wallace yesterday carried a dispute over departmental jurisdiction to the Senate's special committee on Government reorganization today.

Ickes appeared in person to defend a provision of the Robinson reorganization bill which would rename the Interior Department the "Department of Conservation."

In a letter to the committee, Wallace opposed transferring certain conservation activities now in the Department of Agriculture to the "Conservation" Department.

Ickes contended that former Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania is "the spearhead of a Nation-wide campaign of propaganda" in opposition to changing the name of his department.

SENATE SAFETY-AT-SEA investigators recommended Congress outlaw the "hiring halls" through which maritime unions control the selection of ship personnel.

Chairman Copeland (Democrat), New York, of the Senate Commerce Committee, presented to the Senate a report from the technical committee charged by the Senate with investigating the Morro Castle and Mohawk ship disasters.

He also introduced legislation to carry out the committee's recommendations.

A SENATE COMMERCE subcommittee tentatively approved a compromise of the Barkley-Vinson and the Lonergan stream pollution bills.

The compromise measure, to be considered by the full committee Saturday, would authorize an appropriation of $1,000,000 a year for the next ten years. Of this, $700,000 a year would be used for Public Health Service surveys in co-operation with State health departments, and $300,000 for administration.

The Public Health Service would formulate a national policy for stream-pollution control.

Dynamite Thieves Hunted in Norfolk

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 12 (AP).—The British steamer Gypsum Queen steamed toward Santa Lucia, Cuba, today while Norfolk police sought—anxiously—to locate a part of her cargo.

That missing is three cases of dynamite a part of a consignment of 45,000 pounds loaded while the British steamer lay at anchor here. The shortage, attributed to thieves, was discovered when freight cars containing the shipment were opened shortly before the vessel sailed

Girl, Reprimanded For Running Away, Again Disappears

NADEEN IRENE VANDERGRIFT.

Forbidden to leave home or see friends as punishment for a runaway attempt last week, 13-year-old Nadeen Irene Vandergrift, of 5078 Sherrier place northwest, disappeared again Tuesday. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Vandergrift, believe she was angered by their disciplinary measures.

A week ago Wednesday, according to Mrs. Vandergrift, Nadeen failed to return home after an errand.

When she returned, her father gave her a "talking to." Mrs. Vandergrift said yesterday, and put her "on probation" for two weeks. Taking advantage of her first opportunity, Nadeen slipped out of the house Tuesday afternoon while her mother was resting.

She believes she may be staying with a friend, claiming she was mistreated at home.

The girl is about 5 feet 2 inches tall, weighs 122 pounds and looks 16. Blonde and blue-eyed, she was wearing a red and blue print dress and white shoes. She is reported to have been seen at the Palace and the Capitol theaters the evening of her disappearance.

Burling Divorces His Wife at Reno

Reno, Aug. 12 (AP).—John J. Burling, socially prominent son of Edward Burnham Burling, Washington attorney, won an uncontested divorce on grounds of desertion here today from Mrs. Deborah Dows Burling.

They were married May 25, 1935, in Washington, and formerly lived in Cambridge, Mass.

Mrs. Burling, whose local address is 3126 O street northwest, made her debut here in 1933. She previously attended Holton-Arms and Foxcroft schools and studied for a year in Germany.

Russian Fliers Leave Moscow For Alaska on Trip Over Pole

By the United Press.

The big Russian monoplane left Moscow at 6:13 p. m. (11:12 p. m. Eastern standard time) for Fairbanks, Alaska, first stop on the third Soviet air expedition over the top of the world.

The fliers hoped their ship, capable of a speed of 300 kilometers per hour (about 186.3 m. p. h.), would reach Fairbanks in 30 hours at an average speed of 230 kilometers (about 142.8 m. p. h.) but strong headwinds they encountered in the first stages of the flight may delay them.

Before the takeoff it was announced that after Fairbanks the fliers would stop next at Edmonton, Alberta. It was undecided whether their third stop would be San Francisco or Oakland, their final goal.

"Our aim is to study the route further," Levanevsky said before the takeoff. "On the first and second flights we met clouds, but could not determine their height. I intend to fly much higher than on the previous flights.

Victor I. Levchenko, partner of Levanevsky in other air exploits, is navigator. Others aboard are Co-pilot Kostanaye, Radio Operator Golkovsky and Mechanics Pobezihov and Godovikov.

The plane is the best-equipped polar route survey craft the Russians have used. Previous flights were in single-motored ships. The first trip ended in Vancouver, Wash., the other at San Jacinto, Calif., outside Los Angeles.

Robots Floating High Over Arctic To Radio Weather

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 12 (AP).—Tiny robot "weathermen," floating 15 miles above the Arctic wastes, may tell you when a cold wave's coming this winter.

The robot—weathermen call it a meteorograph—will ride through Alaska skies attached to small balloons, radioing weather reports to ground stations at half-minute intervals.

William B. Brawbaugh, assistant meteorologist of the United States Weather Bureau, disclosed plans for inaugurating the new study today as he prepared to sail for Fairbanks, Alaska, where 190 balloons will be released for a six-month investigation beginning September 1.

Each of the gas-filled bags will carry aloft a 2-pound "mechanical brain," containing automatic weather-recording devices and a two-tube radio transmitter.

Copeland Issue Splits G.O.P. Ranks

New York, Aug. 12 (AP).—Rival political strategists tonight sought, on the one hand, to clear the field for United States Senator Royal S. Copeland as a candidate for the Republican nomination for mayor of New York and, on the other hand, to remove him from the primary race.

Former Representative Charles G. Bond withdrew his own candidacy in favor of Copeland, who, he said, represented views similar to his own.

The move to put Copeland, a Democrat with Tammany backing who has expressed opposition to New Deal politics, out of the Republican race was announced by Kenneth F. Simpson, chairman of the Republican County Committee, who said the committee's law committee was investigating the petitions designating Copeland.

His announcement came shortly after Stanley Howe, executive secretary to Fusionist Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, the third entrant in the primary, announced he was checking up on the petitions.

Norfolk Yard Men Foresee More Work

The Navy Department made no commitments, Bashara said, but the group felt assured officials were doing everything to provide an adequate work load for the Norfolk yard.

Meanwhile, Senator Harry F. Byrd, of Virginia, made public a letter from Admiral William D. Leahy, Acting Secretary of the Navy, confirming figures made public last week covering work assigned to the yard.

"The estimates show," he said, "that Norfolk loses work to the amount of $265,000, but gains work to the amount of $365,000 plus the cost of repairs to the Omaha to correct the damage due to grounding."

Pay-Hour Bill Defeat Is Urged By Md. Grange

Defeat of the Black-Connery wages and hours bill now pending in the House was asked yesterday by the Prince Georges County Pomona Grange at a meeting in the Brandywine (Md.) High School.

A resolution condemning the legislation as "injurious to agriculture and smaller industries" was introduced by County Commissioner Joseph H. Blandford and passed unanimously. Representative Stephen W. Gambrill (Democrat), of Maryland, will be asked to vote against the measure.

The resolution charged that the legislation would cause reduction in employment by necessitating more extensive use of labor-saving machines and would result in "a flood of imports" due to higher wages and consequent increased cost of commodities manufactured in this country.

Supports Wide Highway.

The Grange also voted its support of a county-wide movement to widen Crain Highway, where seven persons were burned to death in a recent automobile crash.

The highway resolution also was introduced by Blandford, who several days ago began circulation of a petition asking that the State Roads Commission construct paved shoulders on the 15-foot interstate thoroughfare.

Charles G. Crockett, inspector of weights and measures, Baltimore, declared there was lax enforcement of the State regulations governing weights and measures in Prince Georges County. He urged that a full-time inspector be appointed to "save taxpayers money."

"I stopped in two county stores on my way to this meeting," Crockett said. "In one store the scale was against the storekeeper and in the other it was 1½ ounces against the customer."

Weight Check Urged.

Crockett urged a regular inspection of gasoline station pumps and a continual lookout for false-bottom measures, sliding face scales and short-weight containers.

He said that in Baltimore City statistics had been compiled to show that in return for a tax-rate increase of 4 cents to pay for the cost of operating the weights and measures inspection service, each family was saved approximately $32 annually.

Other speakers included Dr. Harry Nalley, Mount Rainier, and Joseph J. Maisch, of the Baltimore office of the W. P. A. Maisch explained the new recreational set-up to be conducted throughout the State under auspices of the W. P. A. and the University of Maryland.

Miss Ethel Regan, county demonstration agent, and W. F. Mulligan, president of the Prince Georges Chamber of Commerce, were named as a committee to co-operate with the WPA in the establishment of a recreational center in the county.

Diplomat Escapes Service In Wife's Maintenance Suit

MRS. NORMA YEARSLEY DEBAYLE.

Acting on instructions from the State Department, deputy United States marshals yesterday adopted a "do nothing" policy in connection with a suit for maintenance filed in District Court by Norma Yearsley DeBayle against Luis Manuel DeBayle, Nicaraguan diplomat who is here temporarily on a mission for his country.

In a petition filed here yesterday, Mrs. DeBayle charged that her husband has failed to properly provide for her after he left this country in 1934 after having served as minister. He now is minister of sanitation in Nicaragua.

She asked that he be compelled to provide for her. She also asked that the District require her husband to post a suitable bond to guarantee he would stay here and comply with any orders issued by the court.

Justice James M. Proctor issued a writ of "ne exeat," which would have had the effect of keeping the diplomat here. However, that writ, together with the papers in the maintenance suit, were reposing in the marshal's office, with no attempt being made to serve them.

Mrs. DeBayle, who lives at 1340 Twenty-first street, said she and her husband were married in Philadelphia in 1917. They have one son, Luis, who is now employed here by the Nicaraguan government.

Chief Deputy United States Marshal Thomas Ott said last night he had refused to serve the papers after being informed by the State Department that diplomatic immunity amply protected DeBayle from any kind of a suit while here on an official errand for his government.
